KALAT

The Khanate of Kalat which formerly comprised the whole country known as Baluchistan is now a Native State included within the modern Baluchistan Agency. Notwithstanding the separation of certain tracts such as the territories of the Jam of Las Bela and the Marri and Bugti country, whose connection with Kalat is now of the most shadowy kind, the State still occupies about two thirds of the whole province.

The Khan or Wali of Kalat is the head of the old Baluch Confederacy and time has been when his position as such was generally recognised and the Sirdars of the Confederacy would muster their forces and follow him in the wars he waged for the consolidation or in defence of the Khanate. But at the same time the Sirdars have always been extremely jealous of interference with their privileges as confederate Chiefs, and it was the disregard of these feelings by Mir Khudadad that led to the Brahui rebellion against him, which was followed by our intervention in 1876 and the location of troops in Quetta. These events have naturally carried with them a weakening of the central authority and the Confederacy and the Khan's position as its head are now matters more of sentiment and tradition than of existing fact. Furthermore there is the Mastung Treaty of 1876 (the Magna Charta of Kalat) under the terms of which all disputes among the Brahuys themselves and between them and the Khan or his revenue paying subjects are dealt with by the Political Agent.

The Chiefs of Kalat are of Arab extraction as they come from the Marwari tribe in Makran who in turn claim descent from the Arabs who invaded, and settled in that country as the sword of Islam was borne eastwards. The particular family to which the Khans belong is the Ahmadzai section of the Kambarans, who take their name either from the Kambar known to history as the freedman of Ali Mahomed's son in law, or from another man of the same name who lived a few generations later. The Marwaris established themselves in Kalat about the middle of the 15th century A.D. and with unimportant interruptions the present dynasty have since remained there. Mir Abdullah (1713—1731) was the first Khan of any particular note and he firmly established his rule and added to the territories of the Khanate. The State however reached the zenith of its importance in the reign of Mir Asir Khan I (1730—1791). He conquered Panjgur and Kej and in return for assistance rendered to Ahmad Shah Abdali obtained the grant of Mastung and Shil (Quetta). Direct relations of the British Government with the State date from 1838, when the cooperation of the Khan was sought in keeping open the Bolan Pass and otherwise in connection with the march of a force into Afghanistan for the restoration of Shah Shuja to the throne of Kabul. Owing to local intrigues in Kalat no assistance was afforded and on the return of the force in 1839 Kalat was attacked and captured and the Khan Mir Mehrab killed in its defence.

The present Khan, Mir Mahmud Khan, G C I E, succeeded his father, Mir Khudadad, on the latter's abdication in November 1893. He was born about 1864, has received a good oriental education, and is reputed a good horseman.

The State has an irregular force of 225 cavalry and 110 infantry and 50 gunners, with 29 guns, of which 9 are serviceable. The Chief's residence is at Kalat, where his Palace fort, the "Mir," is famous for its picturesque strength.

The Khan of Kalat receives a salute of 19 guns and is entitled to be received and visited by the Viceroy.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor-General. The form of the commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—"My honoured and valued friend—I desire to express the high consideration which I entertain for Your Highness and to subscribe myself Your Highness's sincere friend." The crest used is gold Kharita bag Kamkhwab (Gold and silk brocade) String (Dori) Nimzar (Gold and silk thread).

KHARAN

The Fort of Kharan, with its village of about 100 mat huts around it, lies 76 miles south west of Nushki and is the head quarters of the Nansherwan Chief, Mir Muhammad Yakub Khan. The district of the same name lies to the southward of the long Rashkoh range and extends from near Nushki and Kalat in a westerly and south westerly direction to the Persian border with which it runs from the Hamun Mashkel on the north to near Kohak on the south. Thus the whole of the Mashkel valley on the British side of the border falls within Kharan, while included among the Chief's possessions are portions of the Rakshan, Gchik and Ragha valleys, two large villages in Panjgur and a belt of the Mashkel valley at Gwarjak. The Naushermanis, though but extremely few in number, are the dominant tribe and all other minor Baluch tribes in the country, as the Rakshanis and the Mashkel Rekis, are subject to them and pay them revenue.

The Naushermanis claim to be descended from the ancient Kiaman dynasty, but they cannot trace their origin further back than three generations beyond Ibrahim Khan, who took service with Sultan Shah Hussain of Persia in A D 1697 Ibrahim's grandfather's name was Nausherwan, and it is from this ancestor that the tribe doubtless takes its designation. Migrating eastwards the tribe first came to Garmseel and many of them are still to be found on Helmand. They were well received by the Afghans, but having many flocks and herds they advanced towards the Kharan desert in the early part of the 18th century and there they have since remained. Purdil Khan, the son of Ibrahim, was in his time the great hero of Western Baluchistan and he it was who is said to have captured and killed at Chagai the Afghan, Prince Ashraf, who was flying to Kandahar after the expulsion of the Afghans from Persia by Nadir Shah in 1730. The late Azad Khan informed Sir R. Sandeman that Purdil Khan took from Ashraf Khan the famous Koh-i-Nur diamond and afterwards sold it in Sind. Purdil Khan endeavoured to maintain his independence against Nadir Shah, but he was defeated. Eventually submitting he was pardoned and admitted to bigh favour and the districts of Baidak, Kolwah, Mashkor, Rakshan and Kharan were formally assigned to him or his sons. Purdil was a very old man at this date (about A D 1740) and is said to have died on his way from Persia to take up his possessions in Kharan, etc. Thus Kharan at this period was established as a district of Persia. But notwithstanding their relations with Persia the Nausherwanis fully recognised the military superiority of Mir Abdullah, the Khan of Kalat (1713—1730), accompanying him in his raids into Sind and Kach and losing much blood in his cause.

Nadir Shah was assassinated in 1747 and on the break up of the great tribal empire he had formed, a powerful kingdom was founded in Afghanistan by Ahmad Shah Durani, the influence of which must have been felt in Kharan. However, the connection with Kalat was maintained as the warlike Nasir Khan I (1750-1793) conquered the whole of Western Baluchistan, Kharan included.

Azad Khan, the grandfather of the present Chief, was, when Sir Robert Sandeman met him in 1883 thought to be 97 years of age. "In the prime of his life he must have been a singularly handsome man of unusual stature and of great physical power. The stories told of his strength are indeed, such as would more fitly belong to the heroes of a mythical age than to a man still living".* His power

* Sir Robert Sandeman's report of his 1883 tour and influence throughout Western Baluchistan and Persian Baluchistan were no less marked than his personality was striking, and the history of this country is closely connected with the story of his feuds and raids and his intrigues with either Persia, Afghanistan or Kalat. He took a prominent part in the revolution that supervened upon the capture of Kalat during the first Afghan war and gave shelter to Mir Nasir Khan II, the exiled son of the slain Mehrab Khan. When the Persian army approached the Baluchistan frontier in 1856 Azad Khan joined the Persian camp. In 1857 there was a design to place him upon the Kalat marnad, but it was not successful. In 1858 he was claimed as a subject by the Amir of Afghanistan and in the next few years he paid several visits to Kabul. He joined the Brahui rebellion against the Khan in 1871-1872 and he had many disputes with the ex Khan, Mir Khudadad, regarding his Panjgur possessions (granted in jagir by Mir Nasir Khan I) and a family matter connected with his sister who had been married to Nasir Khan II and was claimed on the latter's death by Mir Khudadad. In 1884 he finally acknowledged himself a subject to Kalat by taking his seat in Durbar among the Sarawan Brahui Sirdars, when he was granted by Government an allowance of Rs 6,000 a year.

Azad Khan died in 1886 and his son, Sir Nawroz Khan, K C I E, succeeded to the Chiefship. The latter, who was born in 1855, died in 1909 and was succeeded by his son, Mir Muhammad Yakub Khan. The delimitation of the Perso-Baluch border has set at rest Nausherwanis' claims in Eastern Persia, while the formation of the Chagai District has, with unimportant exceptions, settled the limits of their possessions on the north. Towards Makran Kharan the Kharan boundary is still in some places undefined, but the encroachments the Nausherwanis were disposed to indulge in this direction have now ceased. Their Panjgur possessions (the village of Khudabadan and parts of Tasp and Sirri Kauran) are no longer under dispute.

Mir Muhammad Yakub Khan continues to draw the Rs 6000 a year which was given to his grandfather Azad Khan in 1834 when the latter finally acknowledged himself a subject of Kalat by taking his seat in Darbar among the Sarawan Brahui Chiefs. He has an irregular force of 60 cavalry and 360 infantry with 5 guns, and excluding Las Bela he is by far the most powerful and potentially useful of the Chiefs in the Baluch Confederacy.

LAS BELA

Bela lies 115 miles north west of Karachi

The ruling family claims descent from Abdul Munaf of the Kureshi tribe of Arabia. The general belief is that one Bhagrath, a descendant of Abdul Munaf, came to Jamnagar, in India and became ruler of that place. His descendant, Mehran, who embraced the religion of Islam, subsequently emigrated to Sindh and became so powerful that after a time he conquered the province which remained in the possession of his descendants for several generations until it was overrun by Jehangir and annexed to the Delhi Empire. The ruling Chief of that time, Jam Aradeen, fled and settled in Kanraj in Las Bela. A descendant of his, Ali Khatooria, with a view to taking revenge on the Runjhais (a tribe in the country) who had murdered his younger brother, Dagar, invaded Las Bela and having conquered the country became the ruler.

The State of Las Bela has since remained in the possession of his family, and the ruling Chief is called Jam, which appellation was probably assumed when the ancestor of the family went to India and ruled over Jamnagar.

Jam Mir Khan, the grandfather of the present Chief, who succeeded his father about the year 1840, was constantly at feud with the Khan of Kalat, and in the end was obliged to leave his State and take refuge at Karachi. At the request of the Khan he was kept in the fort at Hyderabad and thence sent to Poona, his son, Jam Ali Khan, being allowed to remain behind at Hyderabad. In 1874 the latter escaped to Las Bela where he came to terms with the Khan of Kalat and undertook the charge of affairs. In 1877 Jam Mir Khan was pardoned and restored to his former position. After his restoration he quarrelled with his son who was deported from Bela and detained under surveillance at Sibi until the death of his father in 1885. The succession was disputed, but eventually Jam Ali Khan was recognised as the rightful heir and appointed to the Jamship of Las Bela in January 1889. Jam Ali Khan rendered loyal and valuable services in the Zhob and Kej expeditions under the late Sir Robert Sandeman, Agent to the Governor General in Baluchistan, in recognition of which he was made a CIE and KCIE, and was granted a salute of 9 guns.

Sir Robert Sandeman died of pneumonia at Bela in the beginning of 1892, where his remains were interred and a tomb erected. A large garden surrounds the tomb and is maintained by the State at considerable expense.

The present Jam, Mir Kamal Khan, is about 36 years old and was recognised as Jam on the death of his father, Jam Ali Khan, on the 14th January 1896. The affairs of the State and the character of the Jam necessitated the interference of Government, and in compliance with the Jam's own request a Wazir was appointed to assist in carrying on the State affairs for a period of five years.

The period of probation expired in May 1901, and the Jam has been given full powers subject to certain conditions.

The State maintains the following force —

Military Police	91
Infantry	372
Cavalry	32
Guns	5

The revenue of the State is small compared with its area owing to the general barren nature of the country and the large number of mnafis which were granted many years ago.

The land is mostly "khushaba."

Mahamud of Ghazni is said to have passed through the State when invading India. This is said to be evidenced by old ruins found in the country.

The present Chief enjoys a personal salute of 9 guns and is entitled to be received by the Viceroy.

The highest British authority by whom the Jam has hitherto been addressed is the Agent to the Governor General in Baluchistan.

BARODA

The family name of the rulers of the Baroda State is "Gaekwar," which means "herdsman," and doubtless owes its origin to the pastoral calling of the original founders of the house.

The family which is a Maratha one, first rose out of obscurity about 1720 A.D., when Damaji Rao Gaekwar so distinguished himself as to win from Raja Shahu of Satara the post of second in command of the Maratha force with the title of "Shamsheer Bahadur" or the Valiant Sword. On his death he was succeeded by his nephew, Pilaji Rao, who entered into a fast friendship with Trimbak Rao Dabhare, the son and successor of the Senapati (Commander in Chief) Khande Rao Dabhare, with whom he forthwith commenced a marauding career in the fertile plains of Guzerat. Trimbak Rao Dabhare and Pilaji formed a confederacy of the disaffected Maratha Chiefs to oppose the Peshwa Bajirao, but in a battle fought near Baroda in 1731, they were defeated and the Senapati was slain. But Pilaji was confirmed in his former rank of Lieutenant, or Mutalik, with the additional title of "Sena Khas Khel" or Chief of the Special or Private Troops. Pilaji was succeeded by his son, Damaji, during whose long and active career of over 40 years the whole of Guzerat was wrested from the Moghals. The Senapati having proved himself incompetent for the chief command the Dabhare family to which he belonged gave place to the Gaekwars. The possession of Baroda was obtained by Maloji Mahadaji Gaekwar the brother of Pilaji in 1732 and the city has since been held by the Gaekwars as the head-quarters of their dominions. Damaji Gaekwar, with the assistance of the Peshwa Balaji Rao, proceeded with the conquest of Guzerat, and by A.D. 1753 the Moghul Government in Ahmedabad was entirely subverted. He also acquitted himself honourably in the memorable battle of Panipat in 1761, after which he spent the rest of his life in enlarging and consolidating his territories. The death of Damaji in 1768 was the signal for family dissensions which eventually brought the State into its present connection with the British Government. Damaji had three lawful wives, and had male issue by each. The Peshwa whose object was to divide the family, made the half brothers implacable enemies. Fattehsing Rao one of them made an offensive and defensive treaty with the British Government in 1772. But this was virtually annulled two years later on the conclusion of a peace with the Peshwa. Fattehsing Rao died in 1789 and after a series of successions Anand Rao, the eldest son of Govind Rao, was acknowledged as ruler, but proved to be of weak intellect, and the powers of the State were usurped by his illegitimate half brother Kanaji Rao. Kanaji Appaji, the well known minister of Anand Rao made overtures to the British Government to subsidize 2,000 sepoy, if Kanaji were reduced, and Anand Rao saved from the domination of his Arab soldiers, whose demands for payment of arrears had become most menacing, while their fidelity was more than doubtful. The requisite assistance was given. After this, the Gaekwar ceded districts yielding Rs. 7,80,000 for the support of the subsidiary force. These arrangements were consolidated in the treaty of the 21st April 1803, by which also the subsidiary force was increased territories yielding Rs. 11,70,000 were ceded for its support, and the Gaekwar bound himself to submit his pecuniary disputes with the Peshwa to the arbitration of the British Government, and generally, his relations with the British Government were defined. In 1815, in consequence of the murder of an envoy from Baroda, the connection was broken off between the Gaekwar and the Peshwa, and in 1817 a supplementary Treaty was concluded for an increase of the subsidiary force the cession to the British Government of all the rights the Gaekwar had acquired by the farm of the Peshwa's territories in Guzerat, the consolidation of the territories of the British Government and the Gaekwar by exchange of certain districts, the co-operation of the Gaekwar's troops with those of the British Government in time of war, an engagement by the Gaekwar to maintain a contingent of 3,000 horse at the disposal of the British Government and the mutual surrender of criminals Ananda Rao Gaekwar died in 1819, and was succeeded by his younger brother, Sayaji Rao, who in 1820 entered into a further convention with the British, whereby he agreed to send no troops into the Kathiawar and Malu Kantha and to make no demands on his tributaries except through the medium of the British Government, who, on their part, engaged to procure payment of the tribute free of expense to the Gaekwar. In 1847 Sayaji Rao died and was succeeded by his eldest son, Ganpat Rao, who dying without male issue, in 1856, was succeeded by his brother, Khande Rao. During the Mutiny of 1857, Khande Rao rendered loyal service to the British Government, and, as a reward for his loyalty, the payment of rupees three lakhs per annum, for which the Gaekwar Government had hitherto been liable for the maintenance of a body of cavalry, known as the Guzerat Irregular Horse, was remitted. He was also created a GCSI in 1862.

Khande Rao died in 1870, leaving no son, though his younger wife, Maharani Jamna Bai, was at the time of his death enceinte. On the death of Khande Rao, his younger brother, Mulhar Rao, was installed as his successor on the distinct understanding that if Jamna Bai were delivered of a son the child should be recognised as the Gaekwar. The posthumous child being a girl, Mulhar Rao retained his position, but was deposed in 1875, after a famous trial for attempting to poison the Resident, Colonel (afterwards Sir Robert) Phayre, and for misconduct and gross misgovernment. During the trial, the administration of the State was carried on by Sir Richard Meade, KCSI. On Mulhar Rao's deposition Maharani Jamna Bai, as the widow of Khande Rao and in consideration of the latter's services during the Mutiny, was invited to adopt a son. The choice lay between three brothers, descendants of Pilaji Rao, through his son Pratap Rao, who was the younger brother of Damaji, whose line had terminated with Mulhar Rao. The Maharani adopted the second of the three, and he was installed as Gaekwar under the style of Sayaji Rao on the 27th May 1875, he being then 13 years of age.

Simultaneously with Sayaji Rao's accession, Sir T. Madava Rao, KCSI, at that time Dewan at Indore and undoubtedly one of the ablest statesmen that India has produced, was appointed Minister, and lost no time in bringing the administration into good order with the assistance of a number of able officers, most of whom had been trained in the British service. Mr F. A. H. Elliot of the Bombay Civil Service was engaged as tutor to His Highness. His Highness was invested with full ruling powers in 1881, and Sir Madava Rao retired in 1883. Since then the administration has nominally been carried on through a Minister, but His Highness takes a great interest in State affairs, and retains most powers in his own hands.

In 1884, Colonel Sir H (then Major) Melhus was appointed Military Adviser to the Gaekwar for the purpose of reorganising the State's military forces, which now nominally consist of 1,500 Cavalry, 3,182 Infantry, and 93 Artillery, with 7 guns of serviceable nature. The troops, with the possible exception of the Cavalry, are of little military value.

The Gaekwar has in the past occasionally shown an inclination to claim more freedom of action in the matter of armaments than the policy of the Government of India can admit especially in the direction of increasing his regular cavalry beyond sanctioned limits, and supplying his troops with breech loading firearms. These attempts have been consistently opposed. The rule about the supply of breech loading fire-arms has recently been relaxed.

The Gaekwar maintains no Imperial Service troops, and is opposed to the movement. In September 1897, in connection with the frontier risings, His Highness offered to render all assistance in his power, and to place his troops at the disposal of Government. He was thanked, but informed that his offer could not be accepted. During the Boer War 60 horses with line gear complete and suitable for Mounted Infantry were accepted from His Highness and were sent for service in South Africa.

In 1887, the Gaekwar abolished all transit dues in his territory for which he received the thanks of the Viceroy. He has utilised the State funds in constructing several lines of railway to open up his territory, and his railway policy has, on the whole, been satisfactory.

In 1900 or, His Highness the Gaekwar having in view the depreciation of the Bahashai Currency, the constant fluctuation in the rate of exchange between the Bahashai and the British Indian Currency, and the serious impediments to trade and losses to all classes of his subjects resulting therefrom, decided under arrangements with the Government of India to substitute, for a term of not less than 50 years, British Indian silver coinage throughout his territories by withdrawing from circulation Bahashai rupees and exchanging them for British rupees.

The Gaekwar's frequent and prolonged absences from his State on visits to Europe were the subject of unfavourable comment by Lord Lansdowne and the Secretary of State for India and his conduct on various occasions, notably during his visit to England in 1892, led to the conclusion that he entertained exaggerated ideas of his own prerogative and importance. His last visits abroad took place in May 1900, when he visited Europe owing to the illness of Her Highness the Maharani, and from April 1905 till November 1906, when he travelled in Europe and America.

His Highness first married, in 1880, a Tanjore lady of rank, named Chimna Bai Saheba who died in 1885. From his marriage there were two daughters both of whom died in infancy, and one son, Fattehsing Rao, who died in September 1908 at the age of 25, leaving two daughters and one son Pratap Rao, who is the heir-apparent. In 1886 the Maharaja married Chimnabai Saheba of the Ghatge family of Dewas in Central India. By her he has three sons and one daughter.

His Highness went to Delhi to be present at the Proclamation of the Queen as Empress of India on the 1st January 1877, and on that occasion he was invested with the title of 'Farzand-i-Khas-i-Daulat-i-Inglishta' or "Favoured Son of the British Empire." He also attended the Imperial Coronation Durbar held at Delhi on 1st January 1903. His full name and titles are—His Highness Farzand-i-Khas-i-Daulat-i-Inglishta Maharaja Sir Sayaji Rao Gaekwar, Sena Khas-i-Khel Shamsber Bahadur, G.C.S.I. He is entitled to a salute of 21 guns, and is also entitled to be received and visited by His Excellency the Viceroy.

In November 1875, the Prince of Wales, now His Most Gracious Majesty the King Emperor, visited India and went to Baroda, where he was the guest of the present Gaekwar.

Lords Dufferin and Elgin paid official visits to Baroda during their Viceroyalties. Lord Curzon also came to Baroda in August 1900, to inspect the then famine-stricken districts in Guzerat but the Gaekwar was then absent in England and His Excellency's visit was private.

The highest British authority by whom the Gaekwar has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor General. The form of the commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—"My honoured and valued friend,—I desire to express the high consideration which I entertain for Your Highness, and to subscribe myself Your Highness's sincere friend." ## BHUTAN

Bhutan extends for a distance of approximately 190 miles east and west along the southern slopes of the central portion of the Himalayas between the 89th and 92nd degree of east longitude and for 90 miles north and south between the 27th and 28th degrees of north latitude.

2 The country formerly belonged to a tribe called Tek pa. About the middle of the seventeenth century some Tibetan sepoys were sent from Kham, the eastern province of Tibet, by orders of the Lhasa Government to look at the country. A fight ensued, the Tek pas gave way and retreated to the plain with the exception of a few who remained in a menial capacity with the Bhutanese. The Kham ba sepoys settled in the country and formed a colony without organisation or Government.

3 A travelling Lama, Shap trug Lha-pa, who subsequently visited the country, acquired such influence that he was eventually made ruler under the title of Dharma Raja. Afterwards he was driven out of the country by another Lama, who was not bound by vows of celibacy, called Dup gein who became the Dharma Raja. Dup gein on his accession to the Dharma Rajaship separated from his family and took vows of celibacy. His descendants who are still distinguished as the clan of Cho-je, the Chief family of Lamas in Bhutan, are exempted from all taxation and payment of revenue and are entitled to special marks of distinction in Bhutan. Dup gein before his death stated that, if his body were preserved he would appear again. His body is to the present day kept in the fort of Punakha in a silver tomb. His incarnation re-appeared at Lhasa three years after his death and was duly installed as the Dharma Raja. This Dharma Raja, considering that temporal and spiritual powers were incompatible, confined himself entirely to the latter and appointed a minister to wield the former. This minister by degrees became the temporal Ruler of Bhutan with the title of Deb Raja.

4 Early in the eighteenth century the Bhutanese invaded Sikkim and held the country for five or six years and eventually annexing the Dumsong Fort and the tract of country which is now the Kalimpong Sub-Division of the Darjeeling District.

5 The British Government first came into contact with Bhutan in 1773 when an expedition was sent to relieve the Raja of Kuch Behar from Bhutanese encroachments. By a Treaty of peace concluded in 1774, the Bhutanese agreed to pay a tribute of 5 Tanga horses to the British Government for the possession of the Chitachotta province, to deliver up the Raja of Kuch Behar and never to make any incursions into British territory or molest the riots in any way.

6 From this time till 1826, when the British occupied Assam, there was little intercourse with Bhutan. After the occupation of Assam in consequence of a series of aggressions on British territory by the Bhutanese, the British Government decided to annex the Duars, or passes at the foot of the Bhutan hills. The seven Assam Duars, comprising about 1,600 square miles of country, were annexed in 1841, and a sum of Rs10,000 is paid annually to Bhutan as compensation.

7 Further aggressions on the portion of the country lying along the Bengal section of the Duars resulted in Sir Ashley Eden's Mission of 1863. The Mission was grossly insulted and a dishonourable treaty extorted from the British Envoy. The Military operations which followed resulted in the defeat of the Bhutanese and the conclusion of the Treaty of 1865 under which the Bhutan Darbar formally ceded the eighteen Duars of Bengal and Assam and agreed to liberate all kidnapped British subjects, the British Government paying in return an annual subsidy, commencing at Rs25,000 and rising to Rs50,000 subject to good behaviour on the part of Bhutan.

8 With the exception of a raid in 1880 near Buxa and some outrages committed in the Kamrup district in Assam in 1889 which led to the temporary withholding of the annual subsidy and the establishment of a police outpost at Kakolabari nothing of importance has since occurred, and the relations of Government with Bhutan up to the present time have remained friendly. In 1892 the delimitation of the old boundary between Jalpaiguri and Bhutan was brought to a satisfactory conclusion.

9 The Commissioner of the Rajshahi Division was appointed Political Agent for Bhutan in January 1896.

10 The subsidy is ordinarily paid at Buxa to the representative of the Bhutan Darbar by the Deputy Commissioner of Jalpaiguri, but in 1904 it was paid at Phari, in Tibet, under the supervision of Colonel Younghusband, C.I.E., (now Sir Francis Younghusband K.C.I.E.) then British Commissioner, Tibet Frontier Matters, instead of at Buxa. One Bhutanese resides as Agent at Buxa and another at Kalimpong in the Darjeeling district. To both these Agents allowances are paid by the British Government.

11 The late Deb Raja, Pang Sang ye Dor-je Yam pe Lo pen, a nominee of the Tongsa Penlop died in December 1902 and was succeeded in 1904 by Cho le Tul-ku, another nominee of the Tongsa Penlop.

12 During the latter part of 1903, the Tongsa Penlop was invited by the Government of Bengal to meet the Commissioner of Rajshahi. When correspondence was proceeding with him on the subject, the management of the political affairs of the Bhutan State was transferred to Colonel (now Sir Francis) Younghusband, under the direct control of the Foreign Department of the Government of India. A friendly meeting took place at Phari, in Tibet between Colonel Younghusband and the Thim bu Jong pen, who was sent by the Tongsa Penlop, and the co-operation of the Bhutan Darbar was secured in making a survey of a direct route to the Chumbi Valley through Bhutan from India.

13 In 1904 Ugyen Wangchuk, the Tongsa Penlop accompanied the British Mission to Lhasa. To mark the appreciation of the British Government of the friendly attitude of the Bhutanese, the King Emperor was pleased to make the Tongsa Penlop a Knight Commander of the India Empire. Mr White, the then Political Officer in Sikkim was, in consequence, deputed to Punakha in March 1905 to present to Sir Ugyen Wangchuk the insignia of the Order. Mr White's Mission was accorded a most hospitable welcome. After the close of the Tibet Mission the political relations between the Government of India and the Bhutan Darbar were placed in the hands of the Political Officer in Sikkim.

14 In December 1905, Sir Ugyen Wangchuk visited Calcutta as the special representative of the Dharma and Deb Rajas and was received by His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India on the 27th December 1905. His Excellency paid him a return visit on the 28th December 1905. A salute of 15 guns was fired in his honour.

On the 2nd January 1906, Sir Ugyen Wangchuk was received by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales and His Royal Highness paid him a return visit on the 5th January 1906

15 In 1907, Sir Ugyen Wangchuk was elected hereditary Maharaja of Bhutan and was installed on the guddi on the 17th December 1907. Mr White, the then Political Officer in Sikkim, was present. The Tongsa Penlop has not however obtained absolute power as the Paro Penlop and other leading feudal Chiefs still retained considerable powers

16 The fighting strength of the Bhutanese, according to Sir Ugyen Wangchuk, is 9,950. This force consists of the followers of all the Bhutanese Chiefs. Their arms consist of a few modern sporting rifles, matchlocks, bows and arrows and single edged swords

17. The trade of Bhutan with British India is as yet small. The total of exports and imports during the last three years amounted to —

title

Hereditary title is Rs. a.

BARAUNDHA (PATHAR KACHHAR)

The ruling family is very ancient and belongs to the Raghubansi division of Rajputs. The present line traces its descent from Gauriband, a Chief of Baraundha, who died in 1549 A. D. The Chief received the title of 'Raja Bahadur' in 1877. Raja Raghubar Dayal Singh died without heirs, real or adopted, in 1885 and Raja Bhakur Prasad Singh was selected for succession to the gadi from a collateral branch. He was born in 1847 and died on the 8th July 1909. The question of succession is under consideration.

The Chief is entitled to a salute of 9 guns and to admission to a private Durbar of His Excellency the Viceroy.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Agent to the Governor General in Central India. The form of the commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — 'My friend—I remain your sincere friend'

BHAISAUNDA

For history see 'Paldeo'

The present Jagirdar, Chaubey Chhatarsal Prasad was born in May 1878 and succeeded to the Jagir in October 1885. He was educated at the Rajkumar College at Nowgong. He is intelligent and educated but inclined to hold an undue estimate of his own importance and rank. During the minority of the Jagirdar, the estate was administered by a hamdar under the general supervision of the Political Agent. The management was handed over to the Jagirdar in 1895. He received the title of Rao Bahadur on the 25th June 1909.

The highest British authority by whom the Jagirdar has hitherto been addressed is the Agent to the Governor General in Central India. The form of the commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — 'My friend—I remain, your sincere friend'

JASO

The family belongs to the Bundela clan of Rajputs. In 1807 Jaso was considered subordinate to Aja garh, but after a protracted enquiry a separate sanad was granted to the Jagirdar in 1817.

The present Jagirdar, Jagat Raj who was born in July 1860 retired voluntarily from managing the affairs of the Jagir and adopted the style of a religious recluse in 1900 and the Government of India then directed that the management of the Jagir should be carried on by the Political Agent through a Diwan, but did not consider it necessary to formally depose Jagat Raj. Jagat Raj lives at Richul, a village in the Jaso Jagir, of which previous to his accession to the gadi, he was the 'Ubaridar'. Kuar Girwar Singh his only son, who was born in 1891, is a student at the Daly College at Indore.

The highest British authority by whom the Jagirdar has hitherto been addressed is the Agent to the Governor General in Central India. The form of the commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — 'My friend—I remain, your sincere friend'

KAMTA RAJAULA

The Jagir was originally granted in 1812 to Gopal Lal Kayasth, family vakil of the Kalinjar Chaubeys.

(See history of the Paldeo Jagir)

The present Jagirdar, Rao Ram Prasad, was born in 1870 and succeeded to the Jagir in January 1892. He is fairly intelligent, but too poor to administer his small estate efficiently.

The State was originally a dependency of Panna but, after the British occupation of Bundelkhand, Thakur Durjan Singh was confirmed as Ruler of Maihar in 1806 on executing a deed of allegiance to the British Government.

The late Chief, Raja Rughubir Singh, was born in March 1844, succeeded his father in 1852, and was invested with the management of his State in 1865. In 1869 the title of "Raja" was conferred upon him and his heirs in recognition of the liberality displayed by him in 1863 in remitting transit duties and in ceding land for railway purposes. The present Chief, Raja Jadubir Singh, was born in August 1864 and succeeded his father on the gadi in March 1908.

BASODA (HYDERGARH)

The Chiefship which was originally a part of Korwai was formed in 1753 by a grant of country to Ahsanulla Khan, second son of Diler Khan. The Chiefship is feudatory to Gwalior, though it pays no tribute to that Durbar. In his relations with the Durbar the Basoda Chief receives the countenance and support of the Political Agent in Bhopal.

The present Chief, Nawab Hyder Ali Khan was born in January 1854, and succeeded his father, Nawab Umar Ali Khan, in June 1896.

BHOPAL.

Bhopal is the principal Muhammadan State in Central India and ranks next in importance to Hyderabad among the Muhammadan States in India. The ruling family was founded by Dost Muhammad, an Afghan of the Mirazi Khel clan who came to India in 1709 during the reign of Farukshir, and obtained possession of the Berasia pargana in Malwa. He was nominated superintendent of the district of Berasia, and he took advan tage of the revolutions which followed the death of the Emperor, to establish his independent authority in Bhopal and the neighbouring country. He died about 1740 A.D. and was succeeded by his legitimate minor son Sultan Muhammad Khan, but he was compelled to abdicate in favour of Yar Muhammad, an elder but illegitimate son, whose cause was espoused by the Nizam. Yar Muhammad Khan had four sons, by the eldest of whom Faiz Muhammad Khan he was succeeded.

At this time Peshwa Baji Rao, while returning from Delhi, demanded in the name of the Emperor the restoration of the territories usurped by the Pathans of Bhopal and the Nawab was compelled by treaty to relinquish all his possessions in Malwa except a few towns, being confirmed by the Peshwa in his remaining possessions in Gondwara.

Yasin Muhammad succeeded his brother Faiz Muhammad Khan and was succeeded by his brother Hayat Muhammad Khan, during whose weak administration the real power remained in the hands of his ministers.

Towards the close of the eighteenth century, the Bhopal territories were overrun by plundering bands of Pindaris and were also invaded by Raghuji Bhonslé. At this time Wazir Muhammad, son of the Nawab's cousin, Sharif Muhammad Khan, who, when a mere youth, had fled from Bhopal after an unsuccessful rebellion (in which his father had been killed) against the power of the minister, returned to Bhopal as a soldier of fortune. He was the means of saving his country from destruction by the Marathas, and he became the founder of the branch of the Bhopal family which has since ruled in the State.

Towards the close of 1813 Bhopal was besieged by the united armies of the Maharaja Scindia and Raghuji Bhonslé, but Wazir Muhammad made a gallant defence during a siege of nine months and the Marathas were compelled to retire unsuccessful.

Wazir Muhammad died in 1816 and was succeeded by his second son, Nazar Muhammad, who was married to Kudsia Begam, daughter of Ghous Muhammad.

At the commencement of the Pindari war in 1817, the British Government formed a close alliance with Bhopal which Nazar Muhammad gladly accepted. A formal treaty was concluded in 1818, by which the State was guaranteed. Nazar Muhammad agreed to furnish a contingent and he received five districts in Malwa as a reward for his services.

Nazar Muhammad Khan was accidentally killed by the discharge of a pistol by the hand of his brother-in-law Faujdar Khan. He left one daughter, the Sikandar Begam, who was married to Jahangir Muhammad Khan. Nawab Jahangir Muhammad Khan died in 1844 leaving one daughter, the Shah Jahan Begam, as the lawful successor to the masnad of Bhopal.

The Shah Jahan Begam voluntarily resigned her right to rule during her mother's lifetime and accordingly the Sikandar Begam was proclaimed Ruler of Bhopal in 1859. Sikandar Begam was always steadfastly attached to the British Government. For her services during the mutiny of 1857 she received in 1860 a grant of the pargana of Berasia, and in 1851 she was created a Knight Grand Commander of the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.

In 1862 the Government of India granted a sanad guaranteeing the succession to the State according to Muhammadan Law, in the event of the failure of natural heirs.

Sikandar Begam died in 1868 and Shah Jehan Begam then assumed the administration. At her request her daughter, Sultan Jahan Begam, was expressly recognised by the British Government as her heir.

In 1877 the Order of the Imperial Crown was conferred on Her Highness the Shah Jahan Begam.

On the occasion of Lord Lansdowne's visit to Bhopal in 1891, Her Highness the Begam and her successors were exempted from the obligation to present nazars at interviews with the Viceroy. The Begam is entitled to a salute of 19 guns but within her own territories the salute is 21 guns.

Nawab Shah Jahan Begam died in June 1901 and Nawab Sultan Jahan Begam, who was born in July 1858, was immediately recognised by the Government of India as Ruler of Bhopal in succession to her mother.

Sultan Jahan Begam married, in February 1875 Myan Ahmad Ali Khan known as the Sultan Dulha, who died in January 1902. Her Highness has three sons—Nawab Nasurulla Khan, Sahibzada Obaidulla Khan, and Sahibzada Hamidulla Khan. Nawab Nasurulla Khan the heir apparent has two sons, the first of whom named Muhammad Habibullah Khan, was born in December 1903, and the second named Muhammad Rafiqullah Khan, in May 1905.

Her Highness was made G.C.I.E. in June 1904.

His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales invested Her Highness with the insignia during his visit to Indore in November 1905. Her Highness was present at the Durbar held by His Royal Highness at Indore in November 1905 and was also among the Chiefs assembled to meet His Excellency the Viceroy at Agra in January 1907.

The Begam's 2nd son Sahibzada Obaidulla Khan was appointed as an Honorary Aide de Camp to His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General in December 1906 and received the honorary rank of Captain in the Army in January 1909.

The troops in Bhopal consist of —

Imperial Service Lancers	400
Regular troops, State Cavalry and Infantry	742
Irregular	752

with a total of 82 guns, of which 45 are reported to be serviceable

The highest British authority by whom Her Highness has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor General. The form of the commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — "My esteemed friend—I remain, with much consideration, Your Highness's sincere friend." The crest used is gold Kharita bag Kamkhwab (Gold and silk brocade) String (Dori) Nimzar (Gold and silk thread)

KHILCHIPUR

The Khilchipur branch of the Khichi clan of Rajputs was founded by Ugra Sen in the year 1544. The representative of the family accorded allegiance to the Maratha rulers, and became tributary to Maharaja Scindia in the year 1793. In 1819 the British Government at the instance of the Gwalior Durbar decided the succession of Sher Singh.

Sher Singh was succeeded in 1869 by his nephew Amar Singh. In 1899 Amar Singh was succeeded by Rao Bhawan Singh who died in January 1908. Bhawan Singh was succeeded by his son, Durjan Sal Singh, who is a minor receiving education at the Daly College, Indore. The State is managed by a Superintendent under the direct orders of the Political Agent in Bhopal.

The title of "Rao Bahadur" was conferred on the Chief of Khilchipur in April 1873 as a hereditary distinction by the Government of India.

The Chief pays a tribute of Hali Rs. 13 138 to the British Government under the existing stipulation with the Gwalior Durbar. The Chief receives a salute of 9 guns, and possesses 2 guns for saluting purposes with 13 gunners. The late Chief was present at the Durbar held by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at Indore in November 1905.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Agent to the Governor General in Central India. The form of the commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — "My friend—I remain your sincere friend."

KORWAI

The Chiefship was founded by an Afghan, named Muhammad Diler Khan, of the Feroz Khel. He first entered the service of the Raja of Datia in Bundelkhand, and afterwards, about 1726 A.D., that of the Raja of Basoda and, on the death of the Chief of Korwai, he seized the State.

Korwai, during the decline of the Moghal Empire, obtained power and dominion equal, if not superior in extent, to that of Bhopal, but suffered great spoliation at the hands both of the Marathas and Pindaris. In 1818 the Chief applied to the British authorities for protection against the oppression of the Maharaja Scindia's local officials in the neighbouring districts and it was arranged that he should remain in the undisturbed possession of his territory.

Owing to its heavy indebtedness, the State was taken under management on behalf of Nawab Munawar Ali Khan in 1896. Nawab Munawar Ali Khan died in 1896 his younger brother, Yakub Ali Khan, who was born in September 1876, succeeded to the State and married his brother's widow in 1897. Yakub Ali Khan died in October 1906 and was succeeded by his son, Sarwar Ali Khan, who was born in December 1901. As the present Nawab is a minor, a joint Superintendent has been appointed for Korwai and Pathari.

In 1907 the Government of India advanced to the State a sum of Rs. 2,00,000 at 4 per cent for the purpose of paying off Seth Mulchand of Ajmer, who used to take interest at 6½ per cent.

The State pays Rs. 220, Government Currency, a year as tanka to the Thakur of Agra Barkhera.

The Korwai State has only two serviceable guns and no other Military force.

MAKSUDANGARH

This estate, which originally formed part of the estate of Raghugarh, was granted to Raja Baiji Sal, a member of the Raghugarh family, about the year 1816, by Colonel Jean Baptiste on the part of Maharaja Scindia. It does not possess a British guarantee. Since the establishment of the Bhopal Agency however, the internal administration of the estate has invariably been conducted under the supervision of the Political Agent in Bhopal.

The late Chief Raja Raghunath Singh was born in August 1849 and succeeded to the estate in 1864. Owing to the incapacity of the Chief and the death of the Regent the estate was taken under management in 1880. Raja Raghunath Singh died in May 1907, leaving no heir natural or adopted. Orders regarding the succession have not yet been passed. The estate is still administered by a Superintendent under the orders of the Political Agent.

The estate pays no tribute to any Durbar.

MUHAMMADGARH

This State was originally part of Korwai, and was given as a portion to a younger son of the Chief in 1753. It pays no tribute to any State and is directly dependent on the British Government. The present Chief, Nawab Muhammad Hatim Kuli Khan, was born in September 1864 and succeeded his father, Nawab Hafiz Kuli Khan, in November 1896.

The amount of debt payable by the State is estimated at about Rs. 13,000.

The Nawab having shown himself incapable of managing the State and having incurred large debts, made over the administration to the Political Agent in Bhopal by whom it is now carried on through a specially selected Kamdar.

NARSINGHGARH

Parasram the founder of the Rajput State of Narsinghgarh, succeeded his father, Ajab Singh, in 1668 as minister to the Rana of Rajgarh. In 1681 he compelled the Rana to divide his territory with him. Narsinghgarh thus became a separate Chiefship.

In 1819 Chaim Singh succeeded his father, Sobhag Singh, fifth in descent from Parasram, who had become imbecile. Sobhag Singh recovered and was again entrusted with the rule as Chief of Narsinghgarh. Owing to a difference with the Political Agent at Sehore, he attacked the British forces near that place and was killed in the engagement. After his death in 1827 Chaim Singh's widow adopted Hanwant Singh who died in March 1873 when his grandson Partab Singh was recognised as his successor. On this occasion the Maharaja Holkar demanded succession nazarana, but his claim was not admitted by Government.

Partab Singh died without issue in April 1890 and was succeeded by his uncle Mahtab Singh. Mahtab Singh died in November 1895.

The present Chief His Highness Raja Arjun Singh (a cousin of the late Chief), was born on the 10th January 1887. He was educated first at the Daly College, Indore, and then at the Mayo College, Ajmer, and also received training for a year in the Imperial Cadet Corps. In May 1907 he married a daughter of His Highness the Raja of Sailana. He was invested with ruling powers in March 1909.

The hereditary title of "Raja" was conferred on the Chief and his heirs by the Government of India in May 1872.

Narsinghgarh pays a tribute of Salim Shahi Rs. 85,000 to the Maharaja Holkar.

The Chief receives a tanka of Hali Rs. 1,200 from the Maharaja Scindia and another of Rs. 5,102 from Dewas.

The Chief is entitled to a salute of 11 guns.

The military establishment maintained by the State consists of (including irregulars) 38 cavalry, 216 infantry, 2 guns classed as serviceable and 20 gunners.

The highest British authority by whom the Raja has hitherto been addressed is the Agent to the Governor General in Central India. The form of the commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—"My friend—I remain, Your Highness's sincere friend."

PATHARI (BANKA)

The Nawab of Pathari is a descendant of Dost Muhammad the founder of the Bhopal family. He formerly held certain villages in the district of Raghugarh, of which he was deprived by the Maharaja Scindia. But in 1794 the estate was restored to Hyder Muhammad Khan through the mediation of the British Government. The present Nawab Muhammad Abdul Karim Khan, was born in 1850, and succeeded his father, Hyder Muhammad Khan, in 1859. He pays no tribute to any State.

Owing to the gross mismanagement and extravagance of the Nawab the estate was taken under management in 1895. It is now being administered by a Superintendent under the supervision of the Political Agent. The unpaid balance of the debt is Rs 20,766.

The highest British authority by whom the Nawab has hitherto been addressed is the Agent to the Governor General in Central India. The form of the commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows:—"My friend.—I remain, your sincere friend

RAJGARH

The power of the Umats, a branch of the Parmora Rajputs, was established in the district known as Umatwara in the seventeenth century by two cousins, named Mohan Singh and Parasram, who assumed the titles of "Rawat" and "Diwan" and made a division of their possessions. The ancestors of the family who were proprietors of large herds of camels came from Mewar in A D 1442. Out of the division above mentioned, which took place in 1681, arose the separate Chiefships of Rajgarh and Narsinghgarh.

On the Maratha conquest of Malwa about 1770, the Umats were compelled to submit in common with other States and the Rawat became tributary to the Maharaja Scindia. In 1818 the Chief in possession of Rajgarh was Nawal Singh who succeeded to the gaddi by the assassination of his brother.

On the establishment of the British authority in Central India, the mediation of the British Government was exercised to effect an arrangement for the payment of the tribute due to the Maharaja Scindia. Another agreement was mediated between the Rawat and the Puar of Dewas under which the Rawat receives an annual sum of Bhopal Rs 5,102 from Dewas.

In 1831, Rawat Nawal Singh committed suicide and was succeeded by his nephew Moti Singh. In 1871, Moti Singh openly announced his conversion to the Mussalman religion and took the name of Muhammad Abdul Wasch Khan. He received the title of "Nawab" from the British Government in 1872, and died in October 1880. He was succeeded by his son, Bakhtawar Singh, who died in November 1882, and was succeeded by his son Balbahadur Singh. Balbahadur Singh died in January 1902 and was succeeded by his uncle, Bane Singh. Raja Bane Singh received the title of KCIE in January 1908, and has one son named Kuar Bir Indra Singh, who is receiving education at the Daly College, Indore.

In November 1885, on the occasion of the Viceroy's visit to Indore, the hereditary title of "Raja" was conferred on the Chief in substitution for "Rawat", and the Chief was addressed by the Viceroy for the first time on the occasion of Her late Majesty's Jubilee, 1887.

The Raja pays a tribute of 85,000 Chandori rupees to the Maharaja Scindia and also 1,050 Kota rupees to the Jhalawar Chief. He receives from the Maharaja Scindia 14½ lakhs of rupees 3 187 annually.

The Chief is entitled to a salute of 11 guns. The Chief was present at the Durbar held by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at Indore in November 1905.

The military establishment maintained by the State consists of 102 infantry, 30 cavalry, 230 armed police, and 4 serviceable guns with 7 gunners.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor General. The form of the commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows:—"My friend.—I remain Your Highness's sincere friend." The crest used is gold Khariha bag Kamkhab (Gold and silk brocade) String (Dori). Nuzar (Gold and silk thread).

ALI RAJPUR

The early history of the State is very uncertain, but it appears to have been founded by Anand Deo Rathor about 1440. When the British power was established in Malwa, this State was under the control of an adventurer named Musafir Makrani. This man was recognised as Manager of the State during the minority of Jaswant Singh, posthumous son of Partab Singh, who had died prior to the British settlement of Malwa. An engagement was mediated in 1818 between Musafir Makrani and the Dhar Government, under which customs duties in Ali Rajpur were made over to Dhar in view of payment of tribute. This arrangement proved to be unsatisfactory, and, in view thereof and with a view to promote commerce with Guzerat, it was arranged, through the mediation of the British Government, that the State should pay to the British Government for Dhar the sum of Rs 10,000 Hali currency. The tribute having been thus alienated from Dhar, all supremacy of that State as regards Ali Rajpur ceased.

In March 1862 Jaswant Singh died leaving a will by which he divided the State between his two sons. The neighbouring Chiefs were consulted as to whether this partition should be admitted, and it was at last decided by the British Government that the will should be set aside and Gangadeo, the eldest son, should be recognised as heir. In 1881 owing to the lax administration of the then Diwan, and more particularly by reason of his interference with the hereditary customs of the Bhil Patels and Tarvis, the Bhil population was in a very discontented state. Thakur Jit Singh, who had objected to the nomination by the Government of India of Bijai Singh as Chief, took advantage of this discontent and induced the Bhil and Bhilala leaders, together with many Makranis to rise against the Local Government. The towns of Nampur, Bhabra, and Chaktala were looted and Ali Rajpur itself was threatened, but with the assistance of the Malwa Bhil Corps the disturbance was put down and the leaders were shot or captured.

Bijai Singh died in August 1890 before he was invested with powers. His cousin, Partap Singh, the present Chief, was selected by the Government of India to succeed him. Rana Partap Singh was born in 1881 and was educated at the Daly College at Indore.

The Chief exercises powers in the State subject to the submission, for the approval of the Hon'ble the Agent to the Governor General, of the State Budget for so long as the State remains indebted to Government. The Chief exercises criminal and civil powers in the State except as regards heinous offences which are reported to the Political Agent who tries the more important cases himself but has the discretionary power to make over to the Durbar for trial such cases as may seem advisable.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 9 guns and is entitled to be received by the Viceroy, but is not entitled to be visited by him. The Chief was present at the Durbar held by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at Indore in November 1905. The family is of Rajput (Rathor) extraction.

Maulvi Sayed Ahmed is the Diwan of the State. The State suffered severely from famine; the population, which is almost entirely Bhil, showing a loss of about 30 per cent. as compared with the census of 1891. The military forces consist of 17 cavalry, 1195 armed police, and 4 guns classed as serviceable.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Agent to the Governor General in Central India. The form of the commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows:—"My friend—I remain your sincere friend."

BARWANI.

The Ranas of this State are Sisodia Rajputs of the Udaipur family who separated from the parent stock about the fourteenth century. Their country was originally of considerable extent, but was devastated by the Marathas and, at the time of Sir John Malcolm's settlement of Malwa, only a strip of the Satpura range with the low lands on either side remained to them. They were not, however, tributaries to any of the Malwa Chiefs.

Owing to the incapacity of the Chief, the State was under British management from 1861 to 1873 and from 1880 to 1886, when full administrative authority was conceded to the then Rana, Indrajit Singh, on the distinct understanding that the measure was tentative, and that, should it fail, it would be necessary to revert to the former arrangement. Indrajit Singh died in December 1894 and was succeeded by his son, the present Rana Ranjit Singh, who was born in December 1888.

Rana Ranjit Singh completed his studies in the Mayo College in May 1907. He passed the Post Diploma or Administrative Class course and was head of the College at the time he left. He is now learning administrative work of his State under the tutelage of Captain H. K. Barr, Central India Horse.

Since Ranjit Singh's accession, the administration of the State has been carried on by a Superintendent directly under the orders of the Political Agent. Thakur Bharat Singh, cousin of the Chief, has been selected for the post of Superintendent of the State. The revenue, which in 1892 was only two lakhs of rupees, now exceeds four lakhs. Barwan has a considerable forest area which forms an increasingly valuable source of revenue for the State.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 9 guns and is entitled to be received by the Viceroy but not to be visited by him. The local military forces are insignificant; no Imperial Service Troops are maintained.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Agent to the Governor General in Central India. The form of the commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — 'My friend—I remain your sincere friend.'

DHAR

The Dhar State ranks first in the Bhopawar Agency.

In the early part of the last century the State suffered severely at the hands of the Maharaja Scindia and the Maharaja Holkar, and it was only rescued from extinction by the British settlement of Malwa. By the treaty of 1819, the State was taken under the protection of the British Government, and several districts which had been lost were recovered and restored to it. The State continued in 1857 and was confiscated, but was subsequently restored to the late Chief, Anand Rao Puar, who was entrusted with the administration in 1864, and died in July 1893. He received the title of "Maharaja" as a personal distinction in 1877. He was also made K.C.S.I. The Maharaja was created C.I.E. in 1883. The present Chief, Udayi Rao Puar, who is an adopted son of the late Maharaja, was born in September 1886 and was educated at the Daly College, Indore, and under a European tutor.

The Chief received powers to administer his State in December 1907, subject to a general obligation to consult the Political Agent in all important matters and to obtain his consent before making any important changes in measures which have been introduced during the minority. The Chief selected, as his Diwan, Babu T. Chhajuram, who had been Assistant Superintendent and Revenue Officer during the latter portion of the minority. The Diwan received the title of Rao Bahadur on the 25th June 1909.

The State maintains no Imperial Service Troops. The local force consists of 98 cavalry, 212 infantry, 332 armed Police, and 5 guns. Lord Northbrook, Viceroy and Governor General, visited Dhar in 1875. Lord Curzon, Viceroy and Governor General, visited Dhar in November 1902. The Chief enjoys a salute of 15 guns, and is entitled to be received and visited by the Viceroy. The Chief was present at the Durbar held by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at Indore in November 1905.

In 1886 the Government of India acknowledged the jurisdiction (civil and criminal) of the Chief of Dhar over the guaranteed Thakurs within his State in all cases where such jurisdiction could be fairly proved to have become an established prescriptive right by reason of its long continuance. As a result of the investigation, the Durbar's right to exercise civil and criminal jurisdiction in all the guaranteed estates has been recognised.

In 1904 agreements in connection with the long standing dispute between the Durbar and the four guaranteed Thakurs (Mukban, Kachhi Baroda, Dotria, and Bakhigarh) regarding the collection of sayar revenues was arrived at.

The Durbar, as a matter of grace, has granted to all the guaranteed Bhumias, subordinate to it, certain forest privileges for local use, but has reserved to itself all other prerogatives in the matter.

As regards the Bhumias who hold under guarantee from Dhar, the Durbar, except in respect to the land tax, has full sovereign rights

The Durbar has granted certain civil and criminal powers to their subordinate Thakurs and Bhumias, guaranteed and unguaranteed, in respect of their holdings from the State

The Durbar adopted the British rupee as the sole legal tender of the State in 1894

The State has abolished customs duties and inaugurated in lieu thereof town or octroi duty

The Puar family, originally an off shoot of the great Rajput clan, was one of the most distinguished in early Maratha history Anand Rao Puar is generally considered as the founder of the principality which, with the right to receive tribute from certain Rajput Chiefs, was assigned to him by the first Baj Rao Peshwa (circa 1725-30)

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor General The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — 'My friend—I remain, Your Highness's sincere friend The crest used is gold Kharita bag Kamkhwab (Gold and silk brocade) String (Don) Nimzar (Gold and silk thread)

JHABUA

Jhabua was the principal guaranteed Chief under the old Bhil Agency and prior to the settlement of Malwa was tributary to Maharaja Holkar The family are Rathor Rajputs descended from one of the former Rajas of Jodhpur, and have been established in this part of Central India for about three centuries

There are some twenty families of rank (Umraos) in the State who pay Rs 15,000 as tribute to the Maharaja Holkar and Rs 5,000 to their own Chief

In 1871 an exchange of land was effected between Jhabua and Indore as to the parganas of Thandla and Pitlanad in which formerly joint jurisdiction was exercised Under this arrangement Thandla remained with Jhabua and Pitlanad with Indore As compensation for the share of customs duty formerly accruing to Indore in these territories, Jhabua pays annually to Indore the sum of Salim Shah Rs 1,278 A further sum of Rs 1,400 is also paid to equalise the revenue of some of the transferred villages

The present Chief, Raja Uday Singh who was adopted by the late Raja Gopal Singh from the Khanwasa family a tributary of Jhabua, was born in 1876 and succeeded to the Chiefship in April 1895 Gopal Singh was granted full powers in his State in 1898 The Chief married the sister of the Chief of Sunth Rampur (Panch Mahals) in May 1907

The Chief's jurisdiction is limited and all cases of heinous offences are reported to the Political Agent, who tries all more important cases in his Court but has the discretionary power of making over to the Durbar for trial such cases as may seem advisable

The local forces consist of 40 cavalry, 168 infantry 75 armed Police, and 4 guns almost unserviceable The Chief is entitled to a salute of 11 guns He is also entitled to be received in separate Durbar by His Excellency the Viceroy but is not entitled to a return visit The Chief was present at the Durbar held by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at Indore in November 1905

Owing to the disastrous effect of the famine of 1899-1900 on the finances, it has been found necessary to curtail the powers of the Chief who is required to abide by the advice of his Dewan, who is appointed with the approval of the Political Agent and also to submit the annual budget for the approval of the Agent to the Governor General The Chief has considerable natural intelligence and takes great interest in the administration of his State but his good qualities are to some extent nullified by a suspicious nature and an exaggerated idea of his own position

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Agent to the Governor-General in Central India The form of the commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — 'My friend—I remain Your Highness's sincere friend'

JOBAT

The ruling family are Rathor Rajputs and are an off shoot of the Ali Rajpur family

The late Chief died in August 1897 and was succeeded by his son, Indarjit Singh, the present Rana, who was born in March 1889

Indarjit Singh, in September 1907, left the Daly College Indore, where he had been studying, and he is now working in the State under the tutelage of the Superintendent, Munshi Muhammad Akbar Khan, and is acquiring some knowledge of administration

This small State, which is populated almost entirely by Bhils, is now under superintendence, the direct administration being carried on by Munshi Muhammad Akbar Khan under the orders and control of the Political Agent

The State suffered very severely from famine, and it will be some time before it can recover its former prosperity

The Chief enjoys no salute and is not entitled to be received by the Viceroy in separate Durbar The Chief married the daughter of the Raja of Dehi, a tributary of the Indore State, in May 1907

GENERAL.

Bundelkhand was originally held by the Chandelas. The Gaharnar tribe, whom other Rajputs do not admit as being true Rajputs, is the origin of the Bundelas. Jesonda, the seventh in descent from the general ancestor of the Gaharwar, in consequence of great sacrificial rites performed at Bindabsani gave the title of 'Bundela' to his issue. The Bundelas ousted the Chandelas, about A.D. 1200. Rudra Pratap founded Orchha, the parent State of Bundelkhand. The Bundelas always held high positions under the Delhi Empire by reason of their great military genius. Bhagwan of Orchha commanded the advanced guard of Shah Jahan's army. His son, Subkaran was Aurangzeb's most distinguished leader in the Deccan, and another Orchha Chief, Dilpat, fell at Jayow. On the death of Maharaja Madhoo Scindia his widows in fear of the successor, Daulat Rao, sought protection of the Datta Chief, an offshoot of Orchha. Daulat Rao sent an army to seize the ladies but the Chief, without awaiting their arrival, went out at the head of three hundred horsemen. He and all his following died in the defence of the laws of sanctuary and honour (Tod's 'Rajasthan').

The western or sanad States were formed by Chhatarsal's division amongst his descendants of the territory he acquired from the parent stock which was estimated to have an income of three crores of rupees.

Orchha, Datia, and Samthar, the eastern States, have treaties with the British Government. The remainder of the States are held by sanad.

On the British occupation of Bundelkhand in 1803, he received a pension of Rs. 3,000 a month. In 1807 he received a sanad restoring to him a portion of his possessions. The pension was discontinued in August 1808.

The present Chief, His Highness Maharaja Sawai Sir Ranjor Singh Bahadur, K.C.I.E., who was born in September 1848, succeeded to the gadi in September 1859. The title of 'Sawai' was recognised by the Government of India on the 1st January 1877.

When the British entered Bundelkhand, a treaty of friendship and defensive alliance was concluded with Raja Bikramajit Mahindra, eleventh in succession from Pahar Singh, on the 27th December 1812.

The present Chief, His Highness Saramad i Rajah i Bundelkhand Maharaja Mahindra Sawai Sir Pratap Singh Bahadur, GCSI, GCIE, was born in July 1854 and succeeded to the gadi in March 1874 on the death of his brother, Hamir Singh.

The late Chief rendered loyal services during the mutiny of 1857, in recognition of which a tribute of Rs 3 000 which was paid for the Jagir of Taraoh, was remitted, and the istimrari revenue of the village of Mohanpur, amounting to Rs 200, was at the same time remitted.

In 1879 it was decided to style the Chief of Orchha in communication from the Viceroy as "Maharaja Sahib Mushfik Miharban". In 1882 he was granted the hereditary title of "Sawai", and in 1886 that of 'Saramad i Rajaha i Bundelkhand' or first of the princes of Bundelkhand.

His son, Chhatarsal, acquired much territory east of the Dhasan and founded Panna. On his death his possessions were divided, the town of Panna falling to his son Hirde Shah, who thus became the first Raja of Panna. A sanad was conferred upon Raja Kishore Singh, sixth in succession from Hirde Shah in 1807, on his subscribing to a deed of allegiance.

Panna is the senior sanad State in Bundelkhand.

As a reward for services rendered during the minority of 1857, Nirpat Singh, a former Chief, received a khilat of Rs 20,000.

In 1875 the title of 'Mahendra', which was granted in 1869 as a personal distinction, was made hereditary in recognition of the loyalty of the Chief to the British Crown.

The present State developed from this Jagir. Samthar is the only Gujar State in Bundelkhand.

When the British entered the province, Raja Ranjit Singh, son of Devi Singh, requested to be taken into the friendship and protection of the British Government, but no definite arrangement was made till 1817 when a treaty was concluded with him.

In 1879 an agreement was made with the Chief by which he undertook to control the manufacture, import, transit and taxation of salt, and was allowed in return an annual supply, free of cost, of 500 maunds. In 1884 this agreement was revised at the request of the Chief who now receives Rs 1,450 annually in lieu of the supply, and the restrictions which the agreement of 1879 contained relative to the import, export and transit of salt were tentatively withdrawn.

Ranuj, the founder of the Scindia family was in the service of the Peshwa and from a command in the Faigah or Body Guard rose rapidly to the first rank of Maratha Chiefs. He acquired possessions in Malwa and died in A.D. 1750. He was succeeded by his eldest son Jayappa who was killed at Nagor in 1759. He was followed by his son Jankoji who was wounded and taken prisoner at Panipat (1761) and put to death. His uncle, Madhuj Scindia the youngest son of Ranuj then succeeded to the Chiefship. Madhuj Scindia's formidable army organized by French officers made him the virtual ruler of Hindustan though nominally the servant of the Peshwa. The British Government after defeating Madhuj Scindia by a force under Colonel Muir in 1781, induced him to mediate between them and the Marathas. Peace was concluded by the Treaty of Salbai (1782). Scindia, now left free by the system of neutrality then pursued by the British, established his power over the northern parts of Hindustan and obtained control over the person of the Emperor of Delhi.

Madhuj Scindia died in 1794 and was succeeded by his grand nephew Daulat Rao Scindia. After the death of Madho Rao Narayan Peshwa in 1795 the Maharaja Scindia's powerful army enabled him to place Bajp Rao in power. When by the Treaty of Bassem in 1802 the British Government recovered its influence at Poona, Daulat Rao entered into a league with the Raja of Berar to defeat the objects of the Treaty. The Maharaja Scindia failed to meet the overtures of General Wellesley for an amicable adjustment of their differences, war ensued, and the power of the Maharaja Scindia was completely broken in Upper and Central India. He signed the Treaty of Sarj Anjangaon, by which he was stripped of his territories in Hindostan and deprived of Gohad and Gwalior. The loss of these last named caused the Maharaja Scindia grave discontent. Among other acts of hostility he attacked and plundered the Resident's camp and kept the Resident a prisoner. This action threatened a fresh rupture with the British, but a change in the policy of Government on the arrival of Lord Cornwallis led to the renewal of negotiations on the basis of restoring Gohad and Gwalior.

Accordingly a treaty was concluded in November 1805 ceding Gwalior and Gohad to the Maharaja Scindia, and among other conditions, binding the British Government not to make treaties with Udaipur, Jodhpur, Kotah, or other Chiefs tributaries of the Maharaja Scindia in Malwa or Rajputana.

Subsequently in 1817 when the British Government resolved to form political alliances against the Pindaris this condition was annulled by the treaty of 5th November, in which the Maharaja Scindia pledged himself to act in concert with the British against the Pindaris.

In 1818 an adjustment of boundaries was effected, the British Government receiving Ajmer and other districts and ceding lands of equal value.

At the close of the Pindari War Sir John Malcolm with a view to pacifying the country mediated between the Maharaja Scindia and the Rajput Chiefs holding lands in and about Malwa from whom the Maharaja Scindia exacted tribute, and who in their turns levied contributions from their weaker neighbours. Their estates were generally guaranteed to them on condition of good behaviour. These are now known as Mediatized Chiefs.

Daulat Rao Scindia died in 1827 leaving no son. His nearest kinsman, a youth of eleven was adopted and placed in power with the title of 'Aliah Jankoji Rao Scindia' under the regency of Baiza Bai, Daulat Rao's widow.

Baiza Bai, anxious to retain the powers of Regent during her life time, kept the young Maharaja in such strict restraint that he took refuge with the Resident. Baiza Bai's rule was unpopular. A large portion of the army espoused the cause of the young Maharaja and Baiza Bai was compelled to leave Gwalior territory.

Jankoji's maternal uncle known as Mama Sahib, occupied the post of minister, but the Government was weak and the army in a chronic state of mutiny.

Jankoji Scindia died in February 1843. His widow, Tara Rani, a young girl of twelve, adopted the nearest relative of the late Maharaja, who at the age of eight succeeded to the gadai under the title of 'Aliah Jayaji Rao Scindia'. The Mama Sahib, who was well disposed towards the British, was chosen as Regent by the nobles of Gwalior and recognized by the British Government but intrigues were set on foot against him by one Dada Khasgiwala, who succeeded in effecting the expulsion of the Mama Sahib from Gwalior.

Dada Khasgiwala soon showed himself hostile to the interest of the British Government by acts which led to the withdrawal of the Resident. The surrender of Dada Khasgiwala was required as preliminary to the restoration of friendly relations with the Maharam and her son, the Maharaja.

On the advance of a British force towards Gwalior he was given up. It was then arranged that a meeting should take place between the Governor General and the Maharaja at Hingona on the 26th December 1843. The mutinous Gwalior troops, however, kept the Maharam and her son in restraint, and the day passed without the interview taking place. On the 25th December the Gwalior troops fired on the British force, the battles of Maharajpur and Panmar were fought on the same day. The Gwalior army was totally destroyed. A treaty was concluded on the 13th January 1844, assigning territory yielding eight lakhs for the maintenance of a contingent force and other lands for the payment of the debts of the State to the British Government and the expenses of the war, reducing the army to 6 000 cavalry, 3 000 infantry, and 200 gunners with 32 guns, and agreeing that the government during the minority should be conducted according to the advice of the Resident and that the just territorial rights of the Gwalior State should be maintained by the British Government

In June 1857 the contingent mutined, and the Resident was forced to quit Gwalior and in June 1858 the Maharaja, deserted by his troops on the approach of the rebels under Tantia Topi, sought refuge at Agra. Gwalior was retaken by Sir Hugh Rose's force on the 19th June and the Maharaja was re-established in his palace.

For his services during the mutiny, the Maharaja Scindia was given lands yielding three lakhs of rupees a year and permission was given to raise his infantry from 3 000 to 5 000 men, his artillery from 32 to 36 guns and other concessions and exchanges of territory were granted—a subsidiary force costing not less than 16 lakhs a year was substituted for the extinct contingent. After the capture of Gwalior by Sir Hugh Rose in 1858 British troops continued to occupy the fort of Gwalior. In 1860 Lord Canning and later Lord Elgin promised the fort should be restored to the Maharaja Scindia when this could be done with safety. Accordingly, on the 10th March 1886, this pledge was fulfilled. The British forces marched out of the fort of Gwalior and the cantonment of Morar. On the same day the town and fort of Jhansi were made over to the North Western Provinces Government by the Gwalior authorities. At the same time the Maharaja was allowed to increase his infantry by 3 000.

In 1861 Jayaji Rao Scindia was created a GCSI, and in 1877 on the occasion of the Delhi Assemblage, His Highness was granted a personal salute of 21 guns and made a Councillor of the Empress. The title of "Hisam us Sultanat" was conferred upon him and he was given the honorary rank of a General in the British Army. He was subsequently made a GCB and a Companion of the Order of the Indian Empire.

Maharaja Jayaji Rao Scindia died in June 1886 and was succeeded by his son, Madho Rao, born in October 1876. The administration was carried on by a Council of Regency during the minority. In 1894 His Highness was entrusted with full powers in his State. The territories of the Gwalior State are divided into three parts, viz., (1) the Northern, (2) the Central, and (3) the Malwa Division.

The northern and central parts adjoin one another, while the Malwa part with its head quarters at Ujjain is entirely cut off by intervening territory of other States.

The forces maintained by the Gwalior State consist of 440 artillery men with 36 guns classified as serviceable, 1 897 Imperial Service Cavalry, 1,794 Imperial Service Infantry, 3,109 Irregular Cavalry and a Transport Train of 725 ponies and 300 carts.

The ruling family claims descent from Kuchhwaha Ajodhya Rajputs who established themselves at Narwar before the Maratha invasion. The present holding has only existed since 1818, the Chief's immediate ancestor having been driven from Narwar in the beginning of the nineteenth century by the troops of Daulat Rao Scindia. Daulat Rao Scindia deprived the Raja of his hereditary possession. He in retaliation made frequent raids upon Scindia's territories. In Sir John Malcolm's general scheme for pacifying the country, the pargana of Parone with six villages was granted to the Raja by Scindia under British guarantee in 1818.

The grandfather of the late Chief, Raja Man Singh, joined the rebels in the mutiny, but subsequently surrendered on condition of receiving a free pardon and a suitable allowance. His possessions were consequently restored to him and he was further granted a cash allowance of Rs. 1,000 for his good services in the capture of the notorious dakait Tantia Topi.

Jai Singh maintained the war with the Maharaja Scindia till his death in 1818, when a settlement was made with the successors of the latter through the mediation and under the guarantee of British Government, by which the Maharaja Scindia gave the fort and town of Raghugarh and some lands in their vicinity.

The late Chief, Raja Jaimandal Singh, died in July 1900. The succession of his son, Maharaj Kuar Bikramajit Singh, was not sanctioned by Government. Bikramajit Singh was allowed to adopt, as successor to the Raghugarh State, Madrup Singh of the Shahrog branch, who received the name of Bahadur Singh on adoption. ### Brief History of the (Indore) State

Malhar Rao a shepherd's son from the village of Hol in the Deccan, 40 miles from Poona was born in 1694. He rapidly rose to eminence and in 1724 was taken into the service of the Peshwa Bajirao. In 1728 he was assigned 12 districts in Malwa for the maintenance of his army and much of this land is still included in the Indore territories. Dying in 1766, he was succeeded by his grandson who died within a year, his mother, the famous Ahalya Bai, ruling till 1795 when she was succeeded by Tukoji Rao Holkar I, who had been the Commander of her armies. Tukoji was a member of another family. On his death in 1797, the State was wracked with internal dissensions until Jaswant Rao Holkar, an illegitimate son of the late Chief by his skill as a Military Commander restored the fortunes of his house. In 1805 he came into collision with the British authorities and was driven across the Sutlej by Lord Lake and forced to sign the treaty of Rajpurgat by which he relinquished many of his possessions.

He died insane in 1811 and was succeeded by his son, Malhar Rao, a mere youth. Dissensions again broke out, while Pindaris and others devastated the country till finally Malhar Rao was defeated at Mehndpur by Sir John Malcolm in December 1817 and signed the treaty of Mandsaur in 1818. By this treaty he abandoned his possessions south of the Nerbada and relinquished his claims over the States in Rajputana while the British Government undertook to maintain a force within his territories now cantoned at Mhow.

Malhar Rao died in 1833 without issue. His wife and mother adopted Martand Rao Holkar as his successor. A few weeks after this event Martand Rao was summarily deposed by Hari Rao, a cousin of Malhar Rao whose accession was clamorously welcomed by the troops. Hari Rao's rule was a time of intrigue and disorder. He died in 1843.

without issue and his adopted son, who succeeded him, survived for a few months only, dying unmarried and heirless. The succession was declared to rest with the British Government.

Tukoji Rao II, a cousin of the last ruler, was selected to succeed. Dying in 1886, he was succeeded by his son Shivaji Rao, who abdicated in 1903 in favour of his son, Tukoji Rao III, the present Maharaja.

BAGLI

The Bagli family are Rathor Rajputs. The Thakur of Bagli holds 14 villages under British guarantee and 69 unguaranteed villages from the Maharaja Scindia.

Ranjit Singh, the present Thakur, was born in July 1882 and succeeded to the estate in January 1896. He was educated at the Daly College, Indore. During his minority the estate was managed by a Superintendent under the general supervision of the Political Agent. The Thakur received administrative powers in June 1908, subject to certain temporary limitations.

DEWAS (SENIOR BRANCH).

The founders of the State were the two brothers of the Puar (Pramar) Rajput tribe, Tukoji Rao and Jiwaji Rao (cousins of Udayi Rao, the first Chief of the Dhar house), who came to Malwa about 1730 A.D. with Peshwa Bajirao I, and received, under the general distribution of the country that was then made, the parganas of Dewas, Sarangpur, Alote, Gadgucha, Ringnod and Bagode, and shares in several other parganas. The Puar, who by intermarriage with Marathas have lost their position as Rajputs, hold the highest rank among the Marathas. The two brothers divided the land granted to them between themselves, thus constituting the Senior and Junior Branches of the State. For a long time the affairs of both branches were administered jointly through one Minister.

In 1831, however, the joint management ceased, and the two branches became separate in all respects.

The two States entered into direct treaty relations with the British Government by the Treaty of 1818. The Chiefs of both branches are generally speaking equal in rank, power, and authority.

In 1862 the Chiefs of Dewas received sanads granting them the right of adoption.

In 1828 the pargana of Bagode was made over to the British Government for management. This arrangement continued until 1901, when the pargana was restored to the Dewas States, and was equally divided between both the branches.

Raja Tukoji Rao II was succeeded by Rukmangad Rao, who adopted Krishnaji Rao II, who died in October 1899 and was succeeded by Kesho Rao Bapu Sahib, the elder son of his elder brother. Kesho Rao, who was installed with the title of Tukoji Rao III, was born in January 1888 and was educated at the Daly College, Indore, and the Mayo College, Ayrer. He has married the daughter of the Maharaja of Kolhapur. He attended the Delhi Coronation Durbar in January 1903, and was present at the Durbar held by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at Indore in November 1905. He was invested with ruling powers in February 1908.

The State maintains, including irregulars, 63 cavalry, 195 infantry, and 2 guns. The two branches each pay to the British Government Rs. 16,000 Hah (equal to Rs. 14,337 4 0 British) annually for the maintenance of a military contingent.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 15 guns and is entitled to be received and visited by His Excellency the Viceroy.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor General. The form of the commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows:—“My friend—I remain, Your Highness's sincere friend.” The crest used is gold.

DEWAS (JUNIOR BRANCH)

The present Chief of Dewas, Junior Branch, is His Highness Maharao Baba Sahib Puar. He succeeded his uncle, Narayan Rao Dada Sahib Puar, by adoption, in May 1892.

After he had completed his education at the Daly College, Indore, His Highness was invested with ruling powers, subject to the general financial control of the Agency, in 1897. The Raja attended the Delhi Coronation Durbar in January 1903, and was present at the Durbar held by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at Indore in November 1905.

The State's military establishment, including irregulars, consists of 69 cavalry, 113 infantry, and 6 guns

The Chief receives a salute of 15 guns and is entitled to be received and visited by His Excellency the Viceroy

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor General. The form of the commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—"My friend—I remain, Your Highness's sincere friend." The crest used is gold

JAORA

Ghafur Khan, the first Nawab of Jaora was brother in law of the predatory leader Amir Khan, whom he represented at the Court of the Maharaja Holkar when Amir Khan quitted Malwa on his expeditions into Rajputana. The lands which had been assigned to him by the Maharaja Holkar were guaranteed to him by the 12th Article of the Treaty of Mandasaur (Treaty No XLVII, dated the 6th January 1818) on condition of his maintaining a body of 600 horse

Ghafur Khan was succeeded in 1825 by his son Ghaus Muhammad Khan, who was then only two years of age. The arrangements for the management of the State were made by the British Government, but, as Jaora was nominally subordinate to the Indore State, although really independent of it, the investiture of the infant Nawab was made in the name of Malhar Rao Holkar and confirmed by the British Government, and a nasarana of two lakhs of rupees was presented to Holkar

In 1823 the quota of troops to be maintained was permanently fixed at 500 horse, 500 foot and 4 guns. In 1842 the above arrangement was commuted to a yearly contribution of Half Rs 1,85,810. The contribution was reduced to Half Rs 1,61,810 in 1859 as a reward for the Nawab's services during the mutiny of 1857

In 1862, the Government of India granted a sanad guaranteeing the succession to the State according to Muhammadan Law, in the event of failure of natural heirs. In 1863, the Chief received permission from the Government of India to adopt the titles "Ish'tisham ud Daula" and "Firoz Jang" as personal distinctions

Nawab Ghaus Muhammad Khan died in April 1865 and the succession of his son, Muhammad Ismail Khan, was recognised. Mohammad Ismail Khan was installed by the British Government in the name of the Maharaja Holkar, to whom, according to precedent, a nasarana of two lakhs of rupees was presented by the Nawab. In 1874, Muhammad Ismail Khan was entrusted with the administration of his State, Hazrat Nur Khan, C.S.I., his father's chief adviser, remaining as Minister. In January 1883 a son, named Muhammad Iftikhar Ali Khan, was born to Muhammad Ismail Khan and was recognised by Government as his successor. Nawab Muhammad Ismail Khan, who was made Honorary Major in the British Army (C.I.H.) in 1881 died in March 1895 and his son, Muhammad Iftikhar Ali Khan was installed by the British Government in the name of the Maharaja Holkar under the title of "Fakhr ud Daula Nawab Iftikhar Ali Khan Bahadur Saulat Jaog." It is a custom in the Jaora family for a Chief to assume a distinctive title on his accession subject to the approval of the Government of India. The title selected by the present Chief is "Fakhr ud-Daula" * * * "Saulat Jang." In accordance with precedent a nasarana of two lakhs of rupees was presented by the Nawab. The claim of the Indore Darbar to depute an Agent and present a khilat was rejected by the Government of India and the representative of the Indore Darbar was allowed to attend the installation ceremony as a spectator only. During the minority of Iftikhar Ali Khan, the administration of the State was conducted by Khan Bahadur Yar Muhammad Khan, C.S.I., who was appointed Minister during the life time of Nawab Ismail Khan. Yar Muhammad Khan, who died in February 1909, was the eldest son of Hazrat Nur Khan, and was closely related to the ruling family. Under his administration the State prospered, and in 1899, before Malwa was visited by famine, there was a credit balance of over six lakhs in the State. But owing to a succession of bad years and other causes the State has been compelled to raise loans for famine and administrative purposes, with the result that its total liabilities now amount to over nine lakhs of rupees

His Highness Nawab Iftikhar Ali Khan who was educated at the Daly College, Indore, and under a European guardian and tutor, and who served in the Imperial Cadet Corps for two years, was invested with ruling powers in his State in April 1906 subject to certain conditions. He holds the honorary rank of Captain in His Majesty's Army. He was present at the Durbar held by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at Indore in November 1905.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 13 guns. The State maintains a military force of 54 cavalry, 94 infantry, and 16 serviceable and 1 unserviceable guns. The cavalry and infantry are well turned out but their arms are of an obsolete pattern.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor General. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — 'My friend — I remain Your Highness's sincere friend. The crest used is gold khanta bag Kamkbwab (Gold and silk brocade) String (Dori) Nimzar (Gold and silk thread).

PIPLODA

The Piploda family are Doria Rajputs who emigrated several centuries ago from Gwalior in Junagarh. In 1820, the settlement of this Chiefship was made by Sir John Malcolm with Pirthi Singh. By it a tribute of Salim Shahi Rs 28,000 is paid to the Nawab of Jaora according to Article XII of the Mandsaur Treaty. The Thakur receives annually Rs 138 as tanka on six villages from the Senior Branch of Dewas, and Rs 115 on five villages in Gargucha from the Junior Branch, and also holds a grant of land in the village of Betikheri in the Alote pargana from the Dewas Senior Chief. He further receives a sum of Rs 1,000 as dami from Tal and Mandawal. The Nawab of Jaora asserts a right to receive Rs 180 out of the above dami, but the claim is disputed by the Thakur.

The settlement of 1820 put the Thakur on the same footing as other mediatised Chiefs but in 1844 under the authority of Sir Claude Wade then Resident at Indore, a new engagement was entered into between the Thakur and the Nawab of Jaora which placed the Thakur in greater dependence on the Nawab and admitted the latter's right to control arrangements for the suppression of crime in the Thakur's villages. This engagement was not brought to the notice of the Government of India until 1864 when, although the opinion was expressed that Sir Claude Wade should not have approved the agreement without sanction it was resolved that, so long as no dispute should arise between the parties on the subject, no interference should be made with the arrangements which had then lasted for 22 years. The Thakur of Piploda, like all other mediatised Thakurs in Malwa, refers all important criminal cases to the Political Agent.

On the representation of the Thakur, the Government of India decided that the Jaora Darbar had no right to collect the sayar revenues in the estate and that the Thakur should himself collect these dues paying a half share to Jaora through the Political Agent. Thakur Pirthi Singh with whom the original settlement of 1820 was made, was succeeded in turn by his son, Umair Singh, and his grandson Unkar Singh. The latter died in 1863 and his adopted son, Dule Singh who was then 11 years old, was recognised as his heir. Dule Singh died in October 1888 and was succeeded by his eldest son Kesri Singh the present Thakur who was born in November 1873. Thakur Kesri Singh was educated at the Daly College at Indore. The military forces of the estate consist of 35 sowars, 100 sepoy's and 2 guns for saluting purposes.

RATLAM

Under the engagement (No. CLIV) mediated by Sir John Malcolm in 1819 between Partab Singh Raja of Ratlam, and Daulat Rao Scindia the former agreed to pay the Gwalior Darbar an annual tribute of Salim Shahi Rs 84,000 while the latter undertook never to send any troops into the country or to interfere in any way in the internal administration or succession. This tribute was assigned to the British Government under the Treaty of 1844 with the Maharaja Scindia in part payment of the Gwalior Contingent. It is now paid to the Government of India under the Treaty of 1860.

The Raja of Ratlam who is descended from a younger branch of the Jodhpur family, was considered the principal Rajput leader in Western Malwa and in consequence received voluntary aid and assistance from the neighbouring Rajput Chiefs. Partab Singh died in 1824 he was succeeded by his son, Balwant Singh, whose right to succeed had been fruitlessly disputed by Raja Partah Singh's senior son. Balwant Singh's rule lasted until August 1857. He rendered good services during the mutinies, in recognition of which his adopted son and successor, Bhairon Singh, received a khat of Rs 3 000 and the thanks of Government.

Bhairon Singh died in January 1864, leaving a son, Ranjit Singh, aged two years, who was recognised by the Government of India as heir to the State. Mr Shahamat Ali, C S I, an officer of the British Government, was deputed to superintend the administration, and with him were associated the uncle of the young Chief and the Thakur of Sarwan.

Under the careful management of Mr Shahamat Ali, C S I, the debts of the State, which at the period of his deputation to Ratlam exceeded ten lakhs of rupees, were paid off and, in addition to the payment of the ordinary charges of the State, six lakhs of rupees were spent on roads and other useful public works.

Raja Ranjit Singh received independent charge of his State in 1880. Mr Shahamat Ali, C S I, stayed on as Minister till January 1881, when he retired on a pension of Rs 600 per mensem. Raja Ranjit Singh was created a Knight Commander of the Most Eminent Order of the Indian Empire in 1887. The ordinary salute of the Ratlam Chief is 11 guns, but Raja Ranjit Singh received a salute of 13 guns, including 2 guns which were granted to him as a personal distinction in 1877.

Lord Northbrook visited Ratlam in 1875.

The Chief of Ratlam was addressed by the Viceroy for the first time on the occasion of Her late Majesty's Jubilee, 1887.

Raja Ranjit Singh died in January 1893 and was succeeded by his son, Sajjan Singh, who was born in January 1880.

Raja Sajjan Singh, who received his education at the Daly College at Indore and under a European tutor and guardian, was entrusted with the management of his State in December 1898. His Highness, who was a member of the Imperial Cadet Corps from 1901 to 1903, holds the honorary rank of Captain in His Majesty's Army.

Raja Sajjan Singh was present at the Durbar held by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at Indore in November 1905. His Highness was created a K C S I on the 25th June 1909.

The State maintains a military force of 60 cavalry, 87 infantry, 285 policemen, 13 artillerymen and 5 guns serviceable for firing salutes. The troops are not well armed.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor General. The form of the commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows:—"My friend—I remain, Your Highness's sincere friend. The crest used is gold Kharita bag Kamkhwah (Gold and silk brocade) String (Dori) Nimzar (Gold and silk thread).

SAILANA

Sailana pays an annual tribute of Salim Shahi Rs 42,000 to the Government of India under the same conditions as Ratlam of which territory it originally formed a part. On the death of Kesri Singh, Raja of Ratlam, in 1709, his eldest son, Man Singh, succeeded to the lands forming the present State of Ratlam, and his second son, Jai Singh, succeeded to Sailana, which he made into an independent State in 1730. The tribute is paid to the British Government under the treaty with the Maharaja Scindia of 12th December 1860, having been assigned in 1844 in part payment of the Gwalior Contingent.

The Chief, Lachman Singh, with whom the original settlement was made in 1819, was succeeded by his son, Ratao Singh, who, having no son, was succeeded by Nahar Singh, his uncle. Nahar Singh was succeeded by his son, Takht Singh, who died in 1850, leaving a son Dule Singh, then a minor. The district was administered by the British Government in the mutiny of 1857, when it was put under a Regency headed by the chief widow of the late Raja. As an acknowledgment of the services rendered during the mutiny in preserving order and furnishing troops, the members of the Regency received *khat*s. Raja Dule Singh was put to power in 1859 being then ten years of age.

In 1884 the Government of India, at the request of the Raja, recognised as his heir Jaswant Singh, of Semla, whom he had adopted.

Jaswant Singh succeeded to the gaddi on the death of his father in October 1895. The Raja of Ratlam advanced some claims in connection with Talwar bundi on the occasion of the installation but they were disallowed. The nazarana on this occasion was fixed, as a special case, at Rs 48,000 being half the net revenue after deducting the amount of khilat. Raja Jaswant Singh was made K C I E in June 1904 and was present at the Durbar held by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at Iodore in November 1905, on which occasion His Royal Highness invested him with the insignia.

The State is indebted to the Gwahor Darbar to the extent of 34,000 rupees.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 11 guns.

The military forces of the State consist of 25 cavalry, 50 infantry, 113 armed police men, 6 artillerymen and 4 serviceable and 1 unserviceable guns.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Agent to the Governor General in Central India. The form of the commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — 'My friend — I remain, Your Highness's sincere friend'

SITAMAU

This Chiefship was founded by Raja Kesho Das, a grandson of Raja Ratan Singh of Ratlam, who in 1695 received a sanad from Aurangzeb. A tribute of Salim Shahi Rs 60,000 from this State was guaranteed to the Maharaja Scindia by an agreement mediated by Sir John Malcolm in 1820. In consequence of repeated representations from the Raja Salim Shahi Rs 5,000 of the annual tribute were remitted in 1860 by the Maharaja Scindia on the occasion of the Raja's son waiting on him at Gwalior. Raja Raj Singh of Sitamau remained faithful to the British Government during the mutiny of 1857 and received a khilat valued at Rs 2,000.

Raja Raj Singh, who was an able ruler died in 1867 his eldest son having predeceased him in 1864, the succession of his grandson Bhawan Singh, was recognised and sanctioned by the British Government. Bhawan Singh died in May 1885 and was succeeded by his second cousin Bahadur Singh elder son of Thakur Takht Singh of Chiklia. On this occasion the Maharaja Scindia claimed to receive nazarana but it was held that Sitamau being a mediatised Chiefship of the first class, was liable to the payment of nazarana to the Government of India alone and that one year's revenue was properly leviable under the rules on the occasion of Bahadur Singh's succession. In consideration, however, of the poverty of the State a nazarana of half year's net income was taken and a khilat of the value of Rs 8,875 was bestowed on the Chief on his formal installation, in the form of a deduction from the nazarana.

Raja Bahadur Singh died in April 1899 and leaving no issue was succeeded by his younger brother, Sadul Singh the Thakur of Chiklia, who died of cholera in May 1900 after a short rule of a few months.

With Raja Sadul Singh's death the line of the ruling family became extinct. The Government of India were pleased to continue the autonomy of the State and after consideration of the claims of several applicants to the gaddi, selected Bapu Ram Singh the brother of the Thakur of Kachhi Bamda, as having by birth the strongest claim and being by reason of his age and qualifications well suited for the Chiefship. In consideration of the poverty of the State and its being seriously affected by famine and in view of the heavy tribute which it pays to the Maharaja Scindia, the Government of India were pleased to remit half the amount of nazarana due. The State is indebted to the Government of India to the extent of about Rs 54,157.

HYDERABAD

The State was founded by Mir Kamr ud din Ali Khan, better known by his titles of Chin Kily Khan Fath Jang Nizam ul Mulk, and Asaf Jah. He was the son of Aurangzeb's General, Ghazi-ud din Khan Firuz Jang, who traced his descent through Shaikh Alam and Shaikh Shahab ud din, Sahrawardi to Abu Bakr, the second Khalifa.

Nizam ul Mulk was first appointed Viceroy of the Deccan early in 1712, in the first year of the Emperor Farrukhsiyar, but was soon removed to make way for Sayyid Husain Ali Khan, Amir ul-Umara, the elder of the two Sayyid brothers who held all real power at Delhi from the accession of Farrukhsiyar until their overthrow in 1720. In the latter year Nizam ul Mulk was appointed Subadar of Malwa and set out from Delhi, ostensibly to attend to the affairs of his new Government, but with the intention of securing possession of the Deccan. Conscious of the secret support of the Emperor Muhammad Shah he defeated and slew at Ratapur and Balapur Dilawar Ali Khan and Alam Ali Khan, two of the Amir ul-Umara's lieutenants. The Amir ul-Umara, taking the Emperor with him, started for the Deccan in order to punish Nizam ul Mulk, but was assassinated early in his journey, and the Emperor, now his own master, retraced his steps to Delhi. In 1721 Nizam ul Mulk returned to the capital, and was made Prime Minister, but growing weary of the intrigues of court life, in October 1723 again proceeded to the Deccan, and assumed the title of Asaf Jah. The amirs of Delhi bribed Mubarez Khan, Governor of Hyderabad, with a promise of the viceroyalty of the Deccan to prevent Nizam ul-Mulk from assuming office, and Mubarez Khan prepared for resistance. The armies met at Shakarakheda in Berar, where a battle was fought on October 14, 1724, in which Nizam ul Mulk was completely victorious and Mubarez Khan fell. Henceforward Nizam ul-Mulk was practically independent in the six subas of the Deccan, and, although he never formally renounced his allegiance, he ceased to remit revenue to Delhi on the plea that the revenues of the Deccan were required for the maintenance of an army sufficiently strong to keep the Marathas in check. In 1737 he was persuaded to return to court and to undertake to keep the Marathas out of Hindustan, but on his return towards the Deccan in 1738, he suffered himself to be surrounded near Bhopal by Bajji Rao Peshwa, and was compelled to agree to humiliating terms of peace. In 1740 Nizam ul Mulk, who was still at Delhi, hearing that his second son Nasir Jang, whom he had left as his deputy in the viceroyalty, meditated rebellion, set out for the Deccan. He died at Burhanpur on June 19, 1748, in the 104th year of his age, and was buried at Rauza or Khuldabad, near the tomb of Shaikh Burhan ud din Auliya. His eldest son, Ghazi ud-din, was at this time at Delhi, and Nasir Jang, who had seized the reins of power in the Deccan, was supported by the English Company, while the French espoused the cause of Muzaffar Jang, son of Banu Begam, Nizam ul-Mulk's daughter. Muzaffar Jang being deserted by his allies on the eve of battle, had no choice but to surrender himself to his uncle, who put him in irons. Seven months later (December 5, 1750) Nasir Jang was assassinated and Muzaffar Jang was released from prison and assumed the viceroyalty of the Deccan. Soon after his accession he paid a visit to Pondicherry, and on his return was opposed by some Pathan nawabs who were dissatisfied with the price which they had received for their adherence. In the battle which followed at the end of January, 1751, Muzaffar Jang, though his troops were victorious, was slain.

Salabat Jang, the third son of Nizam-ul-Mulk, was then, by the influence of M. Bussy, raised to the masnad, but in 1752, Ghazi ud din, the eldest son, left Delhi for the Deccan for the purpose of asserting his claim to the viceroyalty. Preparations for a campaign collapsed and Salabat Jang opened negotiations with his brother, in the course of which Ghazi ud din accepted an invitation to an entertainment at which he was poisoned in a dish prepared by the mother of his younger brother, Nizam Ali Khan. French influence predominated at the court of Salabat Jang but he was nevertheless compelled to surrender Masulipatam to the English Company, and to bind himself to permit no French settlement in his dominions. In 1760 he made war on the Peshwa in consequence of the treacherous surrender of Ahmadnagar to the latter. A battle was fought at Udgir, in which Salabat Jang, being defeated, was forced to confirm the surrender of Ahmadnagar and to surrender the forts of Daulatabad, Asirgarh, and Bijapur, the province of Bijapur, part of Bidar and the whole province of Aurangabad except the city and two parganas. Early in 1761, when the Maratha power was broken at Panipat, Nizam Ali Khan, who acted as minister to his elder brother, succeeded in regaining most of the territory surrendered after Udgir. On his return to Bidar he imprisoned Salabat Jang, whom he caused to be murdered fifteen months later, and ascended the masnad. In 1763 Nizam Ali made war on Raghunath Rao and was defeated, but contrived by working on Raghunath Rao's feelings to obtain favourable terms of peace.

Meanwhile Haidar Ali was rising to power in Mysore. Basalat Jang, Nizam Ali's brother, whose ambition it was to found an independent State in the Carnatic, had formed an alliance with him, but apprehending Nizam Ali's resentment, had withdrawn from active participation in Haidar Ali's conquests and returned to his capital, Adoni.

Early in 1765 Nizam Ali and the Peshwa attacked and defeated Janoji Bhonsla, who was compelled to restore to the former three fourths of the districts which he had received in 1763. In the same year Nizam Ali invaded the Carnatic, but was obliged to retire before a British force, while a British expedition took possession of the Northern Sarkars which had been granted to the Company by a farman. Nizam Ali, angered by the transfer of districts which had always formed part of his viceroyalty, prepared again to invade the Carnatic, and the Government of Fort St. George, not being anxious for war, deputed General Calliaud to Hyderabad with full powers to negotiate for peace. On November 12, 1766, that officer concluded a treaty by which the Company agreed to pay an annual peishkash of nine lakhs of rupees for the Northern Sarkars, and to provide a body of troops to assist Nizam Ali and his successors.

In August 1767 Nizam Ali allied himself with Haidar Ali against the Company, but on February 23, 1768, was compelled by the Company's successes in the field to conclud-a treaty of peace in which the agreement regarding the tenure of the Northern Sarkars and the provision of troops by the Company was revised

In 1779 the ill advised negotiations of the Presidency of Fort St George with Basalat Jang, and their demand for a remission of peshkash, led Nizam Ali to prepare for war, which was averted only by the Supreme Government's repudiation of the acts of the Presidency. At the same time it was ordered that the Northern Sarkars should be restored to the Nizam. In 1788 disputes regarding the accounts of these Sarkars had arisen, and Abu'l-Kasim*, afterwards known as Mir Alam was sent as the Nizam's agent to Calcutta. The dispute was settled by the Supreme Government, and Abu'l-Kasim obtained a letter in which it was explained that the troops, which the Company was liable to be called upon, under the treaty of 1768, to supply, could not be employed against any Native Chief in alliance with the Company. When, therefore, Nizam Ali proceeded in 1795 to Bidar and marched thence to Kharda,† where he attacked the Maratha Confederacy, the assistance of the Subsidiary Force was denied to him. He was defeated by the Marathas and forced to sign a treaty by which he agreed to surrender territories, including the fort of Daulatabad yielding 35 lakhs of rupees per annum, to pay three crores of rupees, and to give his prime minister, Azim ul-Umara, as a hostage for the fulfilment of his promises. On his return from Kharda Nizam Ali intimated to the Resident that he no longer desired to maintain the Subsidiary Force if he was to be denied the use of it when he most needed it, and the force was withdrawn. To supply its place the Nizam proceeded to organize a force under French officers, and the corps under M. Raymond was advanced to Khammamet on the British frontier. The Nizam was called upon to withdraw this corps from its threatening position, and was warned that in the event of a refusal a body of British troops would be ordered to his frontier. At this juncture Ali Jah, the Nizam's eldest son, rebelled against his father and Nizam Ali, in great alarm, prayed for the immediate recall of the Subsidiary Force and ordered withdrawal of Raymond's corps. Ali Jah's rebellion was suppressed by Raymond's corps, and the Subsidiary Force returned to Hyderabad in August 1795.

On the return of Azim ul-Umara from Poona in 1797, the British regained their influence at Hyderabad, and on September 1st, 1798, Captain James Achilles Kirkpatrick concluded a treaty of alliance determining the permanent strength of the Subsidiary Force. By this treaty the Nizam agreed to disband the French corps in his service and to employ no more foreigners. The dishandment was effected, not without some difficulty, at the end of 1798. In 1799 the Nizam aided the Company in the war against Tipu Sultan, on the successful termination of which the partition treaty of Mysore was signed, being ratified by the Nizam on July 13, 1799. On October 12, 1800, a new subsidiary treaty was concluded. By this treaty the strength of the Subsidiary Force was permanently increased, and certain tracts, afterwards known as the Ceded Districts were assigned for its maintenance. The Nizam agreed at the same time to supply a contingent of 6,000 infantry and 9,000 horse to act with the Subsidiary Force in case of war.

On August 7, 1803, Nizam Ali died, and was succeeded by his eldest surviving son, Sikandar Jah. Meanwhile Daulat Rao Sindhia and Raghunath Bhonsla, who resented the conclusion of the treaty of Bassem with Bajirao Peshwa, took up arms, and the second Maratha war broke out. The Marathas were defeated at Ahmadnagar, Assaye, and Argaon and the Fort of Gawilgarh fell on December 15, 1803. This ended the war, and by the treaty of Deogaon concluded two days later the whole of Berar west of the Wardha, with the exception of the hill forts, which were acquired in 1822, fell to the share of the Nizam. Sindhia also ceded all the Districts held by him to the south of the Ajanta hills. The contingent supplied in the war by the Nizam in accordance with the terms of the treaty of 1800 fell short of expectations in the matter of efficiency, and by the advice of Mr. (afterwards Sir) Henry Russell who was Resident from 1811 to 1820, the troops which the Nizam was liable to be called upon to supply in case of war were reorganized under the command of British officers. The force thus created was known at first as the Russell Brigade, then, until the mutiny, as the Nizam's Army, and thenceforward until 1903, when it was absorbed into the Indian Army, as the Hyderabad Contingent The Contingent acquitted itself well in the third Maratha war, which broke out in 1817, and at the close of which the treaty of 1822 was concluded. Under this treaty the Nizam received a quitance of all demands, past and future, on account of chauth, and acquired by exchange of territory, a well-defined frontier. At this time the Resident, Mr C T (afterwards Sir Charles and subsequently Lord) Metcalfe, with a view to the better administration of the State, appointed European officers to supervise the collection of the revenue and the control of the police in the districts. In 1824 the Nizam was enabled, by the capitalisation of the demand for peshkash for the Northern Sarkars, which was arranged by Mr Metcalfe to settle the just claims of the banking firm of William Palmer & Co. Their more exorbitant demands for which the State could not justly be held liable, were repudiated, with the result that the firm failed.

Sikandar Jah died on May 21 1829 and was succeeded by his eldest surviving son, Nasir ud-Daula on whose accession the Resident, under instructions from the Governor General, withdrew from all interference in the internal administration of the State.

By 1852 the pay of the Contingent had fallen heavily into arrears and the officers and men were reduced to such straits that it was found necessary to relieve them by direct payments from the British treasury, debited against the Durbar. The financial embarrassment of the State, and its consequent inability to meet its obligations had long furnished cause of complaint, and the Governor General ultimately resolved on demanding territorial security for the payment of the Contingent. By the treaty of 1853 the province of Berar and certain districts in the Raichur Doab and on the western frontier of the State were assigned for this purpose, and were administered by British officers under the control of the Resident. It was stipulated that accounts should be rendered, and that the Nizam should receive, any surplus that might remain after the charges of the administration and the Hyderabad Contingent had been defrayed.

Nasir ul Daula died on March 11, 1857, and was succeeded by his elder son Afzal-ud-Daula. Hyderabad, owing to the exertions of the Minister, Sir Salar Jang, gave little cause for anxiety during the mutiny of 1857. In July of that year a city mob, under the leadership of a fanatical maulvi and a Pathan named Turra Baz Khan, attacked the Residency, but was repulsed, and there was no attempt at a general rising. The State was so quiet that it was found possible to detach some troops of the Contingent and the Subsidiary Force for service against the mutineers in Central India. After the mutiny the treaty of 1853 was considerably modified to the Nizam's advantage. By the treaty of 1860 Berar was retained but all other districts assigned in 1853 were restored; the confiscated territory of the rebellious Raja of Shorapur was ceded to the Nizam and a debt of 50 lakhs of rupees due to the Government of India was cancelled. On the other hand, the Nizam agreed to forego the demand for accounts of the Assigned Districts. In 1862 an adoption sanad was granted to the Nizam, and in 1867 an extradition treaty was concluded.

On February 26, 1869, Afzal ud Daula died, and was succeeded by his infant son Mir Mahbub Ali Khan, the present Nizam, during whose minority the State was administered by Sir Salar Jang and Shams ul Umara, who were appointed co regents. In 1870 a railway agreement was concluded, permitting the construction of lines of railway within the State and transferring jurisdiction over railway lands to the Government of India. On February 5, 1884, the Nizam was invested with full powers of administration, and Salar Jang II, the elder son of the co regent who had died in 1883, was appointed minister. He resigned in 1887, and was succeeded by Bashir ud Daula Asman Jah, who on his resignation in 1893 was succeeded by Sir Vikar ul Umara. In 1901, on the resignation of Sir Vikar-ul Umara, the Peshkar, Maharaja Kishen Parshad, KCIE of Chandu Lal's family, was appointed minister, and shortly afterwards, at the instance of the Government of India, Mr G C Walker, CSI, was appointed Assistant Minister for Finance.

Owing to various causes, the chief of which was the great expense of administering a small province as a separate unit, the administration of Berar under the treaty of 1860 had given rise especially during the Nizam's minority, to controversial correspondence, and it was also recognised that the maintenance of the Hyderabad Contingent as a local force was an anachronism. On November 5 1902, a new agreement was concluded under which the Nizam, whose sovereignty over Berar was re-affirmed, leased the province to the Government of India in perpetuity in return for an annual rent of Rs 25 00 000, the Government of India being empowered to make such arrangements as might seem to them desirable for the administration of the province, which has since been attached to the Administration of the Central Provinces. At the same time the Hyderabad Contingent was delocalised and incorporated, with the exception of the artillery which was disbanded in the Indian Army, the Government of India engaging to make due provision for the protection of the Nizam's dominions. The Nizam, on the other hand, agreed to reduce his costly and ineffective establishment of over 19,000 irregular troops to the number of 12,000. Up to the 31st October 1908, 2,791 men, 12 horses and 2 elephants have been reduced without corresponding increases of expenditure, 2,143 men and 379 horses have been transferred to other departments, and 1,491 men have been transferred to the pension establishment making a total reduction in the irregular troops of 6,425 men, 391 horses and 2 elephants. It is estimated that the savings effected by actual reductions will amount to Rs. 2,96,411 a year while the reductions effected in the State Military Budget, by transfer to other departments, will amount to Rs. 6,73,203.

In August 1904, the establishment employed in the Nizam's dominions by the Government of India under the General Superintendent of Operations for the suppression of Thagi and Dakaiti was transferred to the service of the State.

The State maintains two regiments of Imperial Service Lancers, 1,266 strong in all, each with a complete transport establishment.

In August 1900 Major (now Lieutenant-Colonel) Sir Muhammad Ali Beg, Afsar-ul-Mulk, K.C.I.E., M.V.O., was deputed to China on the staff of Sir Alfred Gaselee. The combatant strength of the regular troops of the State, including the Imperial Service Lancers, is 7,256, with 14 guns.

The Nizam, accompanied by some of his principal nobles, attended the Delhi Proclamation Durbar, and received the Grand Cross of the Bath, having already, on February 6, 1885 been appointed a Knight Grand Commander of the Star of India.

Two hundred and fifty of the Imperial Service Lancers took part in the Delhi manoeuvres.

Towards the end of 1905 the Nizam celebrated his "jubilee," i.e., his fortieth birthday and the completion of twenty years of rule since his installation by Lord Ripon in 1884.

In February 1906, Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales visited the Hyderabad State. The visit which lasted eight days, five of which were spent by the Prince in a shooting expedition was unfortunately marred by the death of the Nizam's eldest daughter but was in all other respects a great success.

On the 19th April 1906, the Nizam's heir-apparent, Mir Usman Ali Khan, was married to Azim-un-Nisa Begum his second cousin once removed. On the 21st March 1907 a son was born to him.

On the 1st January 1906 a Companionship of the Star of India was conferred on Mr. G. C. Walker, and on the 26th June 1906 a Companionship of the Indian Empire was conferred on Mr. Brian Egerton in recognition of their respective services as Assistant Minister for Finance and as Guardian to the heir apparent.

On the 28th September 1908 the riverine portion of the city and of the Residency Bazaars was devastated by a sudden flood of unprecedented height. Much damage was caused, and loss of human life which at the lowest estimate did not fall short of three or four thousand persons.

The following Viceroy's have paid visits to Hyderabad—Lords Ripon, Dufferin, Lansdowne, Elgin, Curzon, and Minto.

The Nizam enjoys a salute of 21 guns, and is entitled to be received and visited by the Viceroy.

The highest British authority by whom the Nizam has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor General. The form of the commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—"My honoured and valued friend—I desire to express the high consideration which I entertain for Your Highness and to subscribe myself Your Highness's sincere friend." The crest used is gold Kharita bag Zarbaft (Gold brocade) String (Dori) Purzar (all gold thread).

JAMMU AND KASHMIR.

Up to the 14th century Kashmir was subject to a series of Buddhist and Hindu dynasties, whose annals are related in the celebrated versified Sanskrit chronicle known as the Rajatarangini, the original manuscripts of which were discovered at Srinagar by Buhler in 1877, and have since been translated by Stein. It was during this epoch that the really old remains of Kashmir at places like Islamabad, Bijbehara, Pandrattan the Takht-i-Sulaiman, Pattan and Maranda, were constructed. A local dynasty of Mubammadans then established themselves until Akbar's invasion in 1557, when Kashmir became an appanage of the Delhi throne, and remained for about two hundred years the summer residence of the Mughal Emperors; the chief traces of whom are to be found in the Hari Parbat Fort, the pleasure gardens of Shalimar, Nishat, Achabal, and Verinag, and last but not least, the magnificent Chenar tree which abounds everywhere. In 1752 Kashmir again changed masters and passed from the then feeble control of the Delhi Court into the powerful and cruel grasp of Ahmad Shah Abdali of Afghanistan, the arch disturber of the peace of India in his day, and for the next 67 years, until seized by Ranjit Singh in 1819, was held for the Pathans by Governors more or less independent of their King.

He died in 1780, and the quarrel for the succession gave the Sikh power the opportunity of turning Jammu and the neighbouring hill tracts into a dependency. Three great grand nephews of Ranjit Deo's by name Gulab Singh, Dhyan Singh and Suchet Singh took service at the Sikh Court and rose to great favour, and in 1818 Maharaja Ranjit Singh conferred the principality of Jammu on Gulab Singh, those of Bhimber and Chibal which included Poonch, on Dhyan Singh, and that of Ramnagar on Suchet Singh, as fiefs. The two younger brothers were killed about 1843 and their estates fell to the survivor, except Poonch, which was held by Jowahir Singh, son of Dhyan Singh. A bitter quarrel arose between Jowahir Singh of Poonch and his uncle Gulab Singh of Jammu, and came to such a crisis that the British Government interfered and approved an agreement whereby Jowahir Singh renounced all claims to the Poonch Jagir, in return for a cash allowance. the Maharaja Ranbir Singh, on Moti Singh, the younger brother of Jowahir Singh and the father of the present Chief Buldeo Singh

In 1846 at the close of the first Sikh War by the victory of the British at Sobraon Gulab Singh appeared on the scene as mediator between the English and the Sikhs, and under the negotiations which followed the Sikh Maharaja had, in addition to a large forfeit of territory in the Punjab, to pay a crore of rupees as a war indemnity. This he could not manage and in lieu thereof ceded all his hill territories from the Beas river to the Indus including Kashmir and Jammu. But Lord Hardinge, Governor General, considered the occupation of the whole of this territory inadvisable, as it would so largely increase the extent of our frontier, and the military establishment for guarding it, and create new and conflicting interests, while the districts in question, with the exception of the comparatively small vale of Kashmir, were for the most part unproductive and unlikely to pay the cost of occupation and management. On the other hand, the ceded tract comprised the whole of the hereditary possessions of Gulab Singh, who being naturally eager to obtain an indefeasible title to them, came forward and offered to pay the war indemnity if constituted independent ruler of Jammu and Kashmir. It was recognised that the transfer of these two provinces to Gulab Singh would materially weaken the Sikh power, secure the war indemnity, and form a pleasing recompense to Gulab Singh, whom the British wished to reward for his conduct and services. Hence a separate treaty embodying the arrangement was concluded with Gulab Singh at Amritsar on 16th March 1846, from which date the history of the Jammu and Kashmir State as a political whole commences. The treaty put Gulab Singh, as Maharaja, in possession of all the hill country between the Indus and the Ravi, including Kashmir, Jammu, Ladakh and Gilgit, but excluding Lahoul, Kulu and some other districts, which, for strategical purposes, it was considered advisable to retain, and for which a remission of 25 lakhs was made from the crore demanded, leaving 75 lakhs as the final amount to be paid by Gulab Singh. This settlement constituted the so-called "Sale of Kashmir," which is so often the subject of criticism and regret. It is true that had Kashmir not been separated from the Punjab by this treaty, it would have fallen into our hands with the latter province on the conclusion of the second Sikh War. But that war with its results could not be foreseen in 1846, and the object at the time was to set up a Sikh Government at Lahore and leave the Punjab to its own native rulers. At the same time, as a possible check on Sikh aspirations it was considered a wise measure to establish on their flank a power independent of them and inclined to the British, and this considera-revenue for 1907-1908 was 97 lakhs. The decrease of ten lakhs as compared with the previous year's figures was chiefly under the head Sericulture (Rs. 3,47,000) due to extreme dulness of the silk market, and Land Revenue (Rs. 42,000) and grazing fees (Rs. 38,000) due to certain remissions.

The most important Jagirdar or feudatory of the State is the Raja of Poonch. The present Raja Sir Baldeo Singh's connection with the Jammu family is shown above. The Japir has a revenue of over 7 lakhs.*

POONCH

The ancient name was "Parnotsa." The Kashmiris always speak of Poonch as "Prnats."

The Chief of Poonch is the most important Jagirdar or Feudatory of His Highness the Maharaja of Kashmir, to whom he is related by descent from a common ancestor, Kishor Singh, a Dogra Rajput, as shown in the genealogical tree at the end of this narrative.

Dhyan Singh of Poonch was succeeded by his second son Jowahir Singh, the elder of his two surviving sons. But there arose a bitter quarrel between Jowahir Singh and his uncle, Raja Gulab Singh of Jammu, which resulted in the former renouncing all claims to the Poonch Jagir, and accepting instead a cash allowance. Later, during the rule of tion was a strong factor in bringing about the settlement with Gulab Singh. Not till two years after it was entered into, did those events, at the time unforeseen, occur, which are now brought forward, with the facile wisdom which follows the event, as reasons for not entering into the engagement. Gulab Singh had some difficulty in obtaining actual possession of the province of Kashmir. The last Governor appointed by the Sikhs made for a time a successful resistance, and it was not until the end of 1846 that the Maharaja Gulab Singh was established in Kashmir with the aid of British troops.

The Maharaja Gulab Singh died in August 1857, and was succeeded by his eldest son, Ranbir Singh. This change of rulers happened at a critical time, but both the dying Maharaja and his successor proved themselves staunch friends of the British Government in the troubles of 1857. The Maharaja Ranbir Singh was invested with the GCSI, and, on the occasion of the Delhi Assemblage of 1877, the title of 'Indar Mahindar Bahadur Sipar-i-Saltanat' was conferred on him and he was gazetted a General in the British Army, and created a Councillor of the Empress. Important incidents during his rule were the Commercial Treaty of 1870, the Yarkand Mission in 1873-74, and the great famine of 1877-79. The Maharaja Ranbir Singh was the recipient of one of Lord Canning's Adoption Sanads, but failing adoption the succession passes under the Dastur ul amal or will of Maharaja Ranbir Singh, which is held very sacred in the State, strictly in tail male.

The Maharaja Ranbir Singh died in 1885 leaving three sons—Pratap Singh, Ram Singh who died in 1899, and Amar Singh, who died in March 1909. The eldest is the present Chief—His Highness Maharaja Pratap Singh, Indar Mahindar Bahadur, Sipar-i-Saltanat, GCSI. He was born in 1850 and succeeded to the gads in 1885. He was gazetted a Colonel in the British Army in 1888, a Major General in 1893 and created GCSI in 1892. He receives a salute of 19 guns, or 21 within his own territory. His Highness attended the Delhi Durbar of 1903. A son and heir was born to His Highness on the 30th November 1904, but died on the 14th July 1905.

The administration of the State was carried on by a Council consisting of the Maharaja as President, his brother the late Raja Sir Amar Singh, KCSI, as Vice President, and two selected officials from the British service up to August 1905, when the Council was abolished and the administration placed in the hands of the Maharaja who was assisted by his brother Raja Sir Amar Singh as Chief Minister, and by three other Ministers. The matter of the appointment of a new Chief Minister is under consideration. The Council was guided by the advice of the Resident in all matters of importance.

The Imperial Service Troops maintained by His Highness are —

Lancers . . . . .	150
Two Mountain Batteries . . . . .	375
Three regiments of Infantry . . . . .	2980

They have taken part in the late Hunza (1888) and Chitral (1895) expeditions and rendered very valuable service on each occasion.

Since the succession of the present Maharaja, the State has undergone considerable changes for the better, some of these being (a) the extension of the railway system to Jammu (Tawi), (b) the construction of a cart road to Kohala near Murree from Srinagar, and of a similar road to Abbottabad from Domel, (c) the adoption of a regular account system under the control of a British officer in the capacity of Accountant General, (d) the substitution of the British rupee for the old Kashmir currency, (e) the introduction of an improved revenue system under the direction of a British officer holding the appointment of Settlement Commissioner, (f) the inauguration of an improved Customs and Excise administration, (g) the introduction of the Imperial Postal and Telegraph systems, (h) the establishment of Colleges at Srinagar and Jammu and (i) the introduction of irrigation works. The Government of India have sanctioned the construction of a Railway to Kashmir—Kala Kī Sarai to Ujba 9 miles, from the Kashmir Frontier (broad gauge), thence via Domel and the Jhelum Valley route to Srinagar (metre gauge)—with motive power electricity, which will be derived from a big generating station on the River Jhelum near Rampur. The matter is however under reconsideration. The financial condition of the State is now very prosperous, the annual revenue having risen from 50 lakhs in 1891 to nearly 107 lakhs in 1906-07 while the trade with British India has greatly increased. The actual

The inhabitants of Hunza and Nagar come from one stock and speak the same language, but there has always been in the past, and, in a lesser degree, there is still a considerable amount of ill feeling between the two communities. The people of Hunza are Nisais (i.e., the followers of His Highness the Agha Khan) while the people of Nagar are Shias.

The fort of Chalt and its connected villages, lying between Hunza and Nagar and Gilgit, were long a source of contention between the two States, but in 1877 the Nagar Chief, with the assistance of the Kashmir Durbar, succeeded in obtaining possession of the disputed tract. From that date up to 1886, Chaprot and Chalt were held by Nagar and Kashmir troops. In 1886, when General Sir William Lockhart (then Colonel Lockhart), visited Hunza, the Thum of Hunza refused to allow his mission to proceed unless he would promise to restore these places to Hunza. Colonel Lockhart induced the Nagar ruler to remove the Nagar portion of the garrison, which has, since then, been solely furnished by Kashmir troops.

In 1886 Gharan Khan, the Thum of Hunza, was murdered by his son Safdar Ali, who, after his accession, professed his submission to the Maharaja of Kashmir. In 1888, however, the two States combined, succeeded in ejecting the Kashmir garrison from Gilgit and even threatened Gilgit. Finally, however, Chaprot, and in August of the same year Chalt and Chalt were re-occupied by Kashmir troops.

On the re-establishment of the British Agency at Gilgit in 1889, the Agent, Colonel Durand, visited Hunza and Nagar, and the Chiefs bound themselves to accept his control, to permit free passage to officers deputed to visit their countries, and to put an end to raiding on the Yarkand road and elsewhere. Subject to these conditions the Government of India sanctioned for the Chiefs yearly subsidies of Rs. 2,000 each, in addition to those already paid by the Kashmir Durbar. Shortly afterwards, in October 1889, an increase of Rs. 500 a year was granted to the Hunza Chief's subsidy, conditional on his good behaviour.

The Chiefs, however, failed to set up to their engagements, and their attitude continued to be unsatisfactory. In May 1891, a combined force from Hunza and Nagar threatened the Chalt fort, but dispersed on the arrival of reinforcements from Gilgit.

In November 1891 the Chiefs were informed that it was necessary to make roads to Chalt and on into their country. They refused to agree, insulted the British Agent's messenger, and assembled their tribesmen in strong positions, blocking the paths into their valley. Their positions, however, were carried after sharp fighting, and Nagar and Hunza were occupied. Thum Zafar Zahid Khan of Nagar, who had been acting under the ascendancy of his turbulent eldest son, Uzr Khan, at once submitted. Thum Safdar Ali of Hunza and his Wazir, Dadu, fled to Chinese Turkestan, where the former is still detained under surveillance by the Chinese authorities. Raja Uzr Khan of Nagar was deported to Kashmir, where he is still a state prisoner. The subsidies paid to both Chiefs by the Government of India and by the Kashmir State were withdrawn. A military force was maintained in Hunza and a Political Officer was left there to supervise the affairs of the State. This arrangement continued till 1897, when the garrison was replaced by the Hunza and Nagar levies and the permanent Political Officer was withdrawn. On the 15th September 1892, Muhammad Nazim Khan, a half-brother of Safdar Ali, was formally installed as Thum of Hunza by the British Agent in the presence of two Chinese envoys, who attended the darbar as honoured guests of the Government of India. Thum Zafar Zahid Khan was re-instated by the Kashmir Durbar, with the approval of the Government of India, as Chief of Nagar, his installation taking place on the 22nd September 1892. Sanads, approved by the Government of India, were granted by the Maharaja of Kashmir to both Chiefs.

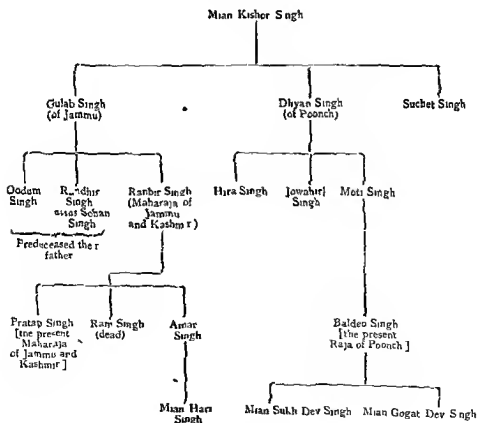

At the commencement of 1893, subsidies, amounting to Rs. 4,000 each, were renewed to the Chiefs, half the amount being granted by the Government of India and the other half being paid by the Kashmir Darbar.

Maharaja Ranbir Singh who had succeeded his father, Gulab Singh, in 1857, and after the death in 1860 of Jowahir Singh, who died without issue, the Jagir of Poonch was conferred by Maharaja Ranbir Singh on Moti Singh, the younger brother of Jowahir Singh and the father of the present Chief, Raja Sir Baldeo Singh, KCIE. The Raja was appointed to be a Knight Commander of the Most Eminent Order of the Indian Empire on the 1st January 1909.

As indicated below the Raja of Poonch holds his Jagir from the Maharaja whom he attends on State occasions and to whom he pays an annual nasar of Rs 233. His rights have in no respect been mediated by the Government of India, but Government have of late years required the Resident in Kashmir to exercise a general supervision over the administration of Poonch, and a settlement of the Jagir has been completed. In November 1906 the Government of India gave their consent to the adoption by the Maharaja of Kashmir of the second son of the Raja of Poonch merely for religious purposes and on the distinct understanding that the adoption would not have any bearing on the succession to the gadi of the Jammu and Kashmir State.

There is a flourishing market in the Poonch Haqua. A good six foot road for pack transport has been constructed from the town to Uri on the Jhelum and a similar road to Rawalpindi with a suspension bridge over the Jhelum at Lachman Patan. Other important tracks lead to Gulmarg, Tosh Maidan, and Jhelum.

HUNZA AND NAGAR

Hunza and Nagar are two small States situated to the extreme north west of Kashmir. They are divided by the Hunza river towards the north they extend to the mountainous region which adjoins the junction of the Hindu Kush and Mustagh ranges, towards the south they border on Gilgit, and on the west Hunza is separated from Ashkuman and Yasin by a range of mountains, while the Mustagh range trending southward shuts Nagar off from Baltistan on the east.

The inhabitants of Hunza and Nagar come from one stock and speak the same language, but there has always been in the past, and, in a lesser degree, there is still a considerable amount of ill feeling between the two communities. The people of Hunza are Nalials (i.e., the followers of His Highness the Agha Khan) while the people of Nagar are Shias.

The fort of Chalt and its connected villages, lying between Hunza and Nagar and Gilgit, were long a source of contention between the two States, but in 1877 the Nagar Chief, with the assistance of the Kashmir Durbar, succeeded in obtaining possession of the disputed tract. From that date up to 1886, Chaprot and Chalt were held by Nagar and Kashmir troops. In 1886, when General Sir William Lockhart (then Colonel Lockhart), visited Hunza, the Thum of Hunza refused to allow his mission to proceed unless he would promise to restore these places to Hunza. Colonel Lockhart induced the Nagar ruler to remove the Nagas portion of the garrison, which has, since then, been solely furnished by Kashmir troops.

In 1886 Gharan Khan, the Thum of Hunza, was murdered by his son Safdar Ali, who, after his accession, professed his submission to the Maharaja of Kashmir. In 1888, however, the two States combined, succeeded in ejecting the Kashmir garrison from Gilgit and even threatened Chalt. Finally, however, Chaprot, and in August of the same year Chaprot and Chalt were re-occupied by Kashmir troops.

On the re-establishment of the British Agency at Gilgit in 1890, the Agent, Colonel Durand, visited Hunza and Nagar, and the Chiefs bound themselves to accept his control, to permit free passage to officers deputed to visit their countries, and to put an end to raiding on the Yarkand road and elsewhere. Subject to these conditions the Government of India sanctioned for the Chiefs yearly subsidies of Rs. 2,000 each, in addition to those already paid by the Kashmir Durbar. Shortly afterwards in October 1889 an increase of Rs. 500 a year was granted to the Hunza Chiefs subsidy, conditional on his good behaviour.

The Chiefs, however, failed to act up to their engagements, and their attitude continued to be unsatisfactory. In May 1891, a combined force from Hunza and Nagar threatened the Chalt fort, but dispersed on the arrival of reinforcements from Gilgit.

In November 1891 the Chiefs were informed that it was necessary to make roads to Chalt and on into their country. They refused to agree, insulted the British Agent's messenger, and assembled their tribesmen in strong positions, blocking the paths into their valley. Their positions, however, were carried after sharp fighting, and Nagar and Hunza were occupied. Thum Zafar Zahid Khan of Nagar, who had been acting under the ascendancy of his turbulent eldest son, Uzr Khan, at once submitted. Thum Safdar Ali of Hunza and his Wazir, Dadu, fled to Chinese Turkestan, where the former is still detained under surveillance by the Chinese authorities. Raja Uzr Khan of Nagar was deported to Kashmir, where he is still a state prisoner. The subsidies paid to both Chiefs by the Government of India and by the Kashmir State were withdrawn. A military force was maintained in Hunza and a Political Officer was left there to supervise the affairs of the State. This arrangement continued till 1897, when the garrison was replaced by the Hunza and Nagar levies and the permanent Political Officer was withdrawn. On the 15th September 1892, Muhammad Nazim Khan, a half brother of Safdar Ali, was formally installed as Thum of Hunza by the British Agent in the presence of two Chinese envoys, who attended the darbar as honoured guests of the Government of India. Sanads, approved by the Government of India, were granted by the Maharaja of Kashmir to both Chiefs.

At the commencement of 1893, subsidies, amounting to Rs. 4,000 each, were renewed to the Chiefs, half the amount being granted by the Government of India, and the other half being paid by the Kashmir Darbar.

In the same year both Chiefs loyally assisted in the operations for the relief of the British garrison in Chitral and were suitably rewarded.

Thum Muhammad Nazim Khan of Hunza and Raja Sikandar Khan of Nagar attended the Coronation Durbar at Delhi on the 1st January 1903, on which date they were both made Companions of the Indian Empire.

In 1904 Thum Zafar Zaid Khan of Nagar, who had long been bed ridden, died and was succeeded by his son Sikandar Khan. The latter was formally installed as Thum of Nagar, in June 1905 by the Political Agent. The Hunza Chief, in view of his claim to the Raskam and Taghdumbash districts, which are situated to the north of the Hindu Kush watershed, has been permitted to continue to keep up an exchange of presents with the Chinese authorities in Kashgar. As regards Raskam, the Chinese authorities have acknowledged the right of Hunza to cultivate the tract, and in 1899 a small contingent of Hunza people started cultivating it. Eventually, however, the settlers were forcibly ejected by the Chinese. Since 1896 the local Chinese authorities have permitted the Hunza Chief to take a small tribute from the graziers, who resort in summer to the Taghdumbash Pamir. The whole question of Hunza's relations with China is now under consideration by His Majesty's Government.

Both Hunza and Nagar are autonomous as regards their internal affairs, but both acknowledge the suzerainty of His Highness the Maharaja of Kashmir, to whom they pay a tribute of nominal value. Both furnish a quota of levies for the defence of the frontier, and these receive pay from the Kashmir State, while they are armed with Snider carbines presented by the Government of India.

MYSORE

A Hindu State in southern India. It was the kingdom of the mythical Monkey King Sugriva, whose General, Hanuman, aided Rama in his expedition against Lanka (Ceylon) as described in the celebrated Hindu epic, the Ramayana. The capital, founded in 1524, was called Maheshwar (whence Mysore) after the buffalo-headed monster slain by the goddess Chamundi or Kali.

According to a genealogical table preserved in the family, the present ruling dynasty dates from A D 1399, when two brothers, Vijayaraja and Krishnaraja, came to Mysore, and one of them, by marrying the daughter of a petty baron, established a rule which, commencing with a few villages now comprises the Mysore territory.

In the reign of Chikka Krishnaraja Wodiar (1734—1765), the famous Haider Ali usurped the chiefship, but, on the fall of his son and successor, Tipu, the Hindu dynasty was restored under another Krishnaraja Wodiar. He proved an extravagant and oppressive ruler. The people broke into rebellion in 1831, and in consequence the British Government assumed the direct management of the State. The country was restored to native rule in March 1881, in the person of the late Maharaja Chamarajendra Wodiar, who died in Calcutta while on a visit to Lord Elgin in 1894. The lands forming the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore with certain adjacent villages, were assigned by the Maharaja to the British Government, who on their part restored the island of Seringapatam to His Highness.

The present Chief, Maharaja Krishnaraja Wodiar Bahadur, G C S I, is the eldest son of the late ruler and is now in his 25th year. His Highness has received a liberal education which embraced the theory and practice of administration. He was invested with full administrative powers by His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India on the 8th August 1902 and was made a Knight Grand Commander of the Star of India on 1st January 1907. The Maharaja is assisted by a Consultative Council, of which the Dewan (Mr. T. Ananda Rao) is the President, with two members (Messrs K P Puttaanna Chetty and H V Nanjundayya). In 1900 His Highness married the daughter of Rana Jhala Brane Singhji of Vana. The heir-presumptive is His Highness's brother, the Yuvaraja.

The climate of Mysore is agreeable. The seasons may with sufficient accuracy be divided into three, the rainy, the cold and the hot. The first commences with the bursting of the south-west monsoon, at the end of May or early in June, and continues with some interval in August or September to the middle of November, closing with the heavy rains of the north east monsoon. It is followed by the cold season, which is generally entirely free from rain, and lasts till the end of February. The hot season then sets in, towards the beginning of March, and increases in intensity to the end of May, with occasional relief from thunder storms. The temperature is the most equable during the rainy months, the range of thermometer at Bangalore at that season being between 64° and 84° f; in the cold season the mercury falls as low as 50° in the early morning and sometimes rises to 80° during the day. The minimum and maximum in the shade during the hottest months are about 66° and 90°, or in extreme seasons 95°.

Plague has declined considerably both in extent and virulence and while in the State territories the decrease is not so easy to explain, the diminution in the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore is probably largely due to the systematic measures recently adopted for the inoculation of the inhabitants and for the destruction of rats accompanied by improvement of the most congested areas in the bazaars and the building of extensions of the town

Of the 8 districts into which the State is divided, Shimoga is the chief rice growing tract, followed by Mysore with its fine system of irrigation from the Cauvery, while Chitaldroog is the principal district for unirrigated crops, it is also pre-eminently the cotton district. Sugarcane abounds in Kolar and Hassan. Coffee is largely grown in Kadur and Hassan. Tumkur has the greatest extent of cocoanut plantations, while Shimoga produces much arecanut. Bangalore and Mysore grow mulberry trees for the purposes of sericulture. Sandalwood is a State monopoly and produces a revenue of Rs 14 lakhs.

The drainage of the country, with slight exception, finds its way into the Bay of Bengal and is divisible into three great river systems, that of the Krishna on the north, the Cauvery on the south, the two Pennars and the Palar on the east. The only streams flowing to the Arabian Sea are those of the taluks in the north west which, uniting in the Sharavati hurl themselves down the ghats in the magnificent falls of Gersoppa, a sheer drop of 900 feet.

The most generally practised industrial arts, of native growth, are those connected with metallurgy, pottery, carpentry, tanning, glass-making the production of textile fabrics or the raw material for them, rope-making, expressing oil and saccharine matter, and the manufacture of earth salt.

The most remarkable industrial development of late years in Mysore has been in connection with gold mining. This State is now the principal gold producing centre in India, the output for 1907-1908 being £2,045 108. The source of the metal at present is the Kolar Gold Fields, situated to the east of a low ridge in the Bowringpet taluk. The one prominent fact which must strike every periodical visitor to the Fields is the constant increase both in buildings and population. It may be said without exaggeration that the tract, teeming with ceaseless activity, is now covered for the greater part of its entire length with dwelling-houses, huge collections of native huts and all the various structures and appliances which go to form a flourishing and up to date Mining Camp. The industry is wholly British and is under the management of the firm of Messrs John Taylor and Sons. The royalty paid by the Companies to the State in 1907-1908 amounted to about Rs 15 30 000. With a view to reduce the working expenses of the mines and thus stimulate this industry, the Durbar have adopted a bold scheme for utilizing the water-power of the Falls of the river Cauvery at Sivasamudrum for the generation of electricity and for the transmission of that power to the Gold Fields. The same power is also used to generate electric light in Mysore and Bangalore and to operate mills in the latter city. This undertaking yields a handsome revenue to the State the receipts for the current (Mysore) financial year being estimated at Rs 16,50,000. A scheme for the supply of good water to the Kolar Gold Fields has been completed and this project is also very remunerative to the State. A new feature in the mining industry is the discovery of minerals other than gold, more particularly manganese and chromium. Numerous Companies were started to exploit manganese in various parts of the State, but the fall of prices in 1907-1908 has reduced the successful concerns to one in the Shimoga District.

An institution peculiar to the Mysore State is the Representative Assembly of raiyats, pleaders and merchants, which meets annually at the Capital for a few days during the Dasserah. The members are elected, and represent certain specified areas. As a means of enabling leading patels and others to approach the Ruler at the Dasserah for the purpose of paying their respects and representing grievances and requirements, and as affording the Maharaja an opportunity for explaining what has been done and what is proposed, the Representative Assembly is a useful institution. Its aims and objects have been mistakenly described as securing popular representation, and it threatened at one time to become mischievous, but it is now being kept well in hand. A Legislative Council was established in June 1907 for making Laws and Regulations for the State, two seats on which have been thrown open to candidates recommended by the Representative Assembly.

Under the Instrument of Transfer, by which the Mysore State was restored to native rule, an annual subsidy of 35 lakhs is payable by the State to the British Government in consideration of the protection afforded to the State and of the fact that the Maharaja has been relieved of the obligation to keep troops ready to serve with the British Army when required.

The strength of the Mysore Army is limited to 1,000 horse and 2,000 foot, exclusive of officers and there are no guns which are fit merely for saluting purposes. This number includes the regiment of Imperial Service Cavalry maintained by the State. The effective strength of the latter force is 500. The Mysore Lancers are reported to be efficient, they are extremely well mounted and most generously housed and the Maharaja takes a personal interest in them. The State maintains also an efficient separate Transport Train of 300 carts and 700 ponies. Two hundred and fifty Imperial Service Lancers took part in the Delhi Manœuvres.

The State is governed on enlightened principles. The administrative system adopted is practically the same as that which was in force during the 50 years of British occupancy which terminated in 1881. In some branches there is room for improvement, but in others notably Public Works and Mining the liberal policy and the enlightened statesmanship of the late Sir Seshadri Iyer (Dewan of Mysore) have produced results which are probably finer than anything to be found in British India. The country is traversed by 411 miles of railway and projects for further extension of railway communication are under consideration. The province being largely dependent on agriculture measures for the extension of irrigation and for the improvement of agriculture occupy prominent attention. 6,841,954 acres of land have already been brought under cultivation and a feature of the country is the abundance of rain fed tanks, which, large and small, number no less than 39,000. The Marikavve project which was completed at a cost of 33½ lakhs is now supplying water to the ryots for irrigation. An Agricultural Chemist was appointed for analysing soils and agricultural produce and for advising planters and others in agricultural matters, and was provided with a Laboratory supplied with the most modern equipment. The appointment was, however, abolished in 1908. The services of a Mycologist and Entomologist have been secured for the investigation of fungoid diseases prevailing in the State. Agricultural Banks to lend money chiefly on the security of coffee, were founded in 1894, but the system not having proved a success no further loans are being given by the State and some of the Banks have been wound up. Co-operative Credit Societies on the British Indian model have been instituted. A Geological Department has been formed to explore scientifically the mineral resources of the country. Archaeology and Epigraphy have received adequate attention, the entire country having been surveyed and copies of inscriptions taken in situ under the supervision of a qualified officer. Medical relief has been extended to most parts of the country by the establishment of local hospitals and dispensaries and the appointment of trained midwives. There are 142 medical institutions in the State affording gratuitous medical relief to the public, excluding six hospitals for the treatment of special diseases—a lunatic asylum, a leper asylum, an eye infirmary and two maternity hospitals, and an isolation hospital. Sanitation and water-supply in the principal towns are receiving attention, and the Durbar have on hand a carefully considered scheme for improving the sanitary condition of the City of Mysore. A special Department of Public Health has recently been organized for dealing with epidemics and for effecting improvements in the general sanitary condition of the State. Education is making steady progress, the total number of educational institutions being 4146 with 1,23,106 pupils of whom 18,513 are girls. There are two First Grade English colleges, four Oriental colleges, forty six Sanskrit schools, one Engineering school, two Commercial schools, nineteen Industrial schools and two schools for deaf, mutes and the blind. Female education has made marked progress, a college is maintained at Mysore under efficient European supervision for their education. State Life Insurance has been introduced for the benefit of the public servants in the Mysore service.

The finances of the State are in a sound condition. The receipts for the year 1907-1908 are estimated at Rs. 2,28,15,000, and the expenditure at Rs. 2,27,99,000, including 16 lakhs for the Civil List of His Highness the Maharaja leaving a net surplus of Rs. 16,000.

The Maharaja is entitled to a salute of 21 guns. The Dowager Maharani (lately Maharani Regent) during the minority enjoyed a personal salute of 19 guns. This has been continued for her life-time.

The Maharaja accompanied by the Yuvaraja and the principal Sardars and officers of the State attended the Delhi Coronation Durbar.

The following Viceroys have paid visits to Mysore since the rendition of the State to native rule in 1881—Lords Dufferin (1886), Lansdowne (1892), Elgin (1895) and Curzon (1900 and 1902). Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales visited the State in January—February, 1906.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor General. The form of the commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—My honoured and valued friend—I desire to express the high consideration which I entertain for Your Highness and to subscribe myself Your Highness's sincere friend. The crest used is gold Kharita bag Kamkliwab (Gold and Silk brocade) String (Lori) Nimzar (gold and silk thread).

NEPAL

The modern Kingdom of Nepal is a narrow tract of country extending for about 520 miles along the southern slopes of the central portion of the Himalayas between the 80th and 88th degrees of East longitude. It has a varying breadth averaging 90 to 100 miles and nowhere above 140 miles. The general direction is from West to East, its most southern and eastern corner reaches to the 26th and its most northern and western point to the 30th degree North latitude.

The early history of Nepal is shrouded in mystery and mythology but the fact remains that the Nepal Valley in very ancient times became the focus of both Hindu and Buddhist religious veneration and rivalry. In spite of its seclusion the reputed sanctity of its many shrines attracted hither at different times Manjusri from China, Sakya Sinha Buddha, Raja Dharma Datta from Kauchi in Madras, who conquered the country and introduced the Hindu element which still exists, and the famous law giver Aśoka from Hindustan, whose daughter Charumati married a Kshatriya named Devapata and settled in the country.

In pre historic days the valley bore the name of 'Nag Hrad,' the 'Tank of the serpent.' That it was once upon a time a huge lake would appear by ancient Hindu writings to be a fact, and is geologically speaking most highly probable. To Manjusri by the Buddhists and to Vishnu by the Hindus is given the credit of transforming the lake into a fertile plain by cutting a pass for the water through the mountains. Its present name of Nepal is said to be derived from the great Rishi or devotee named "Ne Muni." He performed his devotions at the junction of the Bagmati and Keshavati streams and instructed the people in the path of true religion.

The following dynasties flourished in their order —

- (a) Gopala — (Cowherds) Founded by Ne Muni which provided 8 kings
- (b) Ahirs — 3 Kings Founded by Bara Sinha, who came from Hindustan
- (c) Kirantis — 29 Kings The Kirantis originally came from the eastern hills and settled first at Thankot at the extreme west of the Nepal valley
- (d) Somavansis — 5 Kings founded by Nimikha, a Hindu
- (e) Surayvansis — 31 Kings The founder of which was Bhumi Varman a Chattri Rajput and a descendant of one of the followers of Sakya Sinha Buddha
- (f) 1st Thakur — 18 Kings Founded about 634 A.D. by Amsu Varman, who married the daughter of the last Surayvansi Raja,
- (g) Navakot Thakur — 5 Kings founded by the Thakurs of Navakot on the failure of issue to Jaykama Deva the last of the Thakurs
- (h) 2nd Thakur — 12 Kings Vama Deva a collateral descendant of Amsu Varman's family, expelled the Navakot Thakurs and resumed the ruling power in Nepal, 1083 A.D.

- (i) Karnatak—6 Kings Founded by Raja Nanya Deva He established his court at Bhatgaon but ruled over the whole valley in about 1302 A D He came from the South Karnatak country and is said to have introduced the Newars, who were originally Bramhaputra Chattris and Achars and came with him as soldiers
- (j) Magar—Makunda Sena, King of Palpa ravaged Nepal and instituted a reign of terror for a term of years, but his forces were annihilated by a pestilence which decimated the valley He died at Devighat and Nepal remained in a devastated condition without a ruler for eight years
- (k) Vaish Thakur—The Navakot Thakurs thereupon returned and ruled for 225 years
- (l) Ayodhya—4 Kings Founded by Hari Sinha Deva king of Simraun (Tirhut) in 1324
- (m) 3rd Thakur—The fourth and last king of the Ayodhya Dynasty had no son, but his daughter was married to a descendant of the Mallas, who were displaced by the Karnatak Raja and he thus introduced the 3rd Thakur Dynasty, which lasted sometimes divided into the 3 petty kingdoms of Patan, Katmandu, and Bhatgaon and sometimes united under one head until displaced by Prithvi Narayan the Gurkha

It is claimed according to Gurkha history that Prithvi Narayan was the 51st in descent from Rishi Raj Rana Raja of Chitorgarh When Chitor was conquered by the Muham madans Manmath Rana Rava retired to Ujjain and his son, Bhupal came to the hills and settled at Bhirkot He had two sons—Kancha and Mincha. The former retained Bhirkot, Garhung and Dhor While Mincha went to Nayakot and ruled over it One of his descendants Kutmandan Sah became Raja of Kashki and his son, Yasobam Sah was made King of Lamjung Drabya Sah Yasobam's second son rebelled against his father and took possession of Gurkha in 1559 and his descendants reigned there until the time of Prithvi Narayan Sah in 1742 A D

Prithvi Narayan was the consolidator of the present kingdom of Nepal and the founder of the House of Gurkha He invaded the Nepal valley and defeated the Newar kings of Bhatgaon Katmandu, and Patan after a series of campaigns lasting from 1749—1769 The final conquest of the valley from the first siege at Kartipur in 1765 till the fall of Bhatgaon in 1769 occupied four years

The Newars under the high spirited and heroic Gajnaprejas have the credit of having displayed the most splendid bravery in the defence of their capital while the Gurkhas without doubt signalled their triumphs by savage barbarity They have since done their best to destroy any military spirit the Newars may have possessed and have debarred them from all forms of military service

British relationship with Nepal began in 1767, when the Newar dynasty applied for our help against the Gurkha invasion A small force was despatched under Captain Kinloch, but had to retire owing to the deadly climate of the Terai. The Gurkhas under Prithvi Narayan then extinguished the Newar dynasty and the Chief was eventually recognised by Government as Raja of Nepal. Having conquered the hill country of Makwanpur the Gurkhas claimed the cultivated lowlands on payment to the British Government of the same tribute as was paid by the Raja of Makwanpur. The claim was admitted and for 30 years the Gurkhas paid the annual tribute, a large size elephant. The tribute was relinquished by the Treaty of 1801.

The conquests begun by Prithvi Narayan were carried on by his successors. About 1786 the Gurkha forces under Damodar Pande making common cause with Mahadatta, King of Palpa, defeated and annexed the territories of the Chaubisya Rajas in the hills. The following year Sarup Sinha, another Gurkha General, conquered the whole of the Kiranti country inhabited by Rais and Limbus. Expeditions to Sikkim and Tibet followed in the succeeding years, but in 1792 the Chinese retaliated for the invasion of Tibet by sending an army of 70,000 men into Nepal by the Kerong Pass and after severe fighting dictated terms to the Gurkha King at Nayakot, 25 miles from Katmandu.

To deter the Chinese from invading Nepal, the Raja concluded a treaty with the Indian Government, at the same time applying for military aid. Lord Cornwallis offered to negotiate a peace between Nepal and China, but before any steps could be taken the Gurkhas had been compelled to accept the terms of the victorious Chinese.

Up to the year 1800 the Gurkhas avoided all close alliance with the Indian Government, intercourse being restricted to friendly letters and the payment of the annual tribute. In 1801, however, a treaty was concluded with Nepal, providing for the establishment of a Residency at Katmandu and for otherwise improving our relations with the State, but matters terminated with the return to power of one of the elder Ranas of a deposed Chief Ran Bahadur Sah and it again became the policy of the Durbar to evade fulfilment of its engagements with the British. Captain Knox, the first Resident, withdrew from Nepal in March 1803 and Lord Wellesley formally dissolved alliance with the Durbar in January 1804. From this date to the year 1812 our transactions with Nepal consisted chiefly of unavailing remonstrances against unprovoked aggressions throughout the entire length of the frontier. Commissioners were appointed by both Governments. British rights to the disputed districts were established but the Nepalese evaded restitution. War was finally declared in 1814 and the Nepalese were compelled to sue for peace. The Treaty of Segowli was signed in November 1814, but the Nepalese decided on a second campaign before its ratification and it was not till December 1815 that they were finally brought to terms.

The first British Resident appointed under this treaty was Mr Gardener. He found Bhim Sen Thapa, the Minister, invested with complete control over the country. Bhim Sen was the first of the series of practically autocratic Prime Ministers who have since his time exercised the ruling power and gradually relegated the Sovereign into the position of a mere figure head.

The Nepalese were at first thoroughly distrustful of our good intentions, and it was due mainly to the great personal influence combined with the firm and tactful dealing of Brian Houghton Hodgson, who was Mr Gardener's Assistant for several years and succeeded him in 1829 and was Resident in Nepal till 1843, that critical situations were overcome in the disturbed times when our military power was busily occupied in the wars with Ava, China and Afghanistan from 1826-1841 and that the Nepalese were saved from committing themselves to avert acts of hostility. In 1837 a mutual engagement for the surrender of Thugs and Dakaites was concluded between the two Governments and in 1839 an engagement was secured in which the Nepalese promised to give up secret intrigues and intercourse with the allies of the East India Company in India and a further agreement for promoting friendly relations was signed in 1841 by 94 of the Goorooes, Chautarias and Chiefs of Nepal.

The policy inaugurated by Brian Hodgson which gave promise of securing the stability of a friendly Government did not commend itself to Lord Ellenborough, the newly appointed Viceroy, and Brian Hodgson was recalled from Nepal in 1843.

Then followed a struggle for power which was ended in 1846 by the bold and unscrupulous actions of Jung Bahadur, who aided by the Maharani Regent and by successful intrigues and wholesale massacre of the principal nobles, cleared all opponents from his path and wrung from the Sovereign for his family a grant of perpetual right to the office of Prime Minister. The history of Nepal since that date is the history of the Jung (Bahadur Rana) family.

In 1850 shortly after his elevation to the position of Prime Minister, Jung accepted an invitation to visit England, and since then a more friendly bearing towards the British became apparent. In 1875 he proposed to pay a second visit but having met with an accident on the eve of his departure from Bombay the design had to be abandoned. In 1870 the Duke of Edinburgh accompanied Sir Jung on a sporting expedition, and in 1876 the Prince of Wales (now King Edward VII) accepted an invitation to shoot in the Nepal Terai in the neighbourhood of Bareilly and Kumau.

At intervals between 1854 and 1873 there were quarrels between Nepal and Tibet, which for the most have ended favourably for the former, Tibet agreeing by treaty in 1856 to receive a Nepalese representative at Lhasa though she retained the Kerong tract of country to the south of the main range of the Himalayas which she had seized. These quarrels in no way affected the relations between the British Government and Nepal.

During the mutiny of 1857 and the subsequent campaigns Jung rendered valuable service to the Indian Government in consideration of which he was rewarded with a G. C. B. and a tract of country on the frontier of Pilibhit and Western Oudh, which had been ceded to the British Government in 1815, was restored to Nepal. Sir Jung was subsequently created a G. C. S. I. and was also granted a personal salute of 19 guns.

After the death of Sir Jung in 1877 the Premiership devolved on his brother, Sir Ranudip Singh, but the conditions laid down by Sir Jung for the succession to his power and privileges were not carried out in their entirety. Sir Ranudip appropriated the title of Maharaja and the estates of Kaski and Lamjung appertaining thereto, which should have devolved upon Sir Jung's eldest son; this led to family dissension and eventually to the murder of Sir Ranudip in 1885 by a combination of the Shamsheer branch of the family, the eldest legitimate representative of which, Bir Shamsheer, succeeded to the position of the Prime Minister and became Maharaja. On the death of Sir Bir Shamsheer his brother Deb Shamsheer succeeded.

Deb Shamsheer was thought weak and unreliable and was permitted to hold office for a few months only. In June 1901, the present Prime Minister Sir Chandra Shamsheer, with the assistance of the other brothers [Kbadga Shamsheer the eldest who was in exile being excepted] and of the principal officials of the country, assumed the office of Prime Minister which he still holds. Deb Shamsheer was deported and now lives at Mussoorie.

The third and fourth sons of the Prime Minister are married to the Maharajadhiraja's two daughters. In June 1906 a son and heir was born to the Maharajadhiraja and in December a son to the Prime Minister, making the birth

The Maharajadhiraja is well disposed towards the British Government. He rendered practical assistance in connection with the Tibet Mission by supplying us with yaks and by furnishing intelligence provided by the Nepalese Representative at Lhasa, and also offered to place Nepalese troops at the disposal of Government. The Prime Minister addressed the Council at Lhasa a remarkable letter dwelling on the advantages which Nepal had gained from her relations with the British Government, advising the Tibetans to effect a speedy settlement and warning them that no help could be expected from Nepal against the British. In the 2nd article of the Treaty between Nepal and Tibet it is stated that 'the Gurkha Government will in future give all the assistance that may be in its power to the Government of Tibet if the troops of any other Raja invade that country. Strictly speaking then the Prime Minister's action was an infringement of this Treaty and the letter to the Government of Tibet to which reference is here made was necessary in order to justify the disregard of this Treaty.

His services have been recognised by his elevation to the dignity of a Knight Grand Commander of the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India

Although the confidence and good will of the Maharajadhiraja and of a large and increasing number of the principal officials in the good intentions of Government is now assured, there is still a considerable leaven of suspicion and distrust in the minds of many of the officials. The task of the progressive party in the country is by no means an easy one and both time and light handling will be necessary before faith in our assurances of non-interference will be generally accepted. The position of the Resident remains as isolated as ever

Although the Prime Minister is the de facto Ruler and in many ways has the power of an autocrat, the system of Government appears to have a tendency to become gradually constitutional

All orders and decisions are passed by the Maharajadhiraja in Council. The Council is composed of the State Bhairads. Every Commissioned officer in the Military Department and every officer above the rank of Khairdar in the Civil Department is a Bhairadar and eligible to be called to the Council. In addition to those especially nominated who attend the Council meetings as a matter of course, every Military officer above the rank of Lieutenant and every Civil officer above the rank of Naib Subah has the right to be present in Council and to give an opinion on subjects open to discussion

The precise nature of the protectorate of the British Crown over Nepal is not clearly defined, but the State must be recognized as falling under our exclusive political influence and control, and the Maharajadhiraja is regarded as a Native Prince or Chief under the suzerainty of His Majesty exercised through the Governor General of India

The men are armed with a Martini Henry pattern rifle of local manufacture, but use various old rifles, sniders and muzzle loading Enfields for ordinary drill and parade purposes. The Durbar also possess 111 guns of their own manufacture and 8,000 Martini Henry rifles and 6 muzzle loading rifled mountain guns sold to them by the British Government in 1894. In 1904-90 Martini Henry and 25 Lee-Netford rifles were presented to the Durbar by the Government of India, and in October 1906 a further gift of 2,500 Martini Henry rifles was made by Government and in 1908 another 20,000

The Durbar purchase ammunition for the musketry training of their Army from the Government of India to the extent of about 10,00,000 rounds annually

Elaborate preparation was made by Sir Chandra Shamsher to entertain His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales by giving him a big game shoot in Nepal during February 1906 but unfortunately owing to the outbreak of a sudden epidemic of cholera in the Prime Minister's Camp the project had to be abandoned at the last moment

In November 1906 His Excellency Lord Kitchener visited Nepal and met with an enthusiastic reception. He announced at a Durbar held by His Highness the Maharajadhiraja the honour conferred on Sir Chandra by His Majesty the King Emperor, in granting him the rank of General in the Army and appointing him Honorary Colonel of the 4th Gurkha Rifles

Up to the year 1888 the recruiting of Gurkha sepoys for the British service was on an unsatisfactory footing but since the accession to power of the Shamsher family this has been entirely changed and no difficulty is now experienced in keeping the rank of our Gurkha Regiments up to full strength in spite of the fact that some 10 new battalions of Gurkhas have been added to the Indian army

As the result of His Excellency Lord Kitchener's visit satisfactory arrangements were made by the Durbar for the extension of the Indian army reserve system to the Gurkha regiments of the Indian army

The supply of recruits for the Gurkha regiments of the Indian army continues to be ample and the attitude of the Nepal Durbar in all questions relating to the army is satisfactory.

To facilitate the disposal of appeals a new appellate court was established in Khatmandu in 1906, and for the more expeditious despatch of routine judicial proceedings in which Nepalese and British subjects are concerned, ordinary judicial processes to and from the local courts in the Terai are now sent direct to each other by the officials concerned.

The trade of Nepal with British India continues to increase and now shows a balance amounting to 150 lacs in favour of the former.

In February 1907 the Prime Minister visited Calcutta and Hastings House was placed at his disposal. He paid and received visits from the Viceroy. In April 1908, Sir Chandra accompanied by his step brother, sons and about 10 other persons of rank left Nepal on a visit to England. On arrival in England His Majesty King Edward VII was pleased to grant them an audience. The Prime Minister was made a G. C. B. in July 1908 and the University of Oxford conferred on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Law.

The Maharajahdiraja is entitled to a salute of 21 guns from British Batteries, and the Prime Minister to 19.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor General. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows:—"My honoured and valued friend,—I desire to express the high consideration which I entertain for your Highness, and to subscribe myself your Highness's sincere friend." The crest used is gold Kharita bag Kamkhab (Gold and silk brocade). String (Dori) Nimzar (Gold and silk thread).

CHITRAL

The present ruling family are descended from one Baba Ayub, who is said by some to have been a descendant of Timur, the Moghul Emperor, and by others to have belonged to a noble family of the Hazara district in the Punjab. Baba Ayub settled in Chitral about the beginning of the 17th century, and entered the service of the Ruling Chief, a Rais of the same family as the rulers of Gilgit. About one hundred years later, the Rais line became extinct and Nohtarar Shah (also known as Shah Kator, I), a lineal descendant of Baba Ayub became Chief, or Mehtar as he is locally styled.

In 1876 Aman ul Mulk, father of the present Mehtar sought the protection of Kashmir, and in the following year an agreement was signed between the two States (with the approval of the Government of India), which served to protect Chitral from Afghan aggression.

At the time of his accession Aman ul Mulk only ruled over the lower portion of Chitral the upper portion being under the sway of the Khushwakt branch of the family but before he died in 1892 his territory extended from Bailam, near Asmar, to Soma, about 50 miles from Gilgit.

After the death of Aman ul-Mulk rulers succeeded each other in rapid succession, the country being in a state of constant disturbance, which culminated in March 1895 in the British Agent and his escort being besieged in the Chitral

On the 3rd of March 1895, at the commencement of the siege, the present Mehtar

† Note—The present Mehtar's territory extends from Arandu to Baramulla in the main valley of the Chitral River and also includes the subsidiary valleys of Lutkoh, Tonkhu, Mulukho and Terich.

Shuja ul Mulk, the youngest of Aman ul Mulk's legitimate sons, was provisionally installed as Mehtar over the Kator districts minus the Narsat Ilaka, which is now included in the Afghan District of Asmar. The siege was raised in April 1895 by the joint operations of the Chitral Relief Force under the command of Sir Robert Low, and the force from Gilgit commanded by Colonel Kelly. Since then a British garrison has been maintained in the country. The strength of this garrison was at first two battalions of Native infantry, one company of Bengal Sappers and Miners and one section of a mountain battery. It was, however reduced in 1899 by one battalion of Native infantry.

Shuja ul Mulk is now 31 years of age and is intelligent, and promises to turn out an enlightened ruler. He has several children. He visited Calcutta in 1899 as the guest of His Excellency the Viceroy, in April 1902 he attended the Viceregal Durbar at Peshawar, and in January 1903 the Delhi Coronation Durbar, on which occasion he was invested as a Companion of the Indian Empire. He was permitted to visit India during the cold weather of 1904-05, and again in the following year when he was presented to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at a garden party at Government House Peshawar. He can read and write Persian, an accomplishment which it is perhaps needless to say, his predecessors never dreamt of acquiring. He is a keen sportsman and plays polo regularly, being a fair exponent of the local game.

There has been a marked increase in the amount of land under cultivation and in the general prosperity of all classes of the people since the disturbances in 1895.

One hundred and eight Chitral Levies are employed between Chitral and the Lowara pass, and are armed and paid by the Government of India. In addition to these levies there is a Corps of Chitral Scouts numbering 900 men. These are also armed and paid by the Government of India. The Mehtar is Honorary Commandant of the Scouts, in which he takes a keen interest.

At the Mehtar's request, an officer of the Forest Department was deputed to Chitral in September 1907 for four months to report on the local forests.

In September 1907, the Mehtar paid an informal visit, for ten days, to Simla. During the visit he was granted an interview with His Excellency Lord Minto.

He receives a subsidy of rupees twenty thousand per annum, twelve thousand of which is paid by the Government of India and the balance by the Maharaja of Kashmir, the immediate Suzerain.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Foreign Secretary. He is not addressed in English. The kharita bag is white longcloth.

DIR

The rulers of Dir are Akhund Khel Pанда Khel of the Malezai Akoza Yusafzai. The founder of the line was Mulla II as known as Akhund Baba, a holy man who flourished in the 17th century, but his grandson Ghulam Khan, seems to have been the first to acquire temporal power.

The late Chief Muhammad Sharif Khan, was born about 1848, and succeeded his father Rahmatulla Khan in 1884. After a protracted struggle, he was at length in 1890 driven out of Dir by Umra Khan Khan of Jandol and forced to take refuge in Swat. He made several attempts in the succeeding years to regain his country, but was unsuccessful.

In 1895 on the advance of the Chitral Relief Expedition, Muhammad Sharif Khan came in to the Political Officer, and did good service by advancing up the Panjkora line with his own forces, recovering Dir from Umra Khan's garrison and pushing on a force into Chitral territory, which seized the Drosh Fort, he also contributed to the raising of the siege of Chitral by showing the near approach of Sir Robert Low's column, and rendered good service by capturing and banding over the Chitrali pretender, Sher Afzal.

At the conclusion of the expedition, Muhammad Sharif Khan, now restored to his Khanship, entered into an agreement with the Government of India, by which he undertook to keep open the Chitral road from Chakdara to Ashbreth, to protect the whole line with levies, to maintain the road in good repair, to make such postal arrangements as were required, to arrange to protect the telegraph on any occasions when it might be put up, etc. In return for these services he was granted an annual subsidy of Rs 10,000, and a present of 400 rifles, with a suitable amount of ammunition. The Government of India also undertook to pay the levies required for the road, and to defray the cost of carrying the post. In consideration of an annual payment of Rs 10,000 to the Khan, all trade passing over the road was freed from all taxes and tolls in Dir territory. In July 1897, Muhammad Sharif Khan was granted the title of Nawab by the Government of India. In March 1899 his subsidy was raised to Rs 15,000. In July 1900, he was granted an additional payment of Rs 1,000 a year as compensation for certain dues formerly levied by him from the inhabitants of the north western slopes of the Lowara range.

In the spring of 1897, Muhammad Sharif Khan annexed to his territories the Upper Swat right bank tribes, which had till then been practically independent. In October 1898, he came to an agreement with the Khan of Nawagai under which he annexed the Jandol valley. In December 1898, he executed an agreement with the Government of India defining the boundaries of his territories, and undertaking not to interfere with, or commit aggression on, any tribes beyond those boundaries.

The engagements made by Muhammad Sharif Khan with Government were on the whole satisfactorily carried out. In the disturbances raised by the Mad Fakir in 1897 the bulk of the Dir tribes, except those in the Swat valley, took no part, and when the Fakir attempted in November-December 1898 to attack the Chitral road, he was repulsed by Dir forces under Abdulla Khan of Robat.

In March 1900, the Nawab visited Calcutta on the invitation of His Excellency the Viceroy. He was present at the Viceregal Durbar held at Peshawar in 1902 and also at the Delhi Coronation Durbar in 1903, on which occasion he was invested as a Companion of the Indian Empire.

In 1903 Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught paid a visit to Malakod and Chakdara. The Khan Khel jirga of Thana had the honour of being presented to His Royal Highness. In the same year the Nawab came to India on a pilgrimage to Ajmer, and also visited various places of interest. He died on the 8th December 1904, the last year of his life being embittered by quarrels between his two eldest sons, which were fermented, to a great extent, by his wife, Shahn Bibi. The Nawab's eldest son Badshah Khan, was recognised as Khan of Dir, and secured his Khanship after a severe struggle with his brother, Miangul Jan who was supported by the Khans of Nawagai, Barwa, and Khar. He receives the same allowances as were enjoyed by his late father, and has undertaken to pay attention to the Dir forests, which in his father's time, as well as in his own, have been considerably exploited by native contractors from Peshawar.

The comparative peace and order which have obtained in Dir since the opening of the Chakdara Chitral road have led to a considerable increase in the area under crops, and in the general prosperity of the country, but the rule of the present Khan has been so far unpopular, he has alienated most of his subordinates by arbitrary acts and civil war has been imminent ever since his accession. The peace of the road depends practically on the Dir Levies who are armed and paid by Government.

A great part of the Dir territory is divided in minor Manates held by relations of the late Nawab or by the heads of the main sections of the Malcazi tribe.

NAWAGAI (BAJAUR)

(Of the above, perhaps 400 square miles and 40,000 people acknowledge the Khan. The rest dispute his supremacy.)

The Chiefs of Nawagai belong to the Ibrahim Khel section of the Hal Khel Salarzai Tarkani. They were formerly acknowledged as Khans by the whole of the Tarkani tribe, their territory thus including the Jandol, Maidan, and Baraul valleys, but owing to tribal dissensions (and particularly to the rise of the Mast Khel family of Jandol Khans) their territories and power have considerably diminished. The Khan of Nawagai now holds the tract known as Surkamar, in which Nawagai is situated, the upper part of the Rud valley as far as the mouth of the Salarzai valley, and the lower parts of the Salarzai, Mamund, and Chaharmung valleys. The present Khan, Safdar Khan, was born about 1842 and succeeded to the Khanate about 1882. From his accession onwards he was involved in the struggle carried on between Umra Khan of Jandol and the Dir Khan, usually in opposition to Umra Khan, at whose hands he suffered several defeats. At this time he was in receipt of an allowance of Rs. 20,000 from the Amir, but after the signature of the Durand Convention this was discontinued.

Before the Chitral Relief Expedition started in 1895, the Khan offered his services but he was subsequently exposed to great pressure from the Afghan side and misled by false representations of the intentions of Government. His attitude during the first part of the expedition was doubtful. Finally, however, when convinced that his interests lay in serving Government, he worked well to put a stop to the fanatical attacks on the troops in the Jandol valley. In November 1895 he was granted an allowance of Rs. 6,000 a year on condition of future good service.

In the troubles of 1897, though severely tried by fanatical pressure, he in the end stood firm, and rendered good service to the Bajaur Field Force, as in a still greater degree did his brother and cousin, the Khans of Khar and Jar. His subsidy was increased to Rs. 10,000 from the 1st October 1897.

Safdar Khan has been constantly at war with the tribes around him, the Mohmands, Mamunds and Salarzais, and has at times found it hard to hold his own. Disputes with Dir have complicated his troubles. In 1895 there was some fighting in Jandol between his forces and those of the Nawab of Dir. The matter was finally settled by a compromise which left Jandol to Dir, and gave Nawagai a free hand in the Salarzai valley. In 1899 Safdar Khan was hard pressed by a combination of the tribes, and he was assisted by Government with a present of ammunition. Latterly, he has got the upper hand in the Chaharmung and the greater part of the Salarzai valley, and has strengthened his footing among the Mamunds. In August 1899 his differences with Dir were settled at an interview between the two Chiefs held at Chakdara in the Political Agent's presence. The Chiefs met again of their own motion in May 1902 and entered into a compact of friendship, in pursuance of which the Nawab of Dir sent a force to co-operate with the Khan in a short campaign against the Mamunds, which was successful. In 1904, Safdar Khan, who in the early part of the previous year had received the title of 'Nawab,' invaded Dir territory, and attacked Badshah Khan, the present Khan of Dir, but his lashkar was repulsed and he had to retire. Through the intrigues of the Khan of Barwa he was persuaded to make a move on Jandol in the beginning of 1905, some fighting ensued but a truce was eventually effected.

His son, Muhammad Ali Jan, rebelled against him in 1905 on account of the Nawab's partiality to his younger son and obtained the aid of many of the surrounding tribes. He succeeded in capturing Nawagai and practically ousted his father from the chieftainship. He is now the de facto ruler in Nawagai, though the struggle still continues in a desultory fashion.

In 1903 Safdar Khan attended the Delhi Coronation Durbar and also visited Ajmer accompanied by his two sons and brother.

Safdar Khan has a numerous family, his eldest son, Muhammed Ali Jan, being over thirty five. His country, with the exception of a tract round Nawagai, is divided up into minor Khanates under his sons and relations. Of these, the most important are Khar under the Khan's nephew, Muhammad Jan Khan (who succeeded on the death of his father, Sardar Khan, in November 1907) and Pashat and Jar under his cousin Samiulla Khan.

ALWAR

The State was founded by Rao Partab Singh, of Macheri, who was descended through Naru from Raja Uda: Karan who ruled Jaipur in the fourteenth century. The Alwar family are therefore, Kuchwaha Rajputs of the Naruka sub-clan.

Rao Partab Singh obtained possession of Alwar in 1775. He made himself independent of Jaipur and was granted the title of 'Rao Raja' by the Emperor Shah Alam. He was succeeded by his adopted son Bakhtawar Singh, in whose time relations were first entered into with the British Government. Bakhtawar Singh accepted the protection of the English in 1803. He assisted Lord Lake against the Marathas, and after the battle of Laswari, was assigned certain districts by Lord Lake for the help afforded during the campaign. It is not clear whether Bakhtawar Singh was granted the title of 'Maharao Raja' by Lord Lake, but he was the first Chief of Alwar to use this title, and he is thus described in the treaty made between Lord Lake and himself.

Maharao Raja Bakhtawar Singh died in 1815 and was succeeded by his adopted son, Banne Singh. In 1837 this Chief showed his loyalty to the British Government by despatching his best troops to the assistance of the Agra garrison, but on the way the little force encountered and was defeated by the mutinous sepoys of the Nasirabad Brigade. The Maharao Raja's Rajput body-guard was cut to pieces on the field and the guns of the Alwar Army were lost. Banne Singh died before the news of this disaster reached him. He was succeeded by his son Sheodan Singh, a boy of thirteen years of age. The misconduct of the Muhammadan Ministers of the State led to a rising of the Rajput nobles, and a Political Agent was appointed to Alwar to advise the Council of Regency during the minority. In 1863 Sheodan Singh attained his powers, and shortly afterwards the Agency was removed. The affairs of the State soon fell into confusion, and the Chief's Muhammadan sympathies and resumption of hereditary and religious grants created such discontent among his subjects that the British Government had again to intervene. In 1870 the Maharao Raja was deprived of power, and the administration of the State was placed in the hands of a council under the supervision of a Political Agent.

Sheodan Singh died without an heir in 1874. The election to the gadi was left to the 'Kotris' or principal Naruka families and their choice fell on Thakur Mangal Singh of Thana. Maharao Raja Mangal Singh was granted powers in 1877, and continued to administer the State well until his death in May 1892.

Maharao Raja Mangal Singh was an Honorary Lieutenant Colonel in the British Army and a Knight Grand Commander of the Star of India.

In 1889 the title of 'Maharaja' was conferred upon him as a hereditary distinction. He was succeeded by his son Jey Singh, who was born on the 14th June 1882. After his father's death the administration of the State was carried on by the State Council under the general supervision of the Political Agent. The young Maharaja joined the Mayo College in 1893 and left in 1898. On leaving the College his education was supervised by a guardian, and after the latter's departure in January 1903 by the Political Agent.

His Highness Maharaja Sanat Jey Singh was invested with ruling powers by His Excellency Lord Curzon, Viceroy and Governor General of India on the 10th December 1903. The exercise of these powers were subject to certain restrictions which however, were removed in January 1909.

Maharaja Jey Singh proceeded on a tour to Europe in April 1907 and returned on the 30th August 1907. He was created a Knight Commander of the Star of India on the 1st January 1909.

BHARATPUR

The rulers of Bharatpur and Karauli claim common descent from a Rajput ancestor, named Sind Pal. But while Karauli is still a Rajput State the rulers of Bharatpur are Jats.

The story is that Bai Chand, a descendant of Sind Pal having no family by his own wife seized a Jat woman of the village of Sinsini, and by her bad sons, whose descendants founded Bharatpur.

The ruling family have thus always been known as Sinsinwar Jats.

The State was founded probably about the beginning of the eighteenth century by one Brij, who with his successor Churaman, were noted freebooters owing allegiance to the Emperor of Delhi.

The first Chief of note was Suraj Mal, who assumed the title of Raja and built the present fortress of Bharatpur about the year 1730. Originally a small mud fort, it became a stronghold of considerable extent, protected on all sides by a mud wall of great height and thickness flanked by bastions and surrounded by a deep and wide ditch, the work having, it is said, taken eight years to construct.

Suraj Mal took an active and successful part in the numerous struggles between the Moghals the Marathas the Rohillas and Duranis during the first half of the century, and eventually during the confusion that ensued on the defeat of the Marathas at Panipat, he seized the town of Agra which the Jats afterwards held for thirteen years, and made himself master of the surrounding districts. Subsequently hostilities broke out between him and the Moghals, and Suraj Mal was killed in 1763.

He was succeeded by his son Jowahir Singh who, by coming into conflict with the Maharaja of Jaipur, was responsible for the loss of a substantial portion of Bharatpur territory, which, together with lands, formerly belonging to Jaipur went to form the separate principality of Alwar.

During the next two Chiefships those of Newal Singh and Ranjit Singh, the third and fourth sons of Suraj Mal, the Jats lost much of their power, and many of their possessions were wrested from them by the Moghals. Bharatpur was besieged and a heavy indemnity taken from the Chief and Agra was lost. The Marathas again invaded Northern India. They reduced the whole country to subjection and in 1782 all Ranjit Singh's territories were seized by Sandhya. Fourteen parganas were afterwards restored and Ranjit Singh also obtained the cession of Dig and eleven parganas.

In 1803 the British concluded a treaty with Ranjit Singh, who assisted General Lake in the defeat of the Marathas at Agra, in return for which service he received a grant of certain districts. Immediately afterwards, however, while still in alliance with the English Government Ranjit Singh entered into secret correspondence with the Marathas, and at the battle of Dig his treachery displayed itself by an open attack upon the British troops with whom his own were supposed to be in co operation This incident led to the memorable and unsuccessful siege of Bharatpur by Lord Lake Four assaults were made and repelled with a loss to the besiegers of 3,000 men Ranjit Singh, however, found it advisable to make overtures of peace, which were accepted in 1805. A new treaty was concluded by which he agreed to pay an indemnity and was guaranteed in the territories previously held Ranjit Singh died in the same year

He was succeeded by his eldest son, Randhir, who died in 1823, leaving the gadi to his brother, Baladeva, who died after reigning for eighteen months His son, Balwant Singh, then six years old, was recognised as heir by the British Government, but he was opposed and imprisoned by his cousin, Durjan Sal, who also advanced claims to the gadi

The disputed succession threatened a protracted feud, and eventually the British Government consented to the deposition of the usurper Bharatpur was besieged a second time by a British force, this time under Lord Combermere The fort was successfully stormed on 18th January 1826 and Durjan Sal carried off as a prisoner to Allahabad The young Maharaja was put on the gadi under the superintendence of a Political Agent He died in 1853 and was succeeded by Jeswant Singh, who died in 1893, after a rule of forty years Jeswant Singh remained faithful to the British Government during the Mutiny and rendered such assistance as was in his power He was succeeded by his son, Ram Singh In 1895 it was found necessary to take the administration out of the Maharaja's hands, and the control of affairs was vested in a Council working under the general supervision of the Political Agent

In June 1900 the Maharaja in a fit of passion killed one of his private servants, and was thereupon deposed He has been removed from Bharatpur to Deoli

Ram Singh was succeeded by his infant son, Kushan Singh, his accession taking place on the 27th August 1900

The Maharaja is in the care of his mother, Her Highness Maji Gurrāj Kuar, and of his foster-father, Dhau Bakshi Raghuraj Singh a member of the State Council Meanwhile the administration of the State continues to be conducted by the Council under the control of the Political Agent

Bharatpur was at one time famous for its trade in salt, on which commodity much of the State's prosperity depended Captain Walter, who was Political Agent for many years, mentions in his gazetteer that in the six years from 1860 to 1865 the revenue from salt alone was nearly 3 lakhs per annum, the industry affording employment and profit to large numbers of people in the State

In 1879 by an agreement made with the British Government the Darbar suppressed the manufacture of salt, receiving in compensation for the loss of revenue entailed an annual sum of Rs. 1,50,000 and 1,000 maunds of salt free of duty for the Maharaja's use.

The Darbar abolished all transit duties in 1884.

The State maintains a regiment of Imperial Service Infantry (strength 603) and an Imperial Service Transport Corps (strength 502 men 300 carts, and 600 mules).

Besides these troops, there is a local force of 470 cavalry, 1,308 infantry and 641 armed police and 42 guns classed as serviceable. The State offered the services of its troops for the frontier troubles in 1887 and for the China War in 1900, and for Somaliland in 1903. The Imperial Service Transport Corps proceeded to the Tibet expedition in September 1904 and returned in December 1904.

Lord Dufferin visited Bharatpur in 1885 and 1887, and Lord Lansdowne in 1890. Lord Curzon exchanged visits with Maharaja (now ex-Maharaja) Ram Singh at Agra in 1899. Lord Curzon visited Bharatpur and Dig in 1902, and again visited Bharatpur in 1903.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 17 guns.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor General. The form of the commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows:—"My esteemed friend,—I remain with much consideration, Your Highness's sincere friend." #### DHOLPUR

According to local tradition Dholpur derives its name from the Rajput Raja Dholun Deo Tonwar (an offshoot of the reigning family at Delhi), who about 1005 held the lands between the Chambal and Bangunga rivers.

Probably the country formed part of the Rathore Kingdom of Kanauj, which was conquered by Shahabuddin in 1194.

About 1490 Raja Man Singh Tonwar, of Gwalior, expelled the Muhammadan Governor and held Dholpur for some years, but in the time of Babar the country again came under Moghal rule. Early in the eighteenth century the Bhadauriya Rajputs, taking advantage of the troubles which then beset the Emperor, obtained possession and held the country till 1761, when they were ousted by Raja Suraj Mal, of Bharatpur, who seized Agra and the neighbouring districts on the defeat of the Marathas at Panipat.

During the succeeding forty-five years Dholpur changed masters no less than five times, in 1775 it was appropriated by Mirza Najaf Khan, in 1782 it fell into the hands of Sindhia. In 1803 it was occupied by the British, by whom it was again ceded to the Gwalior Chief, and in 1805 it was resumed by the British, finally in 1806 it was made over to an ancestor of the present Chief in exchange for the territory of Gobad.

The family of the Chief belongs to the Desnah tribe of Jats who are said to have acquired lands south of Alwar in the 11th century. They rose to honour under the Tonwar dynasty of Delhi and settled at Bamrah, from which place they take their family name. Driven from Bamrah by the Subadar of Agra after an occupation of nearly two hundred years, they emigrated first to Gwalior and then to Gobad, which was assigned to them in 1505 by Raja Man Singh of Gwalior. The head of the house, Surjan Deo, then assumed the title of "Rana." After the overthrow of the Marathas at Panipat, the Rana Bhim Singh seized Gwalior, but lost it six years later. In order to bar the encroachments of the Marathas the British made a treaty with the Rana in 1779 and in execution of the treaty Gwalior was retaken. In 1781 another treaty was made which stipulated for the integrity of Gobad, but in consequence of the Rana's treachery the treaty was withdrawn and Sindhia repossessed himself of Gobad and Gwalior. Under the British treaty of 1803 with Sindhia, Gobad was restored to the Rana, but in 1805 this territory was exchanged for the parganas of Dholpur, Bari, and Rajakhara, which form the existing State of Dholpur.

The late Chief, Maharaj Rana Nihal Singh Babadur, was born on the 4th May 1863, and succeeded his grandfather, Maharaj Rana Bhagwant Singh, on the 9th February 1873. He died at Mashobra, near Simla, on the 20th July 1901, and was succeeded by his son, the present Chief, His Highness Maharaj Rana Ram Singh, K.C.I.E., who was born on the 26th May 1883. His Highness was invested with full governing powers on 2nd March 1905, and holds the honorary rank of Captain in His Majesty's Army.

The military forces consist of 175 cavalry, 907 infantry, and 11 guns classed as serviceable.

Lord Dufferin paid a flying visit to the State in 1885. Lord Lansdowne and Lord Elgin and Lord Curzon exchanged visits with the late Chief at Agra in 1890, 1895 and 1899, respectively. Lord Minto exchanged visits with the present Chief in 1907 at Agra, and in 1909, at Calcutta.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 15 guns.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor General. The form of commencement and conclusion of letters is as follows—My esteemed friend—I remain with much consideration Your Highness's sincere friend. The crest used is gold Kharta bag Kamkhwah (Gold and silk brocade). String (Dori) Nimzar (Gold and silk thread).

KARAULI

The Jadon Rajputs who are represented by the ruling families of Karauli and Jaisalmer, claim descent from the Yadu or Jadon Kings of Allahabad and Muttra, of whose early history very little is known. The name is said to be derived from Yadu the patronymic of the descendants of Bhuda, the progenitor of the Lunar race. On the death of Sri Krishna, the deified hero of the house, the tribe was dispersed. According to the Karauli authorities Maharaja Bijai Pal came from Muttra in A.D. 995 and built a fort on the hill Mani near the well known town of Biana in Bharatpur. He ruled the country for fifty one years till it was conquered by the Muhammadans under Abu Bakr Shah.

Taman Pal, Bijai Pal's eldest son, established himself at Tamangarh, 15 miles south east of Biana, about 1052, and possessed himself of the wild, broken country near the River Chambal as far as Dholpur, and including the fortress of Utgur and Mandrel and the districts in which the present towns of Karauli and Machilpur are situated. Taman Pal's son, Dharam Pal, was ousted by an illegitimate half brother and established himself at Dholdera, the present site of Dholpur. His son, Kunwar Pal, recovered Tamangarh, but eventually the whole country fell into the hands of the Muhammadans. A descendant of Kunwar Pal, Arjun Singh, managed in 1327 to regain possession of Mandrel, and his occupation was confirmed by the Court of the Delhi Emperor. By degrees he recovered the whole of Taman Pal's territory. The town of Karauli (said to be a corruption of Kalyanji) was founded by Arjun Singh in 1348.

The first Chief of note among his successors was Chand Pal who fought for the Muhammadans in the Deccan. His grandson, Gopal Das, is said to have laid the foundation of Agra Fort at Akbar's request. From Gopal Das are sprung two important offshoots of the Karauli family, viz., the Mukhtawats of Sri Muthra and the Bahadur ke Jadon of Sabalgarh and also the principal noble families of the State.

In 1772 the State was much harassed by the Marathas and Sabalgarh was lost. In 1804, during the rule of Har Baksh Pal, Karauli came into relations with the British Government and a treaty was concluded in 1817, which rid the country of the Marathas.

In 1852 the Maharaja Narsingh Pal died without leaving an heir. The Government of India, however, decided that the State should be continued and Madan Pal Rao, of Hadoti, one of the leading nobles, was placed on the gadi in 1854. During his rule the State rendered loyal assistance to the Government in the Mutiny. For his services Madan Pal was made G.C.S.I., his salute was raised from 13 to 17 guns, a debt of Rs. 1,17,000 owing to Government was remitted, and a dress of honour was conferred.

The present Chief, His Highness Maharaja Bhanwar Pal, G.C.I.E., was born in February 1864. He succeeded to the gadi on the 14th August 1886 by adoption to the late Maharaja Arjun Pal. His Highness was invested with full governing powers in 1889.

The administration of the State is carried on by a Council, of which His Highness is the President.

The State maintains a local military force of 126 cavalry, 1,088 infantry and 35 guns classed as serviceable.

No Viceroy has ever visited Karauli. Lord Lansdowne, Lord Elgin, and Lord Curzon exchanged visits with the Chief in 1890, 1895, and 1899, respectively, in Agra.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 17 guns.

BUNDI

The ruling family belongs to the Hara clan of Chauban Rajputs, and the country which they owned up to about the year 1625 included, besides Bundi, the territory of the modern States of Kotah and Jhalawar the whole tract being styled to this day "Haraoti" after the dominant family. The present ruler of Kotah is descended from a cadet of the same house.

The Bundi State suffered much during the supremacy of the Marathas, but in 1818 Maharao Raja Bishen Singh concluded a treaty with the British Government under which, in return for the protection of the latter and the remission of the tribute paid to Holkar, it was arranged that the State should pay to the British Government the tribute formerly paid to Sindhia, and should furnish troops on the requisition of Government in accordance with its means. The tribute annually paid by the Bundi Darbar to Government amounts to Rs. 1,20,000.

At the time of the Mutiny of 1857 Maharao Raja Ram Singh, son of Bishen Singh, was so indifferent in his allegiance to Government that friendly intercourse with him was broken off and not resumed till 1860.

The present Chief, His Highness Maharao Raja Sir Raghuraj Singh, G C I E, K C S I, was born in September 1869, and succeeded his father, Maharao Raja Ram Singh, on the gadai in March 1889. He was invested with full governing powers on the 9th January 1890. His Highness was created a K C I E in 1894, K C S I in 1897, and G C I E in 1901.

The administration of the State is conducted on old-fashioned conservative lines. His Highness the Maharao Raja is assisted in the administration by a State Council.

The State had been hard hit during the famine of 1899-1900, in consequence of which it has had to accept a loan of Rs. 3,00,000 from Government, bearing interest at 4 per cent. The loan has now been liquidated, but the State is believed to be indebted to the amount of 4 or 5 lakhs.

At present no railway runs through Bundi territory, and the capital is 88 miles distant from Nasirabad on the Rajputana Malwa Railway, and 22 miles from Kotah on the Guna-Baran Railway. The section of the Nagda-Mutta Railway passing through Bundi territory is under construction.

The Bundi family are very closely connected with that of Jodhpur (Marwar) by marriage, the present Chief having at different times wedded two aunts and a cousin of the Maharaja of Jodhpur, and his two brothers having each married into the same family. The Maharaja of Jodhpur is also married to a sister of the Maharao Raja of Bundi. In August 1906 two more marriages were contracted by the Maharao Raja, one with the daughter of Thakur Himmat Singh Bhati and the other with the daughter of Jagat Singh Bhati. Both are Jagirdars of Jodhpur and both are connected with the Jaisalmer family.

In February 1903 the Maharao Raja of Bundi married the sister of the Maharaja of Rewah in Central India, but the Rani died in December 1904.

Maharao Raja Sir Raghunath Singh has had only one son who died at the age of nine years in March 1899. His brother, Maharaj Raghuraj Singh has a son, who was born in 1893. Maharaj Raghuraj Singh died 10 December 1903.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 17 guns and is entitled to be received and visited by the Viceroy. The present Chief has had the honour of interviews with Lord Elgin at Ajmer in November 1896 and Lord Curzon of Kedleston at Calcutta in March 1901. His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India visited the Bundi State in November 1902 for the first time. The Chief attended the Coronation Durbar at Delhi in January 1903.

The State maintains a military force excluding Jagirdars and irregular troops, of 100 cavalry, 200 infantry, 50 artillerymen and 48 guns classed as serviceable.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor General. The form of the commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — My esteemed friend — I remain with much consideration Your Highness's sincere friend. The crest used is gold Khanti bag Kamkhwab (Gold and silk brocade). Strig (Dori) Nimzar (Gold and silk thread).

SHAHIPURA

This Chiefship was formed by the grant in jagir of the pargana of Phula from the Crown lands of Ajmer by the Emperor Shah Jahan in 1629 to Suran Singh, a cadet of the ruling house of Udaipur (Mewar), and therefore a Sisodia Rajput by caste.

A descendant of Suran Singh was granted the pargana of Kachhola in Mewar by the ruling Malwana in 1768, and a later descendant was granted the title of "Raja Dhiraaj" by another Malwana in 1795.

In 1848, Raja Dhiraj Jagat Singh received a sanad from the British Government fixing the amount of tribute at Rs 12,000 per annum with certain provisos and concessions. The fief of Kachhola held under Mewar consists of seventy four villages for which a tribute of Rs 3,000 is paid annually to the Mewar Darbar. The question regarding the feudal service to be rendered by the Chief to His Highness the Maharana of Mewar on account of the Kachhola pargana, which was referred to the Government of India, has been settled.

The present Chief, Raja Dhiraj Sir Nabar Singhji, K C I E, was selected in 1870 from among the nearest of kin to succeed the late Chief, who had died without adopting an heir. He was born on the 7th November 1855 and was entrusted with the management of his estate in 1875. He has two sons, the eldest of whom, Umed Singh, was born on the 7th March 1876. The daughter who was married to the Chief of Wankaner in Kathiawar died in October 1904. Kunwar Umed Singh has twice been to England, in 1897 and 1900, and is married to a daughter of the Raja of Khetri in Jaipur. The younger son, Kunwar Sardar Singh, was a student at the Royal Agricultural College at Cirencester, England, for about a year and a half in 1899-1900, but was prematurely recalled to his home before completing his studies in consequence of the financial difficulties caused by the famine. He was married to a daughter of Raja Govardhan Singh, Talukdar of Bijwa in Oudh. She died in July 1904. He has a son about 2 years old. In November 1905 Kunwar Sardar Singh married the daughter of Maharawal Inder Singh of Chota Udaipur.

The Chief is an enlightened ruler and the administration is improving rapidly with the assistance of a capable Kamdar, whose services have been lent to the Chiefship from the Punjab.

In 1900 the Chief received from Government a loan of Rs 1,00,000 to assist him to tide over the famine. The loan has now been reduced to Rs 50,000. A fresh loan of Rs 2,50,000 has been granted by Government for the construction of a storage reserve at Bhimpura which is now practically completed and which should result in an increase of about Rs 50,000 to the revenue.

The estate maintains a local military force of 26 cavalry, 58 infantry, and 10 guns classed as serviceable.

The Chief has no salute, but is entitled to be received by the Viceroy, though in return he is only visited by the Foreign Secretary.

The Chief holds a sanad, granted in 1862, guaranteeing to the head of his family the right of adoption.

The Chief was created a Knight Commander of the Indian Empire on the 1st January 1903.

No Viceroy has ever visited the Chiefship. The present Chief attended the Durbar of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at Agra in 1876, and also the Durbars of Lord Mayo at Ajmer in 1870 and Lord Northbrook at Delhi, in 1875, and the Coronation Durbar at Delhi in 1903.

He also had the honour of interviews with Lords Ripon, Dufferin, Lansdowne and Elgin in 1881, 1885, 1890, and 1896, respectively, at Ajmer, and with Lord Curzon of Kedleston at Deoli in November 1902.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Agent to the Governor General in Rajputana. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows:—"My friend—I remain, Your sincere friend."

TONK

The Tonk State has three parganas, Tonk, Aligarh, and Nimbahera, in Rajputana and three parganas, Sironj, Chhabra and Pirawa, in Central India. It is the only State in Rajputana ruled by a Muhammadan Chief.

The State was formed about the beginning of the last century by the famous Pathan predatory leader Amir Khan, the companion in arms of Jaswant Rao Hollar, who played a most conspicuous part in all the distractions which preceded the British settlement of Malwa.

Amir Khan came into alliance with the British Government in 1817 at the commencement of the operations undertaken against the Pindaris, when the possession of all his states within the territories of Holkar was permanently granted to him by Government.

Nawab Wasir Muhammad Khan, who succeeded his father Amir Khan in 1834, did good service during the Mutiny. He died in 1864.

The present Chief, His Highness Nawab Sir Muhammad Ibrahim Ali Khan, G.C.I.E., is the great grandson of the first Nawab Amir Khan. He was born in November 1849 and was placed on the masnad by Government in 1867 on the deposition of his father, Nawab Muhammad Ali Khan, for complicity in the attack on the uncle of his tributary the Thakur of Lawa. In connection with this affair the estate of Lawa was made a separate Chiefship, and the deposed Nawab was kept under surveillance at Benares until his death in 1895.

The present Nawab was entrusted with the management of his State in 1870 his uncle Sahibzada Obaidullah Khan K.C.I.E., C.S.I., being appointed his Minister. His Highness was made a G.C.I.E. in October 1890. He has ten sons and eleven daughters alive, the eldest son and heir apparent being Sahibzada Muhammad Abdul Hafiz Khan, who was born in 1877.

The administration of the State has never been very satisfactory during the present Chief's rule, owing principally to his private extravagances.

The finances were placed under the control of the Political Agent in 1886 when the debts of the State were ascertained to be about Rs. 15,50,000.

The construction of the Chhabra portion of the Guna Bara Railway necessitated the acceptance of a loan of Rs. 16,00,000 from the Gwalior Darbar between the years 1896—1900. Apart from this, the State had almost cleared off the whole of its outstanding debts, when the advent of the 1899-1900 famine threw it into a worse condition than before. Owing to the inability of the Tonk Darbar to repay the sum borrowed from the Gwalior Darbar for railway construction, the Chhabra section of the Guna Bara Railway has been taken over by the Gwalior Darbar for Rs. 14,71,025. The State debts now amount to about Rs. 10,00,000.

The nearest railway station is Aina 20 miles from Tonk by metalled road on the Jaipur Sawar-Madhupur Railway.

During recent years reforms have been introduced in the administration including the abolition of the post of Prime Minister and the reconstitution of the Council, and if the seasons are favourable the State should be free of debt at no very distant date. The headquarters of the Haraoti and Tonk Agency which were transferred from Deoli to Tonk in July 1903 to enable the Political Agent to exercise a closer supervision over the affairs of the State has again been removed to Deoli.

The State maintains a local military force, including irregulars of 74 guns classed as serviceable, 243 artillerymen, 443 cavalry, and 1,046 infantry. The State pays no tribute, nor does it maintain any local corps or contingent for the use of Government from its resources.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 17 guns, and is entitled to be received and visited by the Viceroy, though no Viceroy has ever yet visited the Nawab's capital. The present Chief attended His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales's Durbar at Agra in 1876, as also Lord Mayo's Durbar at Ajmer in 1870 and Lord Lytton's Durbar at Delhi in 1877, and the Coronation Durbar at Delhi in 1903.

He also had the honour of interviews with Lords Ripon, Dufferin, Lansdowne, and Elgin in 1881, 1885, 1890, and 1896 respectively, at Ajmer and with Lord Curzon of Kedleston at Deoli in November 1902.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor General. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows:—“My esteemed friend—I remain with much consideration Your Highness's sincere friend.” The crest used is gold Khanda bag Kamkhwab (Gold and silver brocade) String (Dori) Nimzar (Gold and silver thread).

JHALAWAR

The Jhalawar State was created in 1838 from a part of the territories belonging to Kotah.

To the Treaty of 1817 between the British Government and the Kotah State the famous Regent of Kotah, Zalim Singh, succeeded in getting a supplementary article added, by which the administration of the State was vested in perpetuity in him, his heirs and successors. Madan Singh, the grandson of Zalim Singh, who had succeeded in due course to the Regency, was very unpopular with all classes and became involved in constant disputes with the Maharao Ram Singh. There was a danger of a popular rising to expel the Minister and it was therefore resolved in 1838 with the consent of the Kotah Chief to repeal the supplementary article of the Treaty of 1817, and to create out of 17 parganas of Kotah, yielding a revenue of 12 lakhs of rupees, the principality of Jhalawar, as a separate provision for the descendants of Zalim Singh. After the deposition of the Maharaj Rana Zalim Singh of Jhalawar in 1896 the Government of India restored to the Kotah State the greater portion of the ceded tracts, and from the remainder constituted a new State which was bestowed on a descendant of an ancestor of the Regent Zalim Singh. On the 1st January 1899 the actual transfer of territory was effected from which date the new State of Jhalawar came into existence, and the title of the Chief was at the same time changed from Maharaj Rana to Raj Rana and the salute reduced from 15 to 11 guns.

The new Jhalawar State consists of the area known as the Chaumehla which comprises the four parganas of Pachpahar, Awar, Dag, and Gangdhar, the Patan pargana, in which are situated the town of Jhalapatan and the Chaoni, and a portion of the Suket pargana. There is also a small detached area Kirpapur, situated between Mewar and the Gwalior district of Neemuch which belongs to the State. The State pays Rs. 30,000 tribute to the British Government.

The present Chief of the State is His Highness Raj Rana Sir Bhawani Singh Bahadur, KCSI, who is descended from an ancestor of Raj Rana Zalim Singh, the Regent of Kotah and was chosen as ruler of the new State as being the most suitable person among the family of the Jhalawar Sardars. His Highness was born on 4th September 1874 and was educated at the Mayo College at Ajmer. He was installed with powers on the 6th February 1899, and carries on the administration of the State with the assistance of a Diwan. The latest reforms introduced into the State are the British postal system and British currency. The State maintains five dispensaries.

The Nagda Muttra Railway runs through or near to the State from south to north and there are three railway stations actually located in the State.

The military forces consist of 40 cavalry, 373 infantry, 70 artillery men, and 45 guns classed as serviceable. No Governor General has yet paid a visit to the Chief at his capital.

KOTAH

Kotah and Bundi together constitute the tract called Haras, the country of the Haras, to which race the Ruling Chiefs of the two States belong. Kotah is an offshoot from Bundi. Its growth from the parent stem dates back to 1579, when Madho Singh, second son of Rao Rattan, of Bundi, acquired Kotah by a direct and independent grant from the Emperor Jehangir. The limits of the State were subsequently gradually extended to the east and south. The Haras form the most important of the twenty-four branches of the Chohan clan of Rajputs, one of the thirty-six royal races of India, and their Chiefs who trace descent from Mauka Rai, King of Ajmer (A.D. 685), rank among the first in Rajputana.

There are thirty-six principal estates subordinate to Kotah. Of these, eight are Kotris or fiefs, viz., Indargarh, Balwan, Khatoh Gainta, Karwar Pipalda, Phusod, and Antarda. After being successively subject to Bundi and Jaipur, the allegiance of these Kotris was in 1823 transferred to Kotah, through whom their tribute is now paid to Jaipur. The position is, therefore, peculiar.

The history of Kotah is inseparably bound up with the name of its great Minister and Regent, Zalim Singh. Having twice rendered signal services to the Chief of Kotah, he became so much in favour that Maharao Guman Singh on his death bed entrusted his young son, Umaid Singh, to his care. Zalim Singh promptly assumed the title of Regent and for more than fifty years in a period of great warfare and dissension wielded the destinies of the country. His foreign policy, except with Mewar, was most successful, and he was able to bring Kotah to a position of unbounded prosperity. It was in 1804 that Zalim Singh first had dealings with the British, and the Kotah troops afterwards rendered memorable services to Colonel Monson in his disastrous retreat through Kotah territory, when hard pressed by Jeswant Rao Holkar. The Minister also co-operated with General Malcolm in his operations against the Pindaris.

In 1817 the Regent concluded a treaty (the first made by any State in Rajputana) with the British and succeeded in getting a supplementary article affixed thereto, by which the administration of the State was vested in him and his heirs for ever. After his death his descendants not proving as able as their ancestor, there was constant friction between successive Chiefs and the hereditary Ministers, which resulted in 1838 in the interference of the British Government, who obtained the Maharao's consent to detach seventeen Kotah parganas, and with these a new principality, named Jhalawar, was formed for Madan Singh (at that time Minister), his heirs and successors. The post of hereditary Minister was at the same time abolished, and the Maharao was required to maintain an auxiliary force. In 1857, this force mutinied and murdered the Political Agent, Major Burton, and his two sons. As it was impossible to say how far the Maharao Ram Singh was responsible for these murders, the Government of India marked their displeasure by merely reducing his salute from 17 to 13 guns. Ram Singh was succeeded by his son, Bbim Singh, who took the family name of Chattar Sal. His management of affairs was bad, and in 1874, at his request, the Government of India appointed Nawab Faiz Ali Khan to administer the State. From that time till 1896 Kotah remained under the control of British Political Officers, and the history of the country for these twenty-two years is one of unbroken progress.

Maharao Chattar Sal died in 1889, and was succeeded on the 11th June of that year by an adopted son named Uday Singh, the second son of Maharaja Chaggan Singh of Kotra, an estate some 40 miles east of Kotah. Uday Singh assumed the family name of Umed Singh.

The present Chief, Major His Highness Sir Umed Singh Bahadur, G.C.I.E., K.C.S.I., who was born in 1873, was educated at the Mayo College, Ajmer, and received full powers in December 1896. He takes great interest in the administration of his State which had prospered in his hands up to the time of the late famine. The scourge, however, has temporarily led to financial embarrassment. He is also a good, all-round sportsman. The latest reforms he has introduced into the State are Imperial Postal Unity and the Imperial currency.

His Highness received the honorary rank of Major in the 42nd Deoli Regiment in January 1903.

The chief event of Umed Singh's rule has been the restoration to Kotah of a portion of the territory which in 1838 was separated to form the principality of Jhalawar. Zalim Singh's heirs and successors having failed on the deposition of the late Chief, all the detached territory was restored, except a portion which was retained to form a new State for the descendants of the family from which the Regent Zalim Singh had originally sprung. The State maintains 20 hospitals and dispensaries and 45 schools, some of which are for girls.

The Nagda-Mutta Railway is open to traffic from Nagda as far as Kotah, and it is expected that it will be further opened up as far as Siwan Madhopur in 1909.

The Baran-Kota extension of the Bina-Goonna-Baran line is open as far as Antah, 13 miles from Baran.

Kotah abounds in places of interest. The city, containing a population of 33,657 persons, is situated on a very picturesque stretch of the river Chambal and is enclosed on three sides by a high crenellated wall pierced by three large gates with bastions at frequent intervals. The Chambal forms the boundary on the fourth side from south-west to north-east. At three places along the river boundary there are strong fortified bastions.

The military force of the State, including irregulars, consists of 131 guns classed as serviceable, 355 artillerymen, 301 cavalry, and 1,194 infantry. There are no Imperial Service Troops provided by the State, but a sum of two lakhs of rupees is contributed annually towards the maintenance of the 42nd Deoli Regiment formed after the old auxiliary force, known as the Kotah Contingent which mutinied, was disbanded.

In addition to this contribution the State pays an annual tribute of Rs. 2,34,720 to the British Government.

Lord Curzon paid a visit to the present Chief at his capital in November 1902.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 17 guns, and is entitled to be received and visited by the Viceroy.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor-General. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows:—"My esteemed friend—I remain, with much consideration, Your Highness's sincere friend." The crest used is gold. ### UDAIPUR (MEWAR)

The Udaipur family is the highest in rank and dignity among the Rajput Chiefs of India. The ruling Chief is considered by Hindus to be the representative of Rama, the ancient King of Ajodhya, by one of whose descendants Kanak Sen, the present family was founded about A.D. 144.

No State in India made a more courageous or prolonged resistance to the Muhammadans than Udaipur. It is the boast of the family that they never gave a daughter in marriage to any of the Muhammadan Emperors. They belong to the Sisodia sect of the great Gehlot clan. The foundation of the Gehlot dynasty in Rajputana was effected by Bappa Rawal (the ancestor of the present Maharana), who, on being driven out of Idar by the Bhils and having wandered for some years over the wild country to the north of Udaipur, eventually established himself in Chitor and Mewar in A.D. 728. Since that time Mewar has, with brief interruptions arising from the fortunes of war, continued in the possession of the present house.

Chitor was besieged and captured with great slaughter by the Muhammadans on no less than three occasions viz., the first time by Ala-ud-din Khilji in 1290, the second time by Bahadur Shah of Guzerat in 1533, and the third time by Akbar in 1568, but the Udaipur house succeeded in regaining possession of Chitor each time it was wrested from it. During the rule of Rana Uda Singh, when Chitor was sacked for the third time, the Chief retired to the valley of the Girwa in the Aravali hills, where he founded the City of Udaipur, the present capital of Mewar. Uda Singh survived the loss of Chitor only four years and was succeeded in 1572 by his famous son Partab, who disdained submission to the conqueror. After sustaining repeated defeats Partab was about to fly into the deserts towards Sind when fortune suddenly turned in his favour, and by the help of some money supplied by his Minister he was enabled to collect his adherents, surprised and cut to pieces the Imperial forces at Dewar, and he followed up his success with such energy that in a short campaign he recovered nearly all Mewar, of which he retained undisturbed possession until his death. The country continued to enjoy tranquillity for some years afterwards, but in 1806 Udaipur again sustained severe reverses and was laid waste by the armies of Sindhia, Holkar, and Amir Khan, and by many hordes of Pindari plunderers. To such distress was the Maharana reduced that he was dependent for his maintenance on the bounty of Zalim Singh, the Regent of Kotah, who gave him an allowance of Rs. 1,000 a month. In this state of degradation Maharana Bhim Singh was found in 1818, when the British Government extended its protection to the State.

The present Chief, His Highness Maharajadhiraja Maharana Sir Fateh Singhji Bahadur, G.C.S.I., was born in 1849, and was, on the death of the late Chief without issue, installed on the gaddi in December 1884, having been unanimously selected by the Maharanas and nobles of the State. He was invested by Government with full powers of administration in August 1885, and created a Knight Grand Commander of the Star of India in February 1887.

The administration of the State is carried on under the personal supervision of His Highness the Maharana by two ministerial officers who are invested with little authority and can do nothing on their own responsibility. Owing to the close personal interest taken by His Highness in the work of administration and to his personally high character there is far less corruption in Mewar than in many other States.

The Maharana is personally upright, just, and sincere in all his dealings, and his private character is above reproach. But he is intensely conservative. The people are contented, and although it will take some years for Mewar to recover from the effects of the recent famine the State is thoroughly solvent.

His Highness is taking a great interest in the Irrigation Department of the State, which is under the control of Mr Wakefield, and has sanctioned the expenditure, as a normal grant, of one lakh a year on protection works, and is considering one or two large projects which will be of the greatest benefit to the State.

The military force of the State, excluding irregulars, consists of 56 guns classed as serviceable, 236 artillerymen, 550 cavalry, and 1,750 infantry. There are no Imperial Service Troops provided by the State, but His Highness is about to provide some. A large proportion of the expenses connected with the maintenance of the Mewar Bhil Corps is, however, debited to the Mewar Darbar.

The Maharana is entitled to a salute of 19 guns, but the present Chief enjoys a salute of 21 guns, the extra two being granted as a personal distinction.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor-General. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows:—"My honoured and valued friend—I desire to express the high consideration which I entertain for Your Highness, and to subscribe myself Your Highness's sincere friend."

The crest used is gold Kharita bag Zarbaft (Gold brocade) String (Dori) Purzar (All gold thread).

BANSWARA

The communications of the State are by unmetalled roads only, the nearest railway station being Namlu on the Rajputana-Malwa Railway distant 42 miles from Banswara.

The ruling family are Sisodia Rajputs and belonged to the Dungarpur family, from which they separated in 1528 on the death of the Maharawal Udai Singh of Dungarpur, whose elder son succeeded to the State of Dungarpur and the younger to Banswara. Towards the close of the eighteenth century the State fell under the sway of the Marathas, who levied heavy exactions from the Chiefs while the country was subjected to plunder. By a treaty concluded in 1818 the State came under the protection of the British Government to whom all arrears of tribute due to Dhar were made payable in addition to a tribute of 1/10th of the revenue. Subsequently, however, the tribute payable was fixed at Rs. 35,000 Sahm Shahi. The enhanced tribute of Rs. 5,000 Imperial a year paid for the up-keep of the office of the Political Agent was remitted by Government in 1907. This enhancement was originally fixed in 1869 at Rs. 15,000 Sahm Shahi, but was reduced to Rs. 5,000 in 1889.

The present Chief, His Highness Ray Rayan Maharawal Sri Shambhu Singh, was born in 1868 and succeeded in 1905, as the eldest son of the late Maharawal Lachman Singh. He has eight sons, the eldest of whom was born in 1888. His Highness was invested with the powers of a Ruling Chief in January 1906, but in 1908 abdicated his powers of administration in the State in favour of his eldest son, Maharaj Kunwar Pirthi Singh. The administration of Banswara is being carried on under the direct supervision of the Political Agent, as Maharaj Kunwar Pirthi Singh is completing his education at Bedla in Mewar under the guardianship of Thakur Raj Singh, uncle of the Rao of Bedla. A land revenue settlement on regular lines has been carried out in all except Bhil villages, on which a summary assessment has been imposed.

The State maintains a police force of 160 footmen and 15 mounted men exclusive of the palace guards of His Highness the Maharawal, and of the feudal quotas of the Jagirdars.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 15 guns and is entitled to be received and visited by the Viceroy.

DUNGARPUR

The distance by fair weather road from Udaipur is 70 miles and from Ahmedabad 75 miles

The ruling family are Sisodia Rajputs and are an elder branch of the house of Udaipur from which they are said to have separated in the twelfth century. Some time previous to the fifteenth century one of the descendants of the elder brother of the Mewar Chief who had been supplanted by the younger brother at Chitor, emigrated from Mewar and possessed himself of Gahakot now a prosperous and rising town, situated on the river Mahi in the south east corner of the State, and gradually driving back the Bhil Chiefs, became master of the province, called Bagar, which included Banswara as well as Dungarpur. Whether this is true or not, it is certain that the first Chiefs of Dungarpur resided at Gahakot as their ruined castle still stands there in a commanding position on the banks of the Mahi river. After the death of the Maharawal Uda Singh, who was killed fighting against the Emperor Babar in 1528 A.D. his territory was split up, one division of Dungarpur going to the elder son, and the other (now forming the State of Banswara) to the younger son.

On the fall of the Moghal Empire the Dungarpur State paid a tribute of Salm Shahi Rs 35 000 to the Marathas. By the treaty of 1818 the State came under the protection of the British Government, to whom the tribute was transferred. The present Chief, His Highness Maharawal Bijay Singh succeeded his grandfather, Maharawal Uda Singh in February 1898. He was born on the 17th July 1887. After being educated at the Mayo College, Ajmer where he obtained the College diploma, His Highness entered the Imperial cadet corps for a very brief period and then returned to the Mayo College to join the post diploma course. He left the College in 1907, and was invested with the powers of a Ruling Chief on the 27th February 1909. He married on the 19th January 1907 the daughter of His Highness the Raja of Sarana in Central India and a son and heir was born on the 7th March 1908. A second son was born the day after the Maharawal's investiture with ruling powers. Opportunity was taken of the recent minority to gradually introduce improvements and to bring the Bhils under proper control by treating them with justice and firmness. A land revenue settlement on modern lines has been carried out in all except Bhil villages on which a summary assessment has been imposed.

In common with other parts of Rajputana the rainfall in the State in 1899 was deficient, and the State was ravaged by famine and sickness during the year 1900. In 1901-1902 and 1904-1905, the harvests were very poor.

The State maintains a police force of 15 mounted and 185 footmen.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 15 guns and is entitled to be received and visited by the Viceroy.

His Highness the Maharawal was present at the Coronation Durbar held at Delhi on January 1, 1903.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor-General. The form of the commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—My friend—I remain, Your Highness's sincere friend. The crest used is gold kharita bag Kamkhwab (Gold and silk brocade). String (Dori) Nuzar (Gold and silk thread).

KUSHALGARH

The Chiefship of Kushalgarh is a feudatory of Banswara and not an independent State.

In 1864 in consequence of certain malpractices of the Banswara Durbar in connection with a dispute with the Chief relative to an alleged attack by the latter on a Banswara Police Station the Government of India decided that the Banswara Durbar should refrain from all interference in the Kushalgarh Estate, and that the Rao though continuing to render certain specified acts of allegiance and to pay annual tribute to the Banswara Durbar, should correspond direct with the Political Agent.

The Kushalgarh family belongs to the Rathor clan of Rajputs. It is closely connected with the ruling family of Jhabua in Central India and is descended from Rao Jodha of Marwar whose great grandson, Asharn obtained a grant of Kushalgarh from the Emperor Aurangzeb.

The present Chief, Rao Uday Singh was born in 1850, and succeeded to the Estate on the death of his father, Zorawar Singh, in 1891. The Rao is fairly well educated and interests himself in the management of his Estate.

The Chief is not entitled to any salute. The Estate has not been visited by any Viceroy.

PARTABGARH

The Maharawat of Partabgarh is descended from Khim Singh, second son of Maharana Mokul and younger brother of Rana Kumbhu who held the gadi of Mewar from 1419 to 1474. Khim Singh's second son, Suraj Mal, possessed himself of the Sadri and Darianad districts.

Bkaji, the great grandson of Suraj Mal, is said to have left Mewar in 1553 with a few Rajput followers and defeating the local Bhil proprietors carved out for himself an independent State on the border of Sadri with his capital at Deolia. The town of Partabgarh was founded by Maharawat Partab Singh at the commencement of the eighteenth century. From the time of the establishment of the Maratha power in Malwa the Chief of Partabgarh paid tribute to Holkar. In 1818 Partabgarh was taken under the protection of the British Government. Under the Treaty of Mandsaur, the British Government acquired a right to the tribute levied by Holkar in Partabgarh. In consideration, however, of the political influence lost by Holkar under that treaty, it was resolved to account to him annually for the amount of the tribute, which is, therefore paid to him from the British treasury.

On Sawant Singh's death in 1844 he was succeeded by his grandson, Dalpat Singh. The latter had previously succeeded to the State of Dungarpur on the deposition of Jaswant Singh, by whom he had been adopted. On his succession to Partabgarh he relinquished Dungarpur.

The present Chief, His Highness Maharawat Raghunath Singh was born in 1859 and being the nearest relative of the late Chief, Uday Singh, who died without issue in 1890, was selected as his successor, and the choice was confirmed by the British Government. He was invested with full powers on the 10th January 1891.

He is well intentioned, loyal, and takes great personal interest in the administration of the State. But the State is heavily involved in debt owing to the extravagance of the late Chief, the depreciation of the local coinage (now no longer recognised in State transactions), and the severity of the late famine, and the administration is consequently backward and inefficient.

The Chief's eldest son Man Singh has been educated at the Mayo College, Ajmer, and takes an active part in the administration of the State.

Partabgarh possesses a good modern dispensary, and is connected with the railway at Mandsaur in Gwalior territory, a distance of 20 miles, by a telegraph line and a metalled road.

A land revenue settlement on regular lines has been carried out in all except Bhil villages in which a summary assessment has been imposed.

The military force of the State consists of 19 cavalry, 43 infantry, and 9 artillery.

The Chief is entitled to a salute of 15 guns, and to be received and visited by His Excellency the Viceroy.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor General. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — "My friend—I remain, Your Highness's sincere friend. The crest used is gold Kharita bag Kamkhwab (Gold and silk brocade) String (Dori) Nimzar (Gold and silk thread).

JAISALMER

The ruling family are Jadon Bhati Rajputs, and claim descent from the Yadon or Jadon Kings, whose power was paramount in India 3 000 years ago. The real founder of the Jaisalmer family is held to be Deoraj, who was the first Rawal and was born about the middle of the tenth century. Jaisalmer, the present capital, was built in 1156 by Rawal Jaisal.

The first Chief with whom the British Government entered into political relations was Maharawal Mulraj, and a treaty was concluded in 1818. The late Chief, Maharawal Bani Sal died on the 10th March 1891, and his widows with the consent of the Government of India adopted Sham Singh who was born in 1887. Sham Singh on succeeding to the gadi, took the family name of Sahvahan. He was educated at the Mayo College, Ajmer where he remained about eleven and a half years. He was married in February 1907 to the second daughter of His Highness the Maharao of Sirohi, and he was invested with ruling powers on the 14th December 1908. During the minority the administration was carried on by a Diwan and Council under the superintendence of the Resident, Western Rajputana States. The present Diwan Mr. Laxmi Das Raop Sapat, Barrister at-Law, was appointed to the post in March 1903, and was granted the title of "Rao Sahib" in June 1907.

The country is almost entirely desert, and the nearest railway station is Barmer in Marwar territory, some 90 miles from the capital, Jaisalmer. No Viceroy has yet visited this State.

The financial condition of the State is still somewhat embarrassed, but every effort is being made to liquidate the debt. The liabilities amount at present to about Rs. 42,000 (Imperial).

The military force consists of about 350 men, including a few gimmers; it is one of police rather than anything else.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 15 guns, and is entitled to be received and visited by the Viceroy.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor General. The form of the commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—"My esteemed friend—I remain, with much consideration, Your Highness's sincere friend." ## MARWAR (JODHPUR)

Jodhpur is one of the three chief States of Rajputana, and the Maharajah is the head of the Rathor clan of Rajputs. Offshoots from Jodhpur are the States of Bikaner and Kishangarh in Rajputana, Idar in the Bombay Presidency, and Ratlam, Jhabua, and Sitanau in Central India.

The Marwar State may be said to have been founded in 1459 when the seat of government was transferred to the present capital (Jodhpur), but a first footing was acquired in the thirteenth century, when Siahji, a relation of the last King of Kanauj, visited the country.

A treaty with the British Government was concluded in 1818 in the time of Maharaja Man Singh. The latter was succeeded by Maharaja Takht Singh of Ahmadnagar, who did good service during the Mutiny. On his death in 1873 his eldest son, Jaswant Singh, became Maharaja. During the rule of this Chief the State prospered. Three hundred and twenty miles of railway were constructed, the finances were put on a sound basis, a Forest Department was constituted, and many measures of reform were introduced. Two regiments of Imperial Service Cavalry were raised and placed at the disposal of the Government of India for Imperial defence. The civil jurisdiction of the district of Mallani was restored to the Durbar in 1891, and Maharajah Jaswant Singh was given a personal salute of 21 guns.

The present Maharajah, Sardar Singh, was born in February 1880, and succeeded to the gadi on his father's death on the 11th October 1895. His Highness was invested with ruling powers on the 18th February 1898, and was created a KCSI in June 1908.

He was married (i) in February 1892 to the sister of the present Maharaja of Bundi, by whom he has three sons and two daughters, and (ii) in April 1908 to the daughter of the present Maharaja of Udaipur. The name of the heir apparent who was born on the 14th January 1898 is Maharaj Kunwar Sumer Singh.

During His Highness's absence from the State on account of ill health in 1904-1905, the administration was placed in the hands of the 'Mehkma Khas' consisting of a Senior and Junior Member under the supervision of the Resident. The former office is held by Rao Bahadur Pandit Suhdeo Prasad, CIE, and the latter by Rao Sahib Munshi Harnam Das, who was Extra Assistant Commissioner, 1st grade, and Treasury Officer, Ajmer.

The Maharajah returned to the State in November 1905. He now exercises full powers of administration.

the third in March 1907 to the Maharaj Kunwar of Bhuj. On the 1st January 1889 the title of "Maharao" was conferred on him as a hereditary distinction, six years later he was made a Knight Commander of the Star of India, while on the 9th November 1901 His Highness was created a Knight Grand Commander of the Order of the Indian Empire.

His Highness is a quiet, courteous gentleman, who takes keen personal interest in all matters affecting the administration of his State, he talks English fairly and can write it a little.

The State is administered by a Diwan under the orders of the Chief. Under the Diwan are three principal officers, viz, the Judicial Officer, the Revenue Commissioner and the Superintendent of the Customs Department. The Rajputana Malwa Railway passes through the State, the length in Sirohi territory being about 40 miles. The Durbar has offered to place 100 infantry at the disposal of the Government of India for Imperial service.

No Viceroy has ever visited the capital, but His Highness had the honour in the beginning of 1890 of an interview at Abu Road with His Royal Highness the late Duke of Clarence.

Lord Lansdowne in 1890 and Lord Curzon in 1902 visited Mount Abu, which is the most notable place in Sirohi some 4,000 feet above the level of the sea. The highest peak is known as Guru Sikhar (the Saint's pinnacle), 5,650 feet high. Abu is the headquarters of the Governor-General's Agent and is famous for its Jain temples at Delwara, about 2 miles from the station.

The Maharao of Sirohi enjoys a salute of 15 guns, and is entitled to be received and visited by the Viceroy.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor General. The form of the commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — "My friend — I remain Your Highness's sincere friend." The crest used is gold Khanta bag Kamkhwah (Gold and silk brocade) String 'Dori' Nimzar (Gold and silk thread).

SIKKIM

In ancient times the country was inhabited by the Lepchas under the rule of Chiefs. The present ruling dynasty claims to be of Tibetan origin and connected with the ruling dynasty of China through its ancestor Guru Tashe. Guru Tashe settled and died at Chumbi. His third son Mipon Rob Leader of Men, married a Tibetan lady and settled at Gangtok. He had four sons, from whom the four chief families in Sikkim trace their descent. His fourth son was Guru Tashe whose great grandson, Penchoo Namgay, said to have been born in 1604 A.D. became the first Raja of Sikkim and his accession to the gadi is said to have occurred in 1641. The present Maharaja of Sikkim Thotub Namgyal, was born in 1860 and succeeded to the gadi in 1874. The Sikkim State suffered various encroachments from Bhutan, Tibet, and Nepal. The Chumbi Valley, which originally belonged to Sikkim, was annexed to Tibet after the war between Tibet and China and Nepal. Our relations with Sikkim commenced at the time of the outbreak of the war with Nepal in 1814-15, and at the conclusion of the war we restored to Sikkim the country which had been wrested from it by successive Gurkha invasions dating from 1780.

In 1834-35 a further inroad into the Sikkim Terai by the Lepcha refugees in Nepal in which the British Government intervened, led to negotiations by which the British Government acquired the unconditional cession by the Maharaja of Sikkim of the Darjeeling tract. A compensation of Rs. 3,000 per annum was at first granted for this cession which was raised in 1846 to Rs. 6,000.

The settlement in Darjeeling advanced rapidly from a population of 100 in 1839 to about 10,000 in 1849 chiefly by immigration from Bhutan, Sikkim and Nepal in all of which States slavery was prevalent. This increased importance of Darjeeling was viewed with jealousy by the Maharaja of Sikkim, who took to kidnapping British subjects to be sold into slavery and endeavoured to induce Dr. Campbell, the Superintendent of Darjeeling, to get the British Government to allow of a mutual exchange of slaves between Darjeeling and Sikkim. Matters culminated in 1849 by the seizure and imprisonment of Doctors Hooker and Campbell, who were travelling to Sikkim with the permission of Government and the Maharaja. The object of the Sikkim Government was to force Dr. Campbell to relinquish claims for the surrender of criminals and to agree to the exchange of slaves.

This led to the expedition of 1850, and the annexation of the Sikkim Terai and a certain portion of the Sikkim Hills to the Darjeeling District, and to the stoppage of the annual grant of Rs. 6,000. The occurrence of further cases of kidnapping led to another small expedition into Sikkim in 1860 and to the conclusion of the Treaty of 1861, No. 56, which considerably strengthened our control over the internal and external administration of the country. By the 22nd Article the Maharaja agreed to remove the seat of his Government from Tibet to Sikkim, and to reside there for nine months in the year, and a Vakil was accredited by the Sikkim Government to reside at Darjeeling. The annual allowance of Rs. 6,000 forfeited in 1850 was restored in 1862, and raised to Rs. 9,000 in 1868, to Rs. 12,000 in 1873 and to Rs. 12,000 in 1906.

After the abandonment of the proposed Mission of 1886 the Tibetans advanced into Sikkim and built a fort at Lingtu. The Maharaja of Sikkim who was at that time residing at Chumbi, refused to return to Sikkim in spite of the remonstrances of the Indian Government and the stoppage of his allowance until December 1887, when he returned to Gangtok, having meantime made an agreement with the Tibetans at Galing. In 1888 the Sikkim expeditionary force was sent against Lingtu and in September the campaign ended with the complete expulsion of the Tibetans across the Jelap.

In December 1888 negotiations for the settlement of the Sikkim Tibetan dispute were unsuccessfully opened with the Chinese Resident, who came to Gnatong for the purpose. These negotiations were re-opened in 1889 through Mr. James H. Hart of the Chinese Imperial Customs Service, and resulted in the Sikkim Tibet Convention No. 37 signed in Calcutta on the 17th March 1890. The boundary between Sikkim and Tibet was agreed upon. The British protectorate over Sikkim and its exclusive control over the internal administration and foreign relations of the State was recognised and the questions of increased facilities for trade, of pasturage on the Sikkim side of the frontier, and of the arrangements for official communications between the British Government and Tibet were reserved for discussion.

In December 1893 the regulations regarding trade communication and pasturage to be appended to the above mentioned Convention of 1890 were drawn up. They included the establishment of a trade mart at Yatung on the Tibetan side of the frontier. The import and export of certain goods were prohibited, or permitted subject to such restrictions as either Government might impose and other goods were to be exempt from duty for a period of five years, after which period a tariff might be mutually agreed upon. During this period of five years trade in Indian tea was not to be engaged in. Up to the present date no further agreement on the question of a tariff or the importation of Indian tea has been arrived at. The mart in Yatung was opened in 1894 by the Political Officer of Sikkim and Mr. J. G. Taylor of the Chinese Imperial Customs. In May 1895 a Boundary Commission was appointed, but with no satisfactory results. The Tibetans and the Chinese authorities both refused to recognise the line of demarcation fixed by the Convention of 1890 and the matter rested for the time.

In 1892 the Maharaja of Sikkim secretly left for Nepal. On entering Nepal the party was stopped and escorted by the Nepal Durbar back to British India. He was then detained for two years at Kurseong in the Darjeeling District, till in 1895 he expressed his regret for the past and promised perfect loyalty for the future. He was then allowed to return to Gangtok in November 1895, where he now resides and administers the State with the help of a Council and the Political Officer.

The Maharaja has the following children —

One son and two daughters by the second wife Yishi Dumo

Owing to the constant residence of the eldest son, Tchoda Namgyal in Tibet and his refusal to leave it in spite of the intimation that if he did not return to Sikkim he would forfeit all right to succeed to the gads the Government of India in March 1899 finally recognised the second son, Sidkyong Tulku, as the heir

In 1900 Sidkyong Tulku came for six months to St Paul's School at Darjeeling to improve his education in English, and resided as a private boarder in the house of the Rector. In the cold weather of 1900-01 he was sent on a grand tour with the Political Officer, Mr White, and visited Calcutta, Rangoon, Mandalay, Madras, Colombo, Bombay, and other places of interest in India. At Calcutta he had an interview with His Excellency the Viceroy.

In May 1902 the Government of India decided to assert our Treaty rights in respect of the boundary by expelling any Tibetan posts and officials found at Giaogong, or elsewhere on the Sikkim side of the frontier described in Article I of the Sikkim-Tibet Convention. Mr White was accordingly directed to proceed to Giaogong. He left Gangtok for the frontier on the 15th June 1902 accompanied by a military escort and expelled the Tibetan outposts and officials stationed at Giaogong and destroyed the Tibetan walls and block houses on the British side of the frontier without any opposition. The party returned in August 1902, after having traversed and surveyed the whole of the boundary line north of Giaogong and the Donika La and Lonok, and having taken a complete and careful survey of the country on both sides of the frontier. The Tibetan graziers and traders were permitted to remain, but were informed that they had no rights within that area.

In June 1903 the Government of India deputed a Mission to Tibet under Colonel (now Sir Francis) Younghusband, K.C.I.E. to meet Chinese and Tibetan representatives in order to settle long pending questions relating to the Sikkim-Tibet boundary and trade facilities. The Mission of which Mr J. C. White, Political Officer Sikkim, was a member, stayed for some months at Khamba Jong. As it was impossible to induce the Tibetans to negotiate there the Mission was forced to proceed to Chumhi and eventually towards the close of March 1904 to Gyantse. During the year the Tibet Mission owing to the obstructive attitude of the Tibetans was compelled to proceed to Lhasa and after successfully concluding a treaty with the Tibetan authorities returned to India without hindrance.

The Tibet Mission bulked very large in the history of the State during the years 1903 and 1904 and has in many ways exercised a very considerable influence on the State. In December 1903 a cooly corps was raised in which the Maharaja Kumar of Sikkim took a keen interest and which did very good work for the Tibet Mission. The corps was disbanded in October 1904. The State helped largely with labour for the maintenance of the new road and improvement of the existing ones.

The following visits between the rulers of Sikkim and the Lieutenant Governors of Bengal have been exchanged:—

In 1873 Raja Sidkyong Namgyal accompanied by his half brother, the present Maharaja, visited Sir George Campbell at Darjeeling.

In 1875 Sir Richard Temple had a friendly interview with the present Maharaja near the Chola Pass.

In 1878 the Maharaja met Sir Ashley Eden at Kalimpong. In May 1900 he visited Sir John Woodburn at Darjeeling accompanied by his second son, Maharaj Kumar Sidkyong Tulku.

In November 1901 Sir John Woodburn accompanied by the Chief Secretary, the Commissioner of the Rajshahi Division and the members of His Honour's staff, paid a return visit to the Maharaja at Gangtok, where he was cordially received by His Highness, and friendly visits were interchanged between His Honour and the Maharaja. The present policy and intention of Government relating to the administration of the Sikkim State were explained to the Maharaja.

The Maharaja was invited to the Imperial Assemblage at Delhi in 1877, but being unable to attend, his banner, medal and ring were duly presented to him at Tumlong.

by Mr Edgar, Deputy Commissioner of Darjeeling. The seat of the Government used to be at Tumlong. It has been moved to Gangtok where a new palace has been lately built.

The Maharaja was also invited to the Imperial Durbar held at Delhi on the 1st January 1903, but owing to ill health His Highness was unable to attend, but sent his son and heir, Maharaj Kumar Sidkyong Tulku, to represent him. A gold Delhi Durbar medal was awarded to the Maharaj Kumar and two silver medals to two of the Maharaja's sardars.

In October 1905 the Tashi Lama stayed a few days at Gangtok on his way to India as the guest of the Maharaja. This visit created great interest throughout the country and the Buddhists flocked into Gangtok in large numbers to receive the Pontiff's blessing. On his return from India the Tashi Lama again stayed at Gangtok, this time as the guest of the Maharaj Kumar, who had accompanied him throughout his journeys in India.

The Maharaja and Maharani were invited to meet Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales, at Calcutta during their visit to India, and arrived there on the 25th December 1905. During their stay at Calcutta they remained at Hastings House as the guests of the Government of India. Their Highnesses and the Maharaja Kumar attended nearly all the public ceremonies and functions that were held in honour of the Royal visitors and were presented to their Royal Highnesses and His Excellency the Viceroy. The Maharani was presented to Her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales at a special interview at Government house. Before returning to Sikkim the Maharaja and Maharani visited Benares and Budh Gaya.

In September 1906 the Maharaj Kumar, with two young kazes and accompanied by Mr J. C. White, C.I.E., the late Political Officer, proceeded to England to complete his education in English. In January 1907 he entered Pembroke College, Oxford, while his companions returned to Sikkim after an absence of one year. In July 1908 the Maharaj Kumar left England on a tour round the world, accompanied by Major W. J. O'Connor, C.I.E., visiting America, Japan, Korea and China and arriving in Gangtok on 6th February 1909. While at Peking the Maharaj Kumar had two interviews with the Dalai Lama.

In November 1906 the Maharaja's daughter named Anisau was married to Ngawang Lhan trup Gyal tsoo, brother and heir to the present Grand Lama of Sakya. Before the rise of the Dalai Lamas the Grand Lama of Sakya was the actual ruler of Tibet. He is at present the third highest Lama in Tibet, the Dalai and Tashi Lamas alone ranking above him. He belongs to the unreformed sect usually known as the Red Sect, they belong to the reformed, usually known as the Yellow Sect.

In December 1907 the Maharaja and Maharani accompanied by their children and a few of the Kazes and Lamas left Gangtok on a pilgrimage to the Buddhist Siu-chang in the Nepal Valley. At Raxaul they were met by a Nepalese Officer deputed by the Nepal Durbar to make the necessary arrangements for their journey into Nepal, where they were most hospitably received and entertained by the Nepal Durbar throughout their stay and a half months.

In January 1909 the Maharaja's younger son Kumar Tra shi Wang-pyrh went into the Mayo College at Ajmer.

The Maharaj Kumar has on his return from abroad, been appointed a member of the State Council and placed in charge of the departments of Education in addition to being given the religious control of the Monasteries.

The Maharaja is entitled to a salute of 15 guns.

The State is administered by the Maharaja with the help of a Civil Officer, Mr C. A. Bell.

A close control over the internal administration of the State is exercised by the Government of India through the Political Officer. Lately the friendly feeling towards our Government and takes more interest in the management of his State. The State responded readily to the call for the supply of transport required for the Tibet Mission. Communications to and in Sikkim were greatly improved at the cost of Government.

There are no regular troops in Sikkim, but a small force of armed police consisting of 37 men. A detachment from a native regiment is kept at Gangtok.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor-General. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows —“ My friend,—I remain, Your Highness’s sincere friend ”

COOCH BEHAR

The present Maharaja is descended from Bissu Singh who with his brother, Sissu Singh established by conquest a principality in North East Bengal. The ancestors of this

In 1772 owing to internal disputes and the interference of the Bhutias in the succession to the State the East India Company intervened and a treaty was concluded in 1773 in the name of Darindar Narain by which the Raja agreed to acknowledge subjection to the British Government to allow his estate to be annexed to Bengal and to make over to the British Government one half of the annual revenues of Cooch Behar for ever. The other half of the revenues he was to retain on condition of remaining firm in his allegiance to the British Government for ever who on their side bound themselves to assist the Raja with a force whenever he might require it for the defence of the country, the Raja bearing the expense.

The Zamindari of Cooch Behar was conferred on Raja Dharendra Narayan by a Sanad dated the 13th February 1776 but he did not re-assume the Government of the State until the death of his son Darindar Narain which occurred in 1780. In 1780 the tribute payable by the State to the British Government was permanently fixed at Rs. 67,700 15 and the arrangement is still in force.

The present Maharaja Nripendra Narain succeeded his father in 1863. During his minority the State was managed by the Commissioner of Rajshahi and Cooch Behar. The young Raja was made a Mah when he was installed as Ruling and designated as a State. In the title of Maharaja Bahadur distinctive titles of His Highness title to be considered a family distinction.

In 1878 the Maharaja married the eldest daughter of Babu Keshub Chandra Sen of Calcutta and shortly afterwards visited England. A son and heir was born in 1882, a daughter in 1883, a second son in 1886, a third son in 1888, a fourth son in 1890, two daughters in 1891 and 1894.

The eldest daughter was married in November 1899 to Mr. Jyotsna Ghosal, to the Indian Civil Service.

In 1887 His Highness again visited England with the Maharani, and was received by the late Queen Empress, and the decoration of Knight Grand Commander of the Indian Empire was conferred on him. In the same year the Maharani was also appointed a member of the Order of the Crown of India.

The Maharaja is Honorary Colonel of the 6th Regiment of Bengal Cavalry, and has been appointed Honorary A.D.C. to His Majesty the King Emperor.

In 1894 His Highness again visited England with his eldest son Maharaj Kumar Raj Rajendra Narain to make arrangements for his education. Subsequently the other sons were sent to England to be educated.

His Highness served in the Tirah Expedition of 1897-98, for which he volunteered his services, on the personal staff of General Yeatman Diggles, and was present at the

KHARSAWAN

This State pays no tribute to the British Government, but is liable to pay nasarana on succession. It is crossed by the Bengal Nagpur Railway.

2 The Ruling Chief (who ranks as a Thakur, and not as a Raja) is descended from a branch of the Porahat Raj family, who claim to be Kshetriyas of pure blood. The State first came under the notice of the British in 1793, when, in consequence of disturbances on the frontier, its Chief was compelled to enter into certain agreements relating to the treatment of fugitive rebels. A portion of the Porahat estate was granted to the ancestor of the present Chief in recognition of services rendered during the Mutiny. The late Chief, Thakur Mohendra Narayan Singh Deo died in 1902. He was succeeded by his eldest son, Sriram Chandra Singh Deo, who is only 17 years of age. During his minority the State has been placed under Government management. The Manager, Babu Himangshu Nath Chakrabatti M.A., Suh-Deputy Collector, receives a net salary of Rs. 250 per month. The minor Chief joined the Raj Kumar College at Raipur in July 1903 and is making good progress.

3 The late Chief endeavoured to effect a raiyatwari resettlement of his State a few years ago, but it was of a very unfair character, and would, in all probability, have led to a rebellion amongst the Kol raiyats. It was consequently disallowed, and a resettlement was ordered to be made at the expense of the State by Government agency. This has now been finished.

4 No military force is maintained in the State.

SERAIKELE

This State does not pay tribute to the British Government, but is liable to pay nasarana on succession. It adjoins the Kharsawan State, and, like it, is traversed by the Bengal-Nagpur Railway. Both these two States lie within the perimeter of the Singhbhum district, and are under the direct control, subject to the supervision of the Commissioner of Chota Nagpur, of the Deputy Commissioner of that district.

2 The ruling family is descended from the Porahat Raj family, and claims to be pure Kshetriya. In 1793 its Chief is said to have concluded with the British Government certain engagements relating to fugitive rebels. The present Chief, Raja Udit Narain Singh Deo Bahadur, is 60 years of age. He succeeded to the gadi in 1883 on the death of his father, Raja Chakradhar Singh Deo Bahadur. The latter received the title of Raja Bahadur as a personal distinction in 1856. He gave valuable assistance during the Mutiny and during the Keonjhar disturbances in 1868. He was rewarded for his services during the Mutiny with a khillat and with a portion of the sequestered estate of the Raja of Porahat. The title of Raja Bahadur was conferred on the present Chief in 1884 as a personal distinction.

3 The administration of the State is generally satisfactory. But the Chief's attempts to make a resettlement of the Kuchang Pirs give rise to serious discontent amongst the people. It was therefore decided that the work of resettlement should be carried out by Government agency. The settlement commenced in 1904 under the supervision of the Director of Land Records, and has just been finished.

4 There is no separate military force in the State, but the subordinate tenants are of a feudal nature. The Chief is in possession of four serviceable guns.

ATHGARH

The ruling family of Athgarh belongs to the Karan caste of Orissa, and its recognized title is 'Srikaran (name) Behertá Patnáik'. The two immediate predecessors of the present Chief were anxious to drop this title and assume one which was indicative of Kshetriya origin but this was disallowed.

The founder of the State was Srikaran Niladrí Behertá Patnáik. It is said that he was the Behertá or Minister of the Purí Raja who conferred on him the title of Raja and gave him Athgarh as a reward for his services or according to another account, as a dowry for marrying the Raja's sister.

The State is one of the ten Tributary States which entered into treaty engagements in 1803, soon after the British conquest of the Province. At one time it covered a much larger area than now, but gifts and encroachments have gradually reduced its size.

The present Chief Srikaran Bishwanath Behertá Patnáik is the 13th in descent. He is now 57 years old. He succeeded to the gadi in 1896 on the death of his elder brother after an interregnum of a few months during the pregnancy of the widow who however, gave birth to a daughter. The present Chief also having had no son adopted a boy about 3 years old who is a distant relative of the Tigría Raj family and who died in October 1906.

The title of Raja is hereditary under the sanad of 1874. The present Chief was granted the personal title of Raja Bahadur in June 1908.

The last two Chiefs managed the State indifferently, but there has been considerable improvement under the present Chief.

The State maintains a local military force of 23 armed police.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Superintendent of the Tributary Mahals, Orissa, now known as Commissioner of Orissa only. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — My esteemed friend — I remain Your sincere friend.

ATHMALIK

The origin of this State is obscure. The family claims descent from the well known Rajput house of Jaipur. It is said that the founder of the family Protap Deo came to Purí and quarrelled with the Raja who put to death two of his seven brothers. The survivors fled to Bonai and established themselves there. Protap Deo next proceeded to Boad and thence to Athmalik, where he killed the Dom Chief of that State and took possession of it. Official records, however, show that, till lately the State had no separate existence and in the treaty engagement of 1804 it is mentioned as a tributary of Boad. The Chief was officially styled as the Zamindar of Athmalik and was addressed as Samant. In 1874 however, he was officially recognized as Raja which title was also made hereditary, and in 1895 the late Chief Raja Mohendra Deo Samant was given the title of Maharaja as a personal distinction on account of his able administration of the State especially during the famine of 1889. Among the Orissa Garjat Chiefs the family is not looked upon as high caste Kshetriya.

Boad and Athmalik belonged to what was formerly known as the South-Western Frontier Agency from which they were transferred to the Cuttack Division in 1837.

The tribute of the State was liable to revision after every 20 years but has been made permanent in the sanad of 1894 according to the terms of which the State is liable to pay nasarana.

The State was well managed by the late Chief who died on the 2nd November 1901. He was succeeded by his son Bibhudendra Deo, who is about 34 years of age. For several years he practically managed the State under the supervision of his father, and bids fair to follow in his footsteps. He lost his wife on the 10th November 1904 but remarried in 1906.

The State maintains a militia of 6 armed police and is in possession of 1 serviceable gun.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Superintendent of the Tributary Mahals, Orissa now known as Commissioner of Orissa only. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — My esteemed friend — I remain, Your sincere friend.

BAMRA

The Bamra State was transferred from the Central Provinces, and placed under the charge of the Commissioner of Orissa on the 16th October 1905. It originally formed one of the Sanbalpur and Patna or Gurhjat groups, whose Chiefs were at first independent, but were subsequently held in subordination to the Maharaja of Patna, the most powerful of their number.

In 1865 the Chief received an adoption sanad, and a sanad defining his status as a Feudatory Chief was granted to him subsequently. The latter Sanad was replaced by a new one in December 1905.

Tribhuvan Singh, Chief of Bamra, died in May 1869 and was succeeded by his nephew, Raja Sir Sudhal Deo, who was born in 1848. Raja Sir Sudhal Deo, K C I E, died on the 19th November 1903, and was succeeded by his eldest son, Tikait Satchidanand Deo under the style and title of Raja Tribhuvan Deo. The present Chief was born in 1872. The State is managed by its own Chief. Tikait Dibya Shankar Deo, aged 16 years, son of the Feudatory Chief, is the heir apparent.

The administration of the State is generally maintained on efficient lines, and much has been done towards opening out the State by the construction of good surface roads. The forests are the most valuable property possessed by the State.

The Chief has a military force in the State of 125 armed police, is not entitled to a salute.

In addressing the Chief the form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—'My esteemed friend—I remain Your sincere friend.'

BARAMBIA

Baramba is another petty State. It has a fairly connected record commencing with the year 1305 A D, when Hato Keshwar Raut, a famous wrestler who served Kishori Narsing the King of Orissa, was in recognition of his valour, presented with two Khond villages Sankha (shell) and Mohuri (pipe). Hato Keshwar Raut drove out the Khonds and extended his possessions, which received further accessions in the time of his successors.

The second Chief, Malakeswar Raut, who ruled 18 years, extended the limits of the State to Ogálpore, about 3 miles west of Sankhámeri, and 5 miles south west of Baramba. He discovered the Temple of the Goddess Vatárká or Bruhadambá or Bodáma at Ogálpore and out of respect for this goddess named the State after her. Jambeshwar Raut, the fourth Chief, who ruled from A D 1375 to 1416, conquered the Khond Chief of Kharodi, 8 miles north west of Baramba and annexed his possession (about 20 square miles), thus raising the area of the State to about 36 square miles. The fifth Chief, Bholeswar Raut, conquered the Khandáya* or Chief of Amotia, 6 miles west of Baramba, and extended the limit of the State to Ratápát, 8 miles west of the head quarters, and the present boundary between the Baramba and Narsingpur States. It was during the reign of this Chief, who ruled for 43 years (from A D 1416 to 1459) that the farthest western limit of the State was reached. His successors increased their possession to the east of the head quarters, but made no attempt to extend the State further on the west. Kánhu Raut, the sixth Chief, ruled for 55 years (from A D 1459 to 1514) and extended the limit of the State to Mahulia, about 5 miles east of Baramba. Nobin Raut, the ninth Chief, ruled for 23 years (from A D 1537 to 1560). During his reign the State attained its largest limit from Ratápát in the west to Bidharpore in the east, 18 miles, and from the range of hills separating Hindol from Baramba to the banks of the Mahanadi about 8½ miles, and this is the present limit of the State. In the reign of the twelfth Chief, Krishna Chandra Mungraj, who ruled from A D 1635 to 1650, the Marathas invaded the country, but the Chief acknowledged their supremacy, and was required to pay a tribute of 6,335 kahans of cowries per annum. Padmanabha Beerbur Mungraj Mahápatra, the seventeenth Chief of the State, was a very weak ruler, who ruled from A D. 1748 to 1793. During the first part of his reign, the Raja of Kolondpara invaded the State, drove out the Chief, and remained in possession of it for nearly 13 months. Raja Padmanabha sought for and obtained the assistance of the Raja of Kburda, and recovered possession of the State. During the latter part of his reign, in the year 1775, the Raja of Narsingpur invaded the State and took possession of two of its important forts, Kbarod and Ratapa. The Raja was powerless to expel the invaders, so he appealed to the Marathas, and with their assistance and intercession was able to regain possession of the forts.

The family is not reckoned a high caste Kshetriya. The present Chief, Raja Biswambhur Beerbur Mungraj Mahāpātra, is the twenty first in descent. He was born on 12th April 1880, and is 28 years of age. The Raja having lost his first wife, married again on the 20th January 1904 a sister of the zamindar of Kbalikote in the Ganjam district in Madras. The family title was originally Rāut. Some of the Chiefs assumed the title of 'Mungraj' and a few generations ago the family assumed the title of Beerbur Mungraj Mahāpātra. The State was under Government management on account of the minority of the present Chief, which expired in April 1901. The Chief, however, was found unfit to take charge of his State, which continued to be under the direct control of Government till January 1908. It has now been released under certain conditions.

The State maintains a militia of 2 armed police.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Superintendent of the Tributary Mahals, Orissa, now known as Commissioner of Orissa only. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—'My esteemed friend—I remain Your sincere friend'

BOAD

The State is one of the oldest in the Garhjats and is said to have been originally founded by a Brahman named Gandha Nardan Deb but being childless he adopted a nephew of the then Raja of Keonjhar, named Ananga Bhanj who is regarded as the founder of the present family. The Boad, Daspalla Keonjhar, and Moharbhānj Raj families belong to one and the same stock, which claim descent from the Solar race and are generally regarded as high caste Kshetriyas. The list of Chiefs contains 45 names who in succession are said to have ruled for about 1,400 years. The State was formerly of considerable extent, but from time to time portions were wrested from it by more powerful neighbours and Athmalik, which was for centuries part of Boad and acknowledged its fealty, is now a separate State. The large tract known as the Khondmals, with an area of about 800 square miles came under British influence in about 1855 and 1856, as the Chief of Boad had proved himself powerless to suppress the notorious practice of maria (human sacrifice) then prevailing among the hill tribes and to bring under subjection the refractory Khonds, who had taken the side of the famous Ghumsar rebel Chakra Bison. It does not appear that the Khondmals were ever formally ceded to Government. They were, however, only under the nominal control of the Chief, and were occupied by British troops as stated above, for the suppression of maria and for quelling the rebellion raised by Chakra Bison. As the Chief showed utter incapacity in dealing with both, it was proposed to get him to agree to a pension and to cede his territories, including Boad proper but the proposal was not accepted by him, and was not pressed. The Khondmals, however, have ever since remained under our direct control. A request was recently made by the Chief for their restoration, but it was not complied with.

In the treaty engagement of 1804, the Chief of the State is mentioned as the Raja of Boad and Athmalik. The then Chief, Raja Biswambhur Deo, apparently tendered his submission later than those Chiefs with whom treaty engagements were entered into in the first instance in 1803. Boad forms the western extremity of the Orissa Tributary Mahals, and it awaited the result of the resistance offered by the Marathas at the Barmul Pass in the State of Daspalla, which is rightly called the key to the Central Provinces. On 2nd November 1803 Major Forbes forced the Pass, and routed and dispersed the Marathas. The Chief of Boad immediately submitted. A treaty engagement was entered into with him on the 3rd March 1804, some of the terms of which differ from those stipulated with ten of the Chiefs in 1803. Till 1837, the State formed part of the then

South Western Frontier Agency It was liable to a readjustment of its tribute after every 20 years, the last of which was made in 1875, but the sanad of 1894 has fixed it permanently

The title of Raja was made hereditary by the sanad of 1874 The present Chief, Raja Jogendra Deo, is forty fifth in descent He is about 50 years of age A son and heir was born on the 14th March 1904 He is a mild ruler, who leaves much to be done by his Dewan His State is fairly well administered The Chief has no distinct family title, but the surname of Deo is generally used

The State maintains a militia of 15 armed police and is liable to pay nazarana

BONAI

The State is accessible by the Bengal Nagpur Railway, the northern border being only 8 miles by road from the Rourkela railway station Its chief town Bonaigarh, is 110 miles as the crow flies from the divisional headquarters at Ranchi

The State was ceded to the British Government in 1803 by the treaty of Deogirion with Raghoo Bhonsla Raja of Nagpur, to whom it was restored by a special engagement in 1805 It reverted to the British Government under the provisional agreement concluded with Madhoji Bhonsla (Apa Sahib) in 1818 and was finally ceded by the treaty of 1826 The ruling family claims a mysterious and foreign origin They say that they came from Sakuldip, or Ceylon and that the founder of the family was abandoned by his mother under a kadam tree Being thus on the point of falling into the hands of an enemy the infant was rescued by a peacock which swallowed him and kept him in its maw until the danger was passed In gratitude for this service the peacock was adopted as the family crest In reference to this early connection with the kadam tree they describe themselves as Kidam Bansi Rajputs

The late Chief Raja Chandra Deo died in February 1902 leaving as successor his eldest son Tikait Dharani Dhur Deo, now aged about 23 who has been recognized by Government under the name and title of Raja Indra Deo and the State brought under Government management Mr G M Shanahan a European, is the present Superintendent of the State on a salary of Rs 300 a month The present Chief is an intelligent lad but badly trained and educated He has been brought to Ranchi for education and placed under the guardianship of a special tutor guardian appointed with the sanction of Government A most serious charge in connection with the murder of one Brinda Keot was preferred against him in the year 1903 and from an enquiry held under Government orders by Mr Officiating Commissioner W Maude it appeared that two very gross outrages were committed on the persons of two of the subjects viz, Brinda and Madhab Keot that there was no doubt that these outrages were committed with the knowledge of the minor Chief though perhaps the perpetrators went further than he would have desired to go and that the minor Chief was aware of the efforts which had been made to hush up the case which ended in the death of Brinda Keot However as it was considered that the minor Chief was led into these evil courses by bad advisers it was considered that it would suffice to require the minor Chief to remain at Ranchi under the charge of a suitable tutor for such period as may serve to satisfy His Honour the Lieutenant Governor that he is fit to exercise the responsible functions of a Ruling Chief

The State was transferred from the control of the Commissioner of Chota Nagpur and placed under the charge of the Commissioner of Orissa on the 16th October 1905 It was not efficiently administered by the late Chief, who allowed the affairs of the State to lapse into a very chaotic condition, and the Manager appointed by Government had to work under extreme difficulties in bringing them to order A new Sanad was granted to the Chief in December 1905

The State contains extensive forests, which have become valuable owing to the facilities afforded by the Bengal Nagpur Railway Most of these forests have been leased out to respectable timber merchants with the approval of Government. The late Raja caused some complications by entering into negotiations for certain forests without reference to the Commissioner in contravention of the Government order in this regard. The agreements made by the Raja were revised by the Commissioner in December 1901, and the revised proposals have been sanctioned by Government.

There is no separate military force in the State but the Bhu yan and Gond clans are liable to render feudal services to the Chief and form a sort of rural militia.

There is one peculiarity in this State—that the Ruling Chief always takes his grandfather's name at the time of succession.

The State is liable to pay nazarana on succession.

DASPALLA

Dáspallá is a corruption of Jaspalla meaning a village or number of villages acquired by conquest. The State was founded some 500 years ago by Sal Bhunj, a brother of the then Raja of Bord and consisted originally of two small grants made by the Rajas of Nayágarh and Khoropárá but it was subsequently extended by the gradual absorption of Khond villages. The portion known as Jormuh was an acquisition from Angul. The Chief of this State is commonly known as the Raja of Jormuh Dáspallá because Jormuh forms an altogether separate portion of the State situated on the north side of the Mahanadi river while the main State lies on the south side. By virtue of a concession granted by the Maratha rulers no tribute is paid for Jormuh in consideration of supplying free of all cost the timber annually required for the Jagannath Cars at Puri.

The Barmul Pass is situated at the north western extremity of the State and it was here that the Marathas made their last unsuccessful stand against the British in 1804. The Raja of Dáspallá like his neighbour the Chief of Bord then hastened to make his submission and a treaty was made with him in that year.

The State has never enjoyed a reputation for good management and the late Chief was one of the worst rulers it has had. At the time of his death in 1897, the State was being managed by an officer of Government under the designation of Agent. The late Chief was succeeded by his younger brother, the present Chief Raja Narayan Deo Bhunj who if not a capable, is a mild ruler. He is sixteenth in descent, and is about 43 years old. He has no male heir. A son and heir with a twin sister was born on the 5th June 1904. The mother however died on 6th June and the heir on the 22nd July 1904. The Chief has recently married again. The Chiefs have kept the original family title of Bhunj but add Deo to it as a prefix. The administration of the State is in the hands of a Dewan to whom the Chief has delegated full powers.

The State has a militia of 12 armed police and 2 artillerymen, and is in possession of three serviceable guns.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Superintendent of the Tributary Mahals. Orissa now known as Commissioner of Orissa only. The form of communication and conclusion of letter is as follows—My esteemed friend—I remain Your sincere friend.

DHENKANAL

The State derives its name from an aboriginal of the Sabar caste named Dhenka Sura who was in possession of a strip of land about a couple of miles in area, upon which the present Rajbati stands. About the middle of the 17th century one Sinha Bijyadhar, a scion of the then Khurda (Puri) Raj family, came and conquered Dhenka in a battle or hillstream and founded the Raj.

The State which began so humbly, was soon extended by subsequent conquests from the neighbouring Chiefs. The largest acquisitions were made during the time of Trilochan Mohendero Bahadur (1756 to 1796 AD). He was a very powerful Chief, and received the title of Mohendero Bahadur either from the Marathas or from the Puri Raja, his predecessors having been designated only as Samanta Sinha or Bhromorbur Roy.

The present Chief's grandfather, Bhagirathi Mohendra Bahadur, was a good and enlightened ruler, and was made a Maharaja in 1869. He made liberal donations for the benefit of the Urvias, and founded several scholarships. He was heirless, and adopted the youngest brother of the present Chief of Boad, and thereby raised the family to the status of high caste Kshetrias. He died in 1877, and was succeeded by his adopted son, Dinabandhu Mohendra Bahadur, who died a minor in 1885. His son, the present Raja Sura Pratap Mohendra Bahadur, is the twentieth in descent. He was born on the 13th February 1885. He married the grand daughter of the Chief of the Serakela State in the Chota Nagpur Division on the 24th February 1907, a son and heir was born on the 15th November 1904. The State, which had been under Government management continuously since 1877, was released on the 13th February 1906 when the Chief attained the age of 21 years. A resettlement of the State was made and approved by Government. Rules were also framed for the management of the forests in the State. The Chief has been vested with extended criminal powers under the terms of the new Sanad granted to him in October 1903.

The State has a militia of 22 armed police.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Superintendent of the Tributary Mahals, Orissa, now known as Commissioner of Orissa only. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—"My esteemed friend—I remain Your sincere friend."

GANGPUR

This State is accessible by the Bengal Nagpur Railway, which runs for a distance of over 100 miles through or close to its territory.

It was ceded to the British Government by the Treaty of Deogaon in 1803 with Raghuji Bhonsla, Raja of Nagpur, to whom it was restored by special agreement in 1806. It reverted to the British Government under the provisional engagement concluded with Madhoji Bhonsla in 1818 and was finally ceded by the Treaty of 1826. The ruling family claim to have been descended from the Sikhar Family of Sikharbhum or Pachete, in the district of Mandbhum but were believed by Colonel Dalton to have been of Bhuiyan origin.

The present Chief, Raja Raghunath Sikhar Deo, is aged about 58 and succeeded to the gad in December 1865 when he was a minor. Lal Gajraj Sikhar Deo his uncle was appointed Sarbari kar during his minority, and held his office till January 1871 when the present Chief took over charge of the State.

Owing to the bad administration of the present Chief, there was a serious disturbance six years ago among certain Gaontias and Naiks. The discontent had been smouldering for some years until in February 1897 it took the shape of open revolt by the malcontents which culminated in a series of more or less serious dacoities and a general blackmailing of the villages in the disturbed tracts. It was at length found necessary to depute the Deputy Commissioner of Singhbhum with an armed body of British police to assist the Chief in restoring order and in arresting the insurgent leaders. The general maladministration of the State, however, still continued to be the distinguishing feature of the present Chief's rule, and in order to put an end to this state of things the Government in 1900 appointed Babu Surendra Nath Mazumdar, Deputy Magistrate Collector as Dewan, with judicial and executive powers. The relations between the Chief and the Dewan were not harmonious. Accordingly, Mr J A Craven, Deputy Magistrate and Deputy Collector, was appointed as Dewan of the State in June 1902. There is also an Honorary Magistrate Mr Whiff's Manager, Bengal Timber Trading Company who holds his court at Raghunathpali a station on the Bengal-Nagpur Railway. He has done useful service by trying cases in thanas contiguous to the railway line. Reforms in the Police and Excise administration have been introduced, and the Local Government sanctioned the levy of a modified form of stamp duties in aid of the cost of administration. These are being levied from October 1903. The State was transferred from the control of the Commissioner of Chota Nagpur and placed under the charge of the Commissioner of Orissa on the 16th October 1905. This was followed by the grant to the Chief of a new Sanad in December 1905.

This State in everything except administration has made rapid steps in advance during the last thirteen years in consequence of its being effectually opened up by the Bengal-Nagpur Railway. It is rich in forests and minerals, and large timber and mining concessions have been or are now being made with some of the principal European firms in Calcutta and other leading business men in India and England. There has also, as might have been expected, been a large influx of Bengali and Marwari traders at the several stations along the railway line, with a corresponding need of a proper Police and Judicial administration. The only bar to progress is the Chief himself, an uneducated and ignorant man, of a grasping and suspicious nature, who has obstinately opposed all efforts at reform excepting when likely to further his own personal interests.

The State maintains a militia of 45 armed police. The subordinate zamindaries are of a feudal nature.

The State is liable to pay nazarana on succession.

HINDOL.

Hindol is a corruption of Hindombok, the name of a semi-aboriginal Chief who was at one time its ruler. Tradition has it that two brothers, Lakshman Marathá and Bharat Marathá, scions of the Kemedi Raj family in the Gunjam district, conquered the country and established themselves there. The present Raj was founded by a descendant of theirs named Urdhab Deb Jenamoni. The family title for some generations was Deb Jenamoni or Deb Mahapatra, but is now Murdray Jagadeb. The Chief Raja Jonardan Murdray Jagadeb who was the 22nd in succession died on the 10th February 1906 and has been succeeded by the eldest son Faja Naba Kishore Chandra Murdray Jagadeb, a minor aged about 17 years. Owing to the minority of the Chief the State has been placed under the management of Government. The family is not reckoned as high caste Kshetryi and has marriage connections with only one or two Raj families in the Orissa Tributary Mahals.

The State has a militia of 20 armed police.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Superintendent of the Tributary Mahals Orissa now known as Commissioner of Orissa only. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—"My esteemed friend—I remain Your sincere friend."

KAROND OR KALAHANDI

Karond or Kalahandi was formerly under the Marathas. The State paid a tribute of Rs. 5,330, but this amount was reduced to Rs. 4,500 under the last Raja of Nagpur. Subject to Karond is the petty Chiefship of Thuamal, held by a branch of the Karond family. The Thuamal family again is divided into an elder and a younger branch—the head of the former succeeding to the Chiefship with the title of Pat Raja, the head of the latter to the administration of the country with the title Tāt Raja. Disputes arose between the two Rajas and between Karond and Jaipur occasioned by claims of the latter to supremacy over the pargana of Kashipur, a part of Thuamal. The Nagpur Government therefore determined to separate Thuamal from Karond and to leave its administration in the hands of the Tāt Raja. In 1866 it was found that the disputes between the Rajas still continued. Thuamal was therefore divided between them, the Tāt Raja retaining Kashipur and paying a proportionate share of the tribute. Subsequently both the Rajas were placed under the feudal control of the Karond Chief.

2 Udit Pratab Deo, Feudatory Chief of Kalahandi died in 1881, and the succession of Raghu Keshar Deo, the adopted son of the Raja, was recognized by the Government of India. A dispute arose as to the succession, and the Khonds rose in open rebellion and committed many excesses attended with bloodshed. The disturbances were suppressed, and a British officer was, in 1882, appointed as Political Agent with headquarters at Bhawanipatna to manage the State. In 1887 this officer was appointed Political Agent for the Chhattisgarh Feudatories. Raja Raghu Keshar Deo was murdered when he was about 22 years of age by one of his servants in consequence of private enmity.

3 The present Chief, Raja Brijmohan Deo, son of Raja Raghu Keshar Deo, is a minor having been born in 1896, and succeeded to the gad on the 20th October 1897, on the death of his father.

4 The State was transferred from the Central Provinces and placed under the charge of the Commissioner of Orissa on the 16th October 1905. This was followed by the grant to the Chief of a new Sanad in December 1905. The State is managed by a Superintendent under the control of the Political Agent. The Police force has been fully reorganized with an Inspector for the British Police in charge. The financial position of the State is sound.

5 A militia of 68 armed police is maintained in the State. The Raja is entitled to a salute of nine guns.

6 In addressing the Chief the form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows —“My esteemed friend—I remain, Your sincere friend”

KEONJHAR

Keonjhar derives its name from Kendujhar, literally ebony forest, and it is said Jati Singh, the founder of the family, came there from a place called Jatipur, where he had first settled after his separation from his brother, Adi Singh, who was the Raja of Moharbhaj.

The common founder of the two ruling families of Keonjhar and Moharbhaj is said to have been Jay Singh, who was a scion of the Jaipur family in Rajputana. Jay Singh came on a visit to the shrine of Jagannath at Puri, and married a daughter of the then Gajapati King of Orissa, and received Hariharpur as dowry. The annals of the Moharbhaj Raj family, however, say that Jay Singh came to Puri with his two sons, Adi Singh and Jati Singh, the elder of whom was married to a daughter of the Puri King. Adi Singh ruled in Moharbhaj and Jati Singh founded a State for himself, now known as Keonjhar. The two families are known as Bhanjas (literally breaker), a title which was assumed after the overthrow of a neighbouring Chief named Mayura Dhvaja, either by the two brothers jointly or by one of them. The same event was further commemorated by Adi Singh giving his State the appellation of Majurabhanj (Moharbhaj). Keonjhar, as founded by Jati Singh, was greatly extended by his successors, till it reached its present size of over 3,000 square miles.

Killa Athgarh, now better known as Anandpur, was added by Govind Singh who got it as a reward for his services from the Gajapati, King of Orissa.

In 1794 A.D. Jonardan Bhanj married Krishnapriya the daughter of Munipal and grand-daughter of Arnapura the Rani of Pal Lahera, and received as dowry the zamindari of Pal Lahera. On the death of Krishnapriya in 1825, the petty zamindars of Pal Lahera combined with the riyats of that State, and opposed Jonardan Bhanj's possession of Pal Lahera. Being defeated, they submitted a petition to the Political Agent, Colonel Gilbert. This officer kept the State under attachment until a final decision could be arrived at. Subsequently in 1830, in accordance with the proposals of Captain Wilkinson, Government sanctioned an annual payment of sicca Rs. 250 equivalent to Company's Rs. 265 10 8, to the Keonjhar State by the Pal Lahera zamindars. From 1794 to 1826, the Raja of Keonjhar had full authority over Pal Lahera, which still pays its tribute through Keonjhar.

A treaty was concluded with the then Raja of Keonjhar in 1804, and the wording of the first clause differs slightly from that concluded with the other Chiefs of the Orissa Tributary Mahals.

The tribute of the State was originally fixed at Rs. 2,976-11-11, but in recognition of the services of the present Chief's grand father during the Mutiny of 1857 it was reduced by Rs. 1,000. In recommending this reduction the Government of Bengal made the following remarks regarding the Raja's loyalty —

“This Raja with perhaps one exception is the most powerful of the Tributary Mahal Chiefs, and on the breaking out of the rebellion at Ranchi Hazaribagh and Purulia frequent and strenuous efforts were made by the mutineers to induce him to join in the insurrection and assist in the overthrow of the Government. But he steadily refused to entertain any such proposals, unhesitatingly declared his intention to remain firm in his allegiance to the Government, and has neglected no opportunity of testifying by his conduct the sincerity of his professions, his exertions having been active and exceedingly useful during the late disturbances" (vide Bengal Government letter No 2375, dated 5th July 1858) The tribute fixed includes the amount payable by Pal Lahera

Besides the reduction of the tribute the Chief was made a Maharaja, and his Dewan, the late Babu Chandra Shikhar Mahapatra was made a Rai Babador, with a life pension of Rs 200 a month The present Chief's father, Maharaja Dhanurjai Narayan Bhunj Deo, who was the thirty sixth in succession from the founder of the family, succeeded to the gadi in 1861 His predecessor died childless, and he, a son of a Phulbai (concubine), succeeded him according to the custom of the family His rule was not a peaceful one He was a capable man but there were more than one disturbance during his time He commenced his career in bloodshed because the widow of his predecessor would not accept his succession to the gadi The Bhuiyans took the Dowager Rani's side and rebelled This is known as the Bhuiyan Rebellion of 1867-68 The last Bhuiyan rebellion broke out in 1891 A proposal for the resettlement of the Juang Pits in the State for a period of 15 years was approved by Government during his reign He was created a Maharaja in 1877, and had three sons

He died on the 27th October 1905 and was succeeded by his eldest son, Raja Gopinath Narayan Bhunj Deo, now aged 25 years A son and heir was born to the young Chief on the 26th December 1905 In order that the Chief might receive a thorough training in the details of administration, it was at first decided that he should be assisted for some time by a capable Dewan, and Babu Sudan Charan Naik, a Deputy Magistrate and Deputy Collector, was appointed as Dewan In April 1907, however, the Raja resigned the Chiefship, and his resignation was accepted by Government The State is now administered by a European Superintendent (Mr D A Macmillan) on a salary of Rs 700 a month under the control of the Political Agent

The State maintains a local military force of 239 men, consisting of 11 cavalry, 116 infantry, 110 armed police and two artillerymen with two serviceable guns

KHANDPARA

Khandpara was formerly part of Nayagarh, from which it was separated about 200 years ago by Jadunath Singh Mongraj, younger son of the then Chief of Nayagarh, Raja Raghunath Singh The name of the State implies that it is made up of khandas or pieces and it consisted originally of four villages which Jadunath received from his father Jadunath gradually extended his possessions, and became a ruler The most powerful of his descendants was Bonomally Singh who took a prominent part in the creation of the Daspalla State He was an esteemed ally of the King of Orissa, by whom he was given the title of Mardraj Bhromorbur Roy The Nayagarh family was founded by Surjamoni Singh son of a former Raja of Rewa, and claims to belong to the Baghel class of Kshetriyas, as narrated in the account of the Nayagarh Raj family.

The Chief, Raja Notober Mardraj Bhromorbur Roy, died on the 3rd September 1905, and has been succeeded by his adopted son Raja Ram Chandra Samanta, aged about 40 years The young Chief has some knowledge of Uriya classical literature and can compose Uriya verse He is the twelfth in descent The family title is "Bhromorbur Roy"

MOHARBHANI

According to family tradition Moharbhani was founded some 1,300 years ago by Jay Singh, who was a relative of the Raja of Jaipur in Rajputana, as already stated in connection with the history of Keoijhar Of his two sons, the eldest, Adī Singh ruled in Moharbhany The family is held in high esteem among the Garjat Chiefs, and a connection with it by marriage deemed a great honour

The tribute of the State was fixed in 1812 at Rs 1,001 on the then Chief of the State agreeing to forego his claim to levy a tax on pilgrims who had to pass through his State on their journey to and from Jagannath No treaty was concluded with this State in 1803 and 1804, as was done with the other States, and it was, therefore, not included in the list of States mentioned in section 36 of Regulation XII of 1805 When the British conquest of Orissa took place in 1803, Moharbhany presented the unique spectacle of a female ruler on the gadi in the person of Rani Sumitra Dei Bhany about whom the Collector of Cuttack thus wrote in a letter, dated 22nd August 1811, to the address of R Thackeray, Esq, Secretary to the Board of Revenue —

"In answer to your letter of the 1st instant, directing me to inquire by what means the late Rani of Moharbhany acquired the proprietary right of the Killa, I have the honour to acquaint you that she did so under the Maratha Government, and she was acknowledged such by the British Government upon the conquest of the province "

On her death in April 1811, the succession devolved on Tribikram Bhunj, an adopted son taken from the Keonjhar family He executed two ekranamas or agreements—one in 1812 and the other in 1815 On his demise, he was succeeded by his son Jadunath Bhunj, with whom a treaty engagement was entered into in 1829

In 1866 the subdivision of Bamunghati was taken under the direct control of Government on account of the then Chief's mismanagement, but it was restored in 1878 to the present Chief's father, Maharaja Krishna Chandra Bhunj Deo, who was an able and enlightened ruler He was created a Maharaja in 1877 for his efficient administration of the State and for his public liberality, the most prominent instance of which was his donation of Rs 27,000 towards raising the Cuttack High School to the status of a College

After his death in 1882, the State came under Government management owing to the minority of his son, the present Chief, Suram Chandra Bhunj Deo, who was placed in charge of the State in 1890 He has received a liberal education and is the most enlightened of the Garjat Chiefs The administration of his State is carried on on British lines under his personal supervision and has merited the commendation of successive Superintendents He has been vested with extended criminal powers under the terms of the new Sanad granted to him in October 1908

The present Chief was a guest of the Government at the Imperial Durbar held at Delhi on the 1st January 1903 The title of Maharaja was on the same occasion conferred on him as a personal distinction The hereditary title is Raja A gold Delhi Durbar medal was awarded to the Maharaja and a silver medal to one of his sardars

A light railway has been constructed connecting Baripada, the head quarters of the State, with the Baripada Road station on the Bengal Nagpur Railway, and is worked for the present by the Bengal Nagpur Railway Company

The police is under the supervision of a European officer, Mr H B Kiddell, who was the Chief's tutor during his minority The State also has four Eurasian officers

The Chief is 43rd in descent, and is now in his 38th year, having been born on the 17th December 1871 He has two sons

The State militia consists of 129 armed police

The State is liable to pay nasarana on succession in accordance with the general rules on the subject

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Superintendent of the Tributary Mahals, Orissa, now known as the Commissioner of Orissa only The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—"My esteemed friend—I remain, Your sincere friend"

NARSINGPUR

This State does not occupy a high place, either politically or socially, among the Garjat States of Orissa It is said to have been originally the possession of two Khonds, Narsingha and Para, from whom the name is derived Some 609 years ago the Khonds were conquered by a Rajput, by name Dharma Singh. The family title of "Man Singh Hari Chandan Mahapatra" was obtained from the Puri Raja by the fifteenth Chief Daya Nidhi Singh. The present Chief, Raja Sadhu Charan Man Singh Hari Chandan Mahapatra, is the 24th in descent. He is now in his 26th year, having been born on the 24th January 1883. He was married in February 1901, but having lost his wife married again on the 25th February 1904, a daughter of the Chief of the Gangpur State. The Chief attained his majority in January 1904 but the State under special orders was administered for some time by a Dewan appointed by Government. The installation of the Chief under certain conditions was sanctioned in January 1908. A son and heir was born to the Raja on the 16th May 1906.

The State has a militia of six armed police, and is in possession of six serviceable guns.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Superintendent of the Tributary Mahals, Orissa, now known as Commissioner of Orissa only. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—"My esteemed friend—I remain, Your sincere friend."

NAYAGARH

The founder of the family was Surjamoni Singh, of Rewa in the Central Provinces. He visited Orissa, accompanied by his younger brother, Chandramoni Singh, and came to Ralaba in Nayagarh. There is a tradition that the two brothers succeeded in killing a man eating tiger which had been committing great depredations, and the overjoyed inhabitants made Surjamoni their Chief, and gave to him in marriage a daughter of a mali, i.e., a gardener, who was the priest of the village goddess. On her death he married again, this time a Kshetriya bride, whose descendants have since ruled in the two States of Nayagarh and Khondpur. According to the genealogical tree of the family Raja Balbhadra Singh Mandhata, the twenty third Chief, was the last of the lineal descendants of Surjamoni Singh. He ruled for 12 months, and was succeeded by Raja Raghu nath Singh, a blood relation, who, dying without heirs in 1897, on his death bed authorized his younger son to adopt. The present Chief, Raja Narayan Singh Mandhata, was accordingly adopted almost immediately after from a family related by marriage. He had received no education and was too old to learn at the time of his sudden and unexpected elevation.

On account of the present Chief's incapacity, the State is now administered by a Government Agent. The Raja, who is 30 years of age, was married in May 1903 to the daughter of the Raja of Hindol. A son and heir was born on the 17th October 1904, but died on the 22nd idem. A most serious rumour was current two years ago about alleged offering of human sacrifices in the State. The matter was enquired into and it was found that some people had met their death under suspicious circumstances, but there was no proof that they had been offered as sacrifices. The Raja has been removed from Nayagarh and brought to Cuttack with his wife. Babu Gour Syam Mahanti, a Sub Deputy Collector, is Superintendent of the State. The State is a fine property and capable of great development, but on account of past mismanagement it is heavily encumbered. The debts are being cleared off.

The State militia consists of 21 armed police, it has also a local military force of 21 infantry and 3 serviceable guns.

NILGIRI

The origin of the family is obscure. According to tradition, two brothers, Ram Chandra Bhujaug and Jonardan Bhujaug came from Chota Nagpur, and a grandson of one of them founded Nilgiri. The family is not reckoned as high-caste Kshetriya. The thirteenth Chief, Narayan Basant, was rewarded with the title of "Hari Chandan" for the successful resistance he had offered to Kalapahar, and the fourteenth Chief Uttareswar, received from the Emperor Akbar the high sounding title of Sutuda Behuda Bhuyān Mahā-pātra for assisting the Imperial General Māosingh in subduing the Pathans, and his successor, Ram Krishna, also obtained the title of Murdray for similar services. The late Raja Krishna Chandra Murdray Hari Chandan was the 38th in descent according to a genealogical list supplied by him in 1892, but the list is full of obvious mistakes. The treaty engagement of 1803 was concluded with Raja Ram Krishna Dass.

By the adoption of the present Chief, Raja Sbyam Chandra Murdray Hari Chandan, a brother of the present Moharbhānj Chief Maharaja Sīram Chandra Bhanj, the Nilgiri Raj family has gained in social status. The late Raja died in 1893, and the present Chief succeeded to the gadi as a minor. The State was released from Government control in 1899. The young Chief has received a fair English education and was married in February 1902. He was born on 6th January 1877 and is now 31 years of age. A son and heir was born on the 2nd February 1904. The Raja, who was deprived temporarily of his powers, has recently been restored to the administration of his State under certain conditions.

The State maintains a militia of 13 armed police.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Superintendent of the Tributary Mahals, Orissa, now known as Commissioner of Orissa only. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — "My esteemed friend—I remain, Your sincere friend."

PAL LAHERA

This is one of the remote States, and borders on the Central Provinces. Its original limits were more extensive, but were greatly reduced by the encroachments of the neighbouring Chiefs before the British conquest of the Province. Keonjhar always claimed suzerainty over this State, and in 1830 the claim was formally admitted the Chief of Pal Lahera being styled only a zamindar. It was at the same time decided that Pal Lahera was to pay a quit rent of Rs 266 10 8 (Rs 250 sicca) to Keonjhar which was no longer to interfere with its internal affairs. The then Chief of Pal Lahera was not satisfied with this arrangement, and always resented it. The Chief of Keonjhar on his part was persistent in his demand for the payment of the quit rent and the attendance of the Pal Lahera Chief in his Court personally to do him homage. The following extract from a letter No 320 dated 26th February 1839, from Mr (afterwards Sir) Frederick Halliday, Secretary to Mr A J M Mills, Superintendent of the Tributary Mahals, shows the nature of the Keonjhar Chief's demand and the Pal Lahera Chief's objection to it —

"His Honour has been informed that the Raja of Keonjhar demands the attendance of the zamindar of Lera Pal in a dress and with ceremonies manifestly degrading and unnecessary, and it is on that account chiefly that the zamindar is unwilling to perform his part in execution of the orders of Government of 18th June 1830."

In 1840, Government decided this dispute in favour of Pal Lahera, and the zamindar was permitted to pay his quit-rent to the Keonjhar Chief through the office of the Superintendent—an arrangement which has been in force ever since.

In 1880, the present Chief of Keonjhar made an attempt to increase the quit rent, but his request was rejected by Government.

The Pal Lahera family is known to be a good Kshetriya family of Pal Rajputs. The founder of the family was Sontosh Pal.

From the official enquiries that were made during the settlement of the dispute that arose between the Maharaja of Keonjhar and the zamindar of Pal Lahera regarding the supremacy of the former, it was ascertained that 52 generations had already ruled in Pal Lahera up to A D 1778. During that year the Ruling Chief Muni Pat, died without male issue. After his death, the management of the State remained for about 47 years in the hands of his mother, Arna Purna, and of his illegit. male brother Nanda Pal. Arna Purna died in 1815. Nanda Pal acknowledged the supremacy of Keonjhar, and remained in charge of the management of the State till he died in 1825. The people of Pal Lahera after his death, resisted the claim of Keonjhar, but being defeated submitted a petition to Colonel Gilbert, the then Political Agent of the South Western Frontier. Colonel Gilbert ordered the withdrawal of the Keonjhar force from Pal Lahera, and allowed its people to select their own Chief. They chose one Badyanath Pal, a son of the late Raja Muni Pal's grand father's brother, whose family has since reigned for three generations, viz —

Badyanath Pal

Chakradhar Pal (the late Raja Bahadur)

Duti Krishna Pal (the present minor Chief)

Chakradhar Pal, afterwards known as Muni Pal, the father of the present Chief, was made a Raja Bahadur in 1867-68 for services rendered by him during the first Keonjhar rebellion. The titles of the family "Ganeswar Pal" and "Muni Pal" are assumed alternately by the Rajas when succeeding to the gadi.

By the sanad of 1874, the title of Raja has been made hereditary. No treaty engagement appears to have been concluded with this State in 1803. The sanad of 1898 defines the Chief's status. The present Chief, Duti Krishna Pal, was born on the 20th June 1884, and he is 35th in descent. He succeeded as a minor in 1888, and assumed according to family custom, the designation of Ganeswar Pal. He was married in February 1901. The Chief has completed his 24th year and has, subject to certain conditions, been placed in charge of his State which was under Government management during his long minority. The State was heavily involved in debt, amounting to Rs. 92,000, which has all been paid off.

The State has a militia of 10 armed police.

The State is liable to pay nazarana on succession according to the general rules on the subject.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Superintendent of the Tributary Mahals, Orissa, now known as Commissioner of Orissa only. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — "My esteemed friend—I remain, Your sincere friend."

PATNA

Patna was originally under the rule of Maha raja Hira Vajra Deo a Chauhan Rajput. He died in August 1866, and was succeeded by Sur Pratap Deo. In 1869 the tyranny of the Chief and of his brother Lal Bishnath Singh caused a rising among the Khonds of Patna. They were speedily reduced, but not until Lal Bishnath Singh and his followers had committed many atrocities in cold blood. For these crimes Lal Bishnath Singh was removed from Patna, and an enquiry into the causes of the outbreak led to the deposition of the Chief and the assumption of the management of the State by the British Government. This occurred in 1871.

Maharaja Sur Pratap Deo, who was a Chauhan Rajput, and the twenty sixth representative of the family, died in 1878 leaving no male issue. He was succeeded by his nephew Ramchandra Singh Deo the son of Lal Bishnath Singh. Maharaja Ramchandra Singh Deo, who was reported to be of unsound mind, shot himself on the 8th June 1895.

The present Chief, Maharaja Dalganjan Singh Deo, who was born in 1857 succeeded to the gadi on the death of his nephew, Maharaja Ramchandra Singh Deo. His son Lal Prithraj Singh Deo, aged 25 years, is the heir-apparent.

The State was transferred from the Central Provinces and placed under the charge of the Commissioner of Orissa on the 16th October 1905. This was followed by the grant to the Chief of a new Sanad in December 1905. The State is at present managed by its own Chief assisted by a Dewan selected by the Chief but approved by the Political Agent. The administration of Maharaja Dalganjan Singh has not been satisfactory, and it has been found necessary to place the control of the police, the disposal of judicial business, and the management of finance almost entirely in the hands of the Dewan. The State suffered severely in the famine of 1900, and want of control led to an outbreak of dacoity which extended to the neighbouring British district of Sambalpur. A force of Government police had to be deputed to Patna for the suppression of the outbreak. There has since been a marked improvement in the several branches of the administration of the State. The Police Department has been reformed and brought to a state of efficiency, and the progress of education has been specially satisfactory.

The State maintains a militia of 122 armed police, the Chief is not entitled to a salute

In addressing the Chief the form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — "My esteemed friend—I remain, Your sincere friend"

RANPUR

The State of Ranpur claims to be the most ancient of all the Orissa Tributary Mahals, and a list of the Chiefs covers a period of over 3,600 years. The family records are most interesting, and besides noticing the usual exploits and marvellous deeds of individual Chiefs contain references to the various paramount powers of Orissa from the early Hindu Kings to the Muhammadans and Marathas, but it is difficult to say how much of it is authentic. Tradition has stigmatized the family with being the descendants of Khonds, a fact which was accentuated in 1814 by the then Chief, who, in answer to the 25 questions then put to all the Garjat Chiefs, stated in answer to question 7 regarding caste and inter-marriage, that his family married from among the Khonds. The family is not reckoned Kshetriya, and is not allowed to inter marry with any other Garjat houses. It is said that the title of "Narindra" was given to the then Chief of Ranpur in the 12th century by Anang Bhim Deb, the King of Orissa, in recognition of his beauty and manliness, and that the title of Bajradhar was conferred on Sarangdhar Narindra for his great prowess by the Maratha ruler Raghuj in the 18th century. The family title is "Bajradhar Narindra Mahapatra". The present Chief, Raja Birbar Krishna Chandra Singh Bajradhar Narindra Mahapatra, is 98th in descent and is 31 years of age. During the time of the late Chief, who was an imbecile, the State was badly administered, necessitating the interference of Government more than once, and a Government officer selected by the Superintendent was lent as Dewan. The present Chief succeeded in July 1899, and promises well. The State is now fairly well managed.

2. There is no separate military force in the State

REHRA KHOL

The Chief of the State was not at first included in the list of Feudatories of the Central Provinces on the ground of his maladministration. This was subsequently ascertained to have been due to the acts of one of the Chief's brothers, who managed the State for him during his illness, and as the Chief had shown conspicuous loyalty in 1857, he was recognized as a Feudatory, and in 1866 received a sanad of adoption accordingly.

2. The late Chief, Raja Gauro Chandra Deo, was born in 1871 and succeeded to the gadi on the 10th June 1900. He died on the 3rd July 1906. Before his death he adopted as his heir a brother of the Chief of the Bonai State. The adoption and succession of the adopted son under the title of Bir Chandra Jadamani Deo Jenamani has been recognised by the Government of India. The Minor Chief has been sent to the Rajkumar College, Raipur, for education, and the State is under Government management. The State was transferred from the Central Provinces and placed under the charge of the Commissioner of Orissa on the 16th October 1905. This was followed by the grant to the Chief of a new Sanad in December 1905.

3. The State has a militia of 10 armed police, the Raja is not entitled to a salute

4. In addressing the Chief the form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — "My esteemed friend—I remain, Your sincere friend"

SONPUR

This family is an off shoot from the former ruling house of Sambalpur. The State is populous and the best cultivated of the States which were transferred from the Central Provinces and placed under the charge of the Commissioner of Orissa on the 16th October 1905. A new Sanad was granted to the Chief in December 1905. The late Chief Raja Bahadur Pratab Rudra Singh Deo, was born in 1853 and succeeded to the gadi on the death of his father, Raja Niladhar Singh Deo, on the 11th September 1891. The excellent manner in which the administration was conducted by him was recognized by Government in the bestowal upon him in 1898 of the title of Raja Bahadur.

2 The present Chief, Bir Mitrodaya Singh Deo, was born in 1874 and succeeded to the gadi on the death of his father, Raja Bahadur Pratab Rudra Singh Deo, on the 8th August 1902. He was installed by the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces at Sambalpur in November 1902, was present at the Coronation Durbar held at Delhi in January 1903, and subsequently received a Gold Delhi Durbar Medal. In June 1908 he was granted the personal title of Maharaja. His son Somabhusan Singh Deo, aged 12 years, is the heir apparent.

3 The administration of justice, both criminal and civil, is fairly efficient. The financial position of the State is generally satisfactory.

4 The State militia consists of 30 armed police, the Raja is not entitled to a salute.

5 In addressing the Chief the form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — 'My esteemed friend—I remain, Your sincere friend.'

TALCHER

The State is situated on the left bank of the Brahmani. The family claims a Rajput descent from the Jaipur ruling race. It is stated that the ancestors of the family settled for a time at Nadhra in Dhenkanal, and after 11 generations the then Chief was driven out by the Raja of Dhenkanal, and fled to a plain, where a presiding goddess was known as Debi Teleswari and there founded a State, naming it Talcher, after her. The family title is "Beerbur Hurree Chaodan." The present Chief, Raja Kishore Chandra Beerbur Hurree Chandan is the 22nd in the line, and succeeded to the gadi by adoption in 1891. He was the son of the late Raja's first cousin. He was born on the 9th June 1880 and is now in his 29th year. His minority having expired on the 9th June 1901, he was allowed to take charge of his State. A son and heir was born to him on the 28th February 1902. The State is well administered and the young Chief promises well.

Coal has been found in the State, but it has been declared to be inferior in quality to Raniganj coal. Explorations were made once in 1841, again in 1855, and lastly in 1875 with the same unfavourable result. The coal bearing area covers about thirty miles.

The State militia consists of 12 armed police.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Superintendent of the Tributary Mahals, Orissa, now known as Commissioner of Orissa only. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — "My esteemed friend—I remain, Your sincere friend."

TIGIRIA

This is the smallest of all the tributary States of Orissa. The family belongs to the Tunga class of Kshetriyas. The founder, by name Nityanund Tunga, is said to have come from the west on a pilgrimage to Puri, and to have been directed to the spot by a dream. The name 'Tigiria' apparently is a corruption of trigiri or "three hills." Fourteen Chiefs have ruled, including the present one, Raja Bonomali, who is 50 years of age. He bears the family title "Kshetriya Beerbur Chumtee Singh Mahapatra." He has adopted a boy from a relation of the Boad Raja. The State is fairly well administered.

2 No military force is maintained in the State.

3 The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Superintendent of the Tributary Mahals, Orissa, now known as Commissioner of Orissa only. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — "My esteemed friend—I remain, Your sincere friend."

The administration of the State was described by the Government of Bombay in their resolution on the annual report for 1899 1900 as having been satisfactory, and His Excellency the Governor in Council at the same time congratulated His Highness the Rao on the results of the measures taken with unstinted liberality for famine relief.

SAVANUR

Savanur is a small State consisting of 25 villages scattered through the Dhárwar subdivision of Bankápur and Karajgi. The ruling family is said to belong to the Miyana tribe of Pathans. Twenty generations passed between Abdul Karim Khan, the first Malik in Kabul, and Bahlol Khan, the founder of the family in the Deccan. Malik Awatan Khan the fifteenth in the line, entered Hindustan in the train of Timur's army and Doodkhan, the seventeenth in descent, first changed the title of Malik for that of Nawab and rose in importance at the Imperial Court at Delhi. Abdul Bahlol Khan (1626) entered the service of the Bijápur Court. In 1686 Abdul Roufikhan entered Aurangzeb's service, receiving the title of Dilavarkhan Bahadur Dilavarjung and an assignment of the twenty-two Maháls or petty divisions of Bankápur, Torgal and Azumnagar or Belgaum yielding a revenue of 24 lakhs. At first he made Bankápur his head quarters, but afterwards founded the town of Sávaur. Nawab Abdul Majidkhan (1721 to 1751) was a man of considerable talents and his memory is still held in esteem in the southern districts as the founder of the large and flourishing town of new Hubli. Nawab Abdul Hakimkhan was led into wars with the Peshwa and Tippu and ultimately went to Poona (1787) where he subsisted on a monthly pension of Rs. 10,000 allowed him by the Peshwa. Abdul Khairkhan, the eldest son of Abdul Hakimkhan, received from the Peshwa the Sávaur jagir yielding a yearly revenue of Rs. 48,000, which was, in 1818, confirmed by the British Government on the termination of the Maráthas wars. In 1835 Abdul Dalelkhan, a man of high education and remarkably elegant manners, became Nawab and received several gratifying tokens of the confidence of Government in recognition of his loyalty at the time of the Mutiny and was in January 1862 appointed a Member of the Bombay Legislative Council. On the death of his father in 1892, the present Chief, Nawab Abdul Majidkhan, a boy two years old, was placed under the guardianship of his maternal grandfather at Dhárwar and the administration of the State was again entrusted to a Diwan under the direct superintendence of the Collector and Political Agent at Dhárwar. The guardianship of the maternal grandfather soon terminated, and a Lady Superintendent was appointed. In 1900 the young Nawab was sent to the Rájkumar College at Rájkot. The Nawab left Rájkot at the end of 1908 and went for a short time to Kumaon, Bareilly, and afterwards joined the Mayo College at Aligarh.

The State having been under British management almost continuously, since 1868 with the exception of two brief periods, the administration has been conducted on lines practically similar to those on which administration is conducted in the adjoining British territory.

The State maintains no local force, but has a police force consisting of 43 foot and 3 mounted police, of whom 28 are armed.

The Nawab enjoys no salute, but is entitled to be received by the Viceroy and to be received and visited by the Governor of Bombay.

Communications addressed to His Excellency the Governor are acknowledged by the Secretary to Government, Political Department. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows:—"My friend—Yours sincerely"

JUNAGADH—1ST CLASS

His Highness Sir Rasulkhánji GCSI Nawab of Junágadh belongs to a Bábi family. His eldest son Nawabzada Sber Zamaukhanji who had been educated at the Rájkumár College died on the 15th August 1908 and the heir is now the younger son of the Nawab Mohabatkhanji Rasulkhanji who is 8 years of age.

The Ruling Chief is an extremely strict orthodox Mahomedan. He was brought up as such and is given rather to religious than worldly affairs.

Immediately above the modern town is the ancient town and citadel now known as the Uparkot behind which rise the precipitous sides of the sacred Girnári Hill crowned by Jain temples. Near the port of Verával, belonging to this State, are the ruins of the ancient temple of Somnáth.

Junágadh was a Rájput State under a Chudásmá dynasty until A.D. 1476 when it was conquered by Soltán Mahomad Begda of Ahmedábád. Under Emperor Akbar it became a dependency of the Court of Delhi under the immediate authority of the Subah of Ahmedábád. About 1735 when the Mahomedan Government had fallen into confusion Sherkhan Bábi, a soldier of fortune and officer under the Subáb, expelled the Mogal Deputy Governor and established his rule in Junágadh. His son Salabátkán assigned to his younger sons Bántva which is now a separate State. The present Nawáb is a descendant of Bábi Sherkhán.

The Nawāb of Junāgadh receives from a large number of the Chiefs of Kāthiawār a tribute termed "Zortalbī" which is collected like the Gāekwār tribute by the Agency. This levy is a remnant of the Mahomedan revenue from Kāthiawār and gives the Nawab a certain superiority over the other Chiefs of Kāthiawār.

The present Nawab received the distinction of being made Knight Commander of the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India in 1900, and was advanced to the rank of Grand Commander of that Order on 1st January 1909. He attended the Delhi Coronation Darbar on 1st January 1903.

Lord Curzon paid a visit to his capital on 3rd November 1900.

The State maintains a force of 100 Imperial Service Lancers. It has a local force of 62 Mounted men and 1760 Infantry and Armed Police combined and 13 serviceable but obsolete guns.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 15 guns of which 4 guns are personal, and is entitled to be received and visited by the Viceroy and by the Governor of Bombay.

KATHIAWAR

Kāthiawār is a Peninsula lying between Cutch and Gujarāt containing the Amreli Mahals and Okāmāndal belonging to the Gāekwār of Baroda, the British districts of Gogo and Dhandhuka and the territories of the Native Chiefs under the Political Agency. The area of the last is 2082 square miles with a population of 2329196. The northern part of the Province is flat and ugly, but the south is diversified by hills among which the granite peak of Gīrnār above Junagadh is 3666 feet high. The north half of the Province produces a fine sandstone and the south half the excellent limestone known commonly as Porbandar stone. Kāthiawār is well watered by rivers running to the four quarters from the central plateau. The east side of the Province is formed by the alluvium of the rivers which fall into the Gulf of Cambay and here and in the upper valley of Bhādar cotton is grown in large quantities. Kāthiawār has also long been famous for its horses. These have fallen off of late both in quality and quantity owing to the reduced demand caused by the competition of foreign markets.

The Chiefs are mostly Rajputs of the Jādeja, Jhāla, Gohil, Jethwa and Vāla tribes. Junagadh is the only important Mahomedan power. There are also several estates of Kāthis from whom the province takes its modern name. Kāthiawār is divided into four Prānts or administrative divisions, Jhālavad, Sorath, Hālār and Gohilvad. Gohilvad was abolished but has been reconstituted as a separate Prānt from 7th December 1904. There are 187 Tālukās or distinct Estates, but only 82 Tālukdārs actually exercise jurisdiction of whom there are in some cases several in one Tāluka. The smaller Estates are grouped under thānas, and their jurisdiction having been surrendered or resumed, is exercised by Thānadārs, who are Magistrates subordinate to the Political Agent.

The following historical outline was given in 1877 by the Honourable J B Peile, formerly Political Agent of this Province —

At the earliest date, of which we have any historical knowledge, Saurāshtra was probably governed by the lieutenants of the Maurya kings from the ancient citadel of Junagadh. On a granite boulder in the gorge between Junagadh and the Gīrnār mountain are inscribed fourteen edicts of Ashok (B C 265-229) exhorting to temperance, charity, piety and the sparing of animal life. A later Sāhi inscription on the same rock testifies that Rudra Dāma rebuilt the dam which pent up the waters of a lake in the valley below Gīrnār, and which Chandragupta had before repaired and Ashok embellished. On the western side of the rock is a third inscription of Skandagupta (A D 455?) which records that the lake having again burst the dam, he also repaired it. The local dynasty of Sāhi kings of Saurāshtra appears to have ruled from the 1st century B C to about the end of the third A D To the Sáhs succeeded the Senápatís or Viceroy's of the Imperial line of Gúptas of Kanouj who governed from Wantháli near Junágadh (A D 400) The later Senápatís became kings of Sauráshtra, who placed their lieutenants at Wantháli and established themselves at Waladhí nagar, the modern Wala (A D 480 ?) When the Guptas were dethroned the Walabhi dynasty extended itself over Cutch, Lát desa (eastern Gujarát) and—Málwa Their grants inscribed on plates of copper have been dug up in such numbers at Wala as to furnish materials for a family tree of the dynasty comprising 17 kings The latest plate yet found gives the date A D 722 In their time (A D 632 640) the Buddhist pilgrim Hsuan Tshang visited the kingdom of "Falapi" and found 100 convents occupied by 6 000 devotees He went on to Sauráshtra, then subject to Walabhi, and visited the monastery with chambers and galleries in the rock on the mountain Ujjaynta (Girnar) The inhabitants he describes as a maritime trading people, cold in manner, superficial and not given to learning, the soil as impregnated with salt and the flowers and fruits scanty.

How Walabhi fell is not clearly known Perhaps it was subverted by Mahomedan invaders from Sind (A D 720 ?) After Walabhi the seat of Government in Gujarát was moved further north beyond the borders of Kathiawar and remained at Anhilwád from A D 740 to A D 1297 The Governor of Wantháli made himself independent, and from his line sprung the Chudasama dynasty of Junágadh Tradition connects the Chudásamas with the Samma tribe in Sind to which the Jádejas also belong Besides the Chudasama Rás of Junágadh Wantháli other petty kingdoms were established at Dhank, Dev Pattan and elsewhere And the Jethwas became a powerful tribe in the west of Saurashtra The Chávdás and Solankis of Anhilwád sometimes invaded the Province to attack these Chiefs, but the Jethwas and Chudasamas remained unsubdued

Anhilwád was sacked by the Mahomedans in A D 1194 and finally conquered by them A D 1297

The Jhálás are said to have been settled in northern Káthiáwár by the Anhilwád Kings The Gohils (now in eastern Káthiáwár) came from the north in the 13th century retreating before the tide of Mahomedan conquest, and conquering for themselves new seats in the decadence of Anhilwád

The Jádejas and the Káthís came into Káthiáwár from the west through Cutch

The story runs that Jam Unad from Sind invaded Barda the land of the Jethwas and besieged Ghumli, their capital in the latter half of the 13th century Jam Unad's attack failed but his son, Bámni, stung with this disgrace returned and destroyed Ghumli, where upon the Jethwas retreated to Cahaya near their present capital Porbandar The ruins of Ghumli still stand at the mouth of a ravine between two summits of the Barda hills Bámni, it is said returned not to Sind but to Cutch, and there established himself The earliest Jams appear to have been petty Chiefs of the Sammá tribe in Sind early in the 13th century They invaded Cutch and drove out the Chávdás and Wághelás there established and made themselves rulers The Sammás were divided into various branches one of which was called Hala from their heros eponymos Jám Hála Jám Reval Hála in A D 1537 39 murdered Jám Hamírí of the senior branch and tried to usurp his place, but was driven out and retired to Káthiáwár where he founded Navanagar, now the first Jadeja State in the Peninsula (A D 1539) Ráo Shri Khengár, son of the murdered Hamírí, founded Bhuj and is the ancestor of the Ráos of Cutch In 1697 the heir of the Bhuj line Raváji was slain by his brother Prágmaji who usurped the throne, while Raváji's heirs were allowed to acquire Morvi, the second Jádeja Táluka in Káthiáwár, and there became independent The other Jádeja Tálukas are offshoots from Navanagar and the Province which is ruled by the Jádejas is known as Hálar the western district of Káthiáwár

The Káthís are probably the earliest known occupants of Cutch They were driven thence before the Sammás under Jám Abda in the 15th century and migrated to Thán in Káthiáwár From Thán they drove out the Parmárs who had been settled there by the Wághela Kings of Wadhwan, then the chief city of Jháláwád The Káthís there rebuilt the ancient temple of the Sun on the Kandola hill and remained at Thán until they were dispersed by the Viceroy Suját Khan A D 1690 when the Jhálás advanced into their place Thán is now part of the Jhálá Táluka of Lakhtar The Káthís migrated to their present seats the Khāchars to Chotila the Khavads to Sayla the Walas to Chital and the Khumāns to Sāvār Kundla now under Bhāvnagar With these and later acquisitions they occupy a large tract of territory down the east centre of Kāthiāwār between Gohilvād and Sorath

The sack of Somnāth by Mahomed of Ghazni (A D 1024) and the capture of Anhilvād (A D 1194) were the prelude to a more lasting conquest of Gujarāt under the houses of Khiljī and Taghlakh Alaf Khān general of Ala ud din Khiljī, drove the last Wāghela from Anhilvād in A D 1297 But Kāthiawār in that period was occasionally invaded rather than permanently occupied In A D 1347 Mahomed Taghlakh himself attacked the Gohil Chief Mokhrāj in Perim, drove him from the island, and landing defeated him on the Gogo coast A few years later he exacted tribute from the Chudasāma Rā of Gīrnār In 1394 Zāfar Khan, the Governor of Gujarāt again subjected the Rā of Junāgadh to tribute and destroyed the temple of Somnāth Zāfar Khan was the father of the first Mahomedan King of Gujarāt

1535 in great prosperity, and in decadence from A D 1535 when Bāhādūr Shāh was defeated by Humayun, to A D 1573 when Gujarat was conquered by Akhar The Ahmedābād Kings further subjected the tributary Chiefs of Kāthiāwār, especially those of Jhālāvād and Gohilvād, yet an armed force never ceased to be necessary to collect the Kings' dues In A D 1414 Ahmed Shāh defeated the Rā of Gīrnār in the field, and stormed the lower fort of Junāgadh In A D 1467 Mahomed Shah Begda attacked the fort of Junāgadh and after receiving the submission of Rā Mandlik retired for that time, but only to return bent on the final overthrow of the Chudāsama The King ordered the Rā to embrace the faith of Islam The Rā fled by night to his fort which after a long siege he quitted and gave the keys to the King Sorath (A D 1472) became a crown Province and was henceforth governed by royal lieutenants posted at Junāgadh The Chudasamas were scattered abroad, and are now found only in a few petty Tālukas and isolated villages of Kāthiawar Junāgadh was re-named Mustafābād Shortly afterwards Mahomed Begda subdued Dwārka and Cutch

The Ahmedābād Kings carefully fostered commerce and developed the ports of Māngrol Verāval, Diu, Gogo and Cambay About 1528 the coast was threatened by the Portuguese and after Bahādūr was defeated by Humayun and sought safety in Diu he admitted the Portuguese adventurers to build a factory, which they turned into a fort and treacherously killed Bahādūr in his charge as he returned from visiting the admiral in his ship (A D 1536) The island and fort are still a Portuguese possession

Gujarāt after its conquest by Akhar (A D 1573), was ruled by Viceroys from the Court of Delhi until the Mārathas supplanted the Imperial power (A D 1757) The Musalmān

Imperial power (A D 1757) The Musalmān

Governor of Junāgadh first appears in this era (1577) as successfully opposing the Mogal Viceroy with the help of the Jam of Navānagar The Governor of Sorath and the Jam were the principal powers in the peninsula, and they combined (A D 1584—A D 1590) to uphold the fugitive ex King of Gujarāt, Muzaffar III, against the Viceroy or the Emperor In A D 1590 there was a battle at Dhrol where the son and the minister of the Jam were killed, and Muzaffar, the Jam and Dowlat Khān of Sorath were defeated and driven into Junāgadh The fort surrendered, Dowlat Khān died of his wounds, the Jam submitted Muzaffar killed himself, and the Viceroy's son became Governor in Sorath In 1616 the Jam went to do homage to the Emperor Jehāngir on the Mahi but in 1632, taking advantage of disorders in the Government, the Jam withheld his tribute and in 1640 set up a mint and coined Koris But thereupon he was reduced by Azim Khān, the Viceroy A greater reverse was at hand In A D 1663 Jam Ranmalji died leaving a spurious child Lākha, who was set aside by his uncle Rāsinh The aid of the Viceroy was invoked for Lākha and he marched on Navānagar, took it and changed its name to Islāmānagar In 1668 the Governor of Sorath was put in charge of Islāmānagar also and until A D 1673 Navānagar was a district of the Empire, but in A D 1673 Jam Tamāchi, son of Rāsinh, was restored to the gadā under conditions and 25 small Jādeja Tālukas of Hālār were placed under his control The city, however, of Islāmnagar was held by a Musalmān officer, the Jām residing at Khambādia until the death of Aurangzeb

In 1692, as has been said, Viceroy Shujāt Khān stormed Thān and dispersed the Kāthiis

In A D 1705 the Marāthās entered Gujarāt. Advancing by degrees on the Mahomedan Governors and nobles, by A D 1735 they were levying tribute in Sorath Henceforward

The Marāthās A D 1705
the Province endured twofold Mulkgiri circuits, of the Viceroy and of Damājī or Khande rāo. In the confusion which daily increased, the bravest of the Musalman nobles turned to making Tālukās for themselves Among others Sher Khān Bābī, one of a house well known in these struggles, had been more than once in office at Gogo and Junagadh, and was finally in 1756 confirmed as Deputy Governor of Sorath by Sadāshiv Rāmchandra and Shājīrao Gāekwār His descendants are the Nawāhs of Junāgadh The Gāekwārs too, where they could, established their direct rule in the Province the Amreli Mahāls were thus acquired between A D 1742 and 1765 and are now possessions of the Baroda Darbāt

By A D 1760 the Marāthā rule in Gujarāt was firmly established The following half century was a time of little ease for the tributaries in Kāthiawār Every year they were visited by a Mulkgiri army under Shivrām Gārdī or Bābājī Āpājī When a Chief was strong, he resisted when he was beaten, he paid But they also waged petty wars among themselves Some Dhrāngdhra and Wadhvān horsemen fell out about a goat and the Jhāla States fought until every Wadhvān village hut four was waste Vakhat-sinh, the enterprising Raval of Bhāvnagar, earned desolation among the Wāla Kāthiis of Chital The Jām and the Nawāh levied new imposts from Jeipur and Mendarda At length in 1803 some of the weaker Talukdārs applied to the British Resident at Baroda for protection offering to cede their territory to the Honourable English Company The Resident writes of this proposal "With the reservation of their acknowledged tributary payments, the Kāthiawār States are independent and at liberty to form connections with other powers They are under no obligations of service, and neither the Peshwa nor the Gāekwār pretend to exercise an authority in Kathiawār, beyond the demand of their respective contributions "

Walker's reports page 72

The Government was interested in the stability of the Gāekwār's revenues and listened favourably to these advances - In 1807 the forces of the Honourable Company and of the Gāekwār, with the Resident, Colonel Walker, advanced into Kāthiawār with the object of relieving the Province of the double scourge of foreign invasion and domestic war. This was effected by taking engagements from the Chiefs, who bound themselves (1) to pay voluntarily a fixed and settled tribute thenceforward for ever, (2) to keep the peace towards each other and maintain order within their own limits In return they were secured from the visitations of the Mulkgiri force In A D 1817 the Peshwa ceded to the British Government his share of the Kāthiawār tribute, and in A D 1820 the Gāekwār agreed to have his share collected and paid by the British Government and to send no troops into Kāthiawār nor make any demand on its Chiefs except through the British

British supremacy, A D 1822

Government The sole supreme power has since A D 1822 been vested in the Political

Agent (now Agent to the Governor) subordinate to the Government of Bombay

The tribute, it will be seen is fixed under a permanent settlement As to general administration, the authority exercised has been such as a paramount power exerts for the public good in a Province not under British laws The independence of the Chiefs within their own territory has been carefully maintained But when it became apparent (A D 1831) that many of the petty Tālukdārs were incompetent to punish crime, a chief criminal court was established with a British officer as president and Native assessors, to try criminals whom the local authorities could not deal with themselves Still something was wanting The community did not settle down into peaceful and orderly life. Municipal institutions did not develop. The machinery of justice was not established The country was full of outlaws and armed mercenaries Among so many petty States there was no model of administration or recognized policy. The jurisdiction of the petty Zamindar was undistinguishable by any precise grade or limitation from that of the greater Chiefs. The only restriction was as to the right of inflicting capital punishment which was confined (A D 1857) to Chiefs of the 1st and 2nd classes. There was no magisterial control over the numerous petty Talukas. None of the States had regular courts or codes. In civil disputes about land the Political Agent mediated diplomatically between Chief and Chief and even between Chief and subject landholder but cases were very seldom decided. In A D 1860 Mr Kinloch Forbes, Acting Political Agent, expressed his opinion that Kathiawar was standing still or even retrograding and that unless new life could be infused into the Native administrations the increase of British interference was inevitable.

Nos 2 and 6 manage their estates with fair efficiency. No 3 has been suffering from melancholia, and therefore the administration of his estate has been taken over by Government under the Court of Wards Act. Nos 4 and 5 were minors and their management rested with Government till now, but as they have now attained majority they have been both recommended to be put in charge of their estates. Sanction to restore his estate to No 4 has since been received, but it is yet awaited in the case of No 5. No 1, though reported to be a bad manager in 1901, has considerably improved since and no fault with his management was found since the last report. No local military forces are maintained nor do the Chieftains enjoy salutes.

THE DANGS

(Surveyed in 1877/1882 on 1" and 4" scales)

This tract of country between the Sahyadries and the Surat District is parcelled out among 14 petty Chiefs. Of these 13 are Bhdls and one a Kokana. Of the Chiefs 4 are Rajas, 8 are Naiks, 1 is a Pradhan, and 1 a Powar. Formerly the Chiefs, the most important of whom is the Gbarvi Raja, harassed the people (their subjects) considerably, but in 1903 law and order were firmly established. The revenue of the Chiefs consist of an annual subsidy of about Rs 19,000 received from the Bombay Government for their Forest and Abkari rights, land revenue at Rs 6 8 per plough, a fee of Rs 16 per 100 on all cattle that enter the Dangs for grazing and various grass allowances from the surrounding States including British territory. Formerly the Chiefs were in debt, but now they are commencing to lend money. The population, which according to the census of 1901 was 18,634, consist mostly of Kokanas.

JANJIRA

There are various accounts of the origin of this Sidi State. It rose into power in the seventeenth century. Since 1618 several Sidi Governors in succession were appointed as Governors of the Island Fort of Janjira by the Ahmednagar Nizamshahi Kings. In 1636 on the overthrow of the Ahmednagar dynasty by the Moghals the then Governor of Janjira, Sidi Amber (Sānak), established his independence, and obtained from the Bijapur Government the grant of extensive territory on the coast. Repeated struggles with the Marathas followed. In 1759 the Janjira Government obtained possession of Jāfrabad on the south coast of Kāthiawār. The present Nawab of Janjira, Sidi Sir Ahmed Khan Sidi Ibrahim Khan, G C I E, succeeded to the gadi on the death of his father, Sidi Ibrahim Khan, in 1879. He was invested with full powers on 11th October 1883. He was made a Knight Commander of the Order of the Indian Empire on 1st January 1895 for his loyalty and good administration and was promoted to be a Knight Grand Commander of the same Order on 1st January 1906.

The administration of the State has been reported on favourably by successive Political Agents.

The State maintains a local force of 231 men consisting of 29 for the Fort garrison, 15 Gunners and 187 other irregular troops, and it has 18 serviceable guns. Its contribution to the Imperial Service Troops consists of two complete Infantry Signalling Units, of which one composed of 18 men, is now under instruction. The strength of the Police force is 168.

The Nawab enjoys a salute of 11 guns and is entitled to be received by the Viceroy (and the present Nawab, as a personal distinction, to receive a return visit), and to be received and visited by the Governor of Bombay.

KOLHAPUR

Kolhapur claims the first rank among Native States in the Bombay Presidency, and the ruler, descended from the younger branch of Shivaji the Great, the founder of the Maratha Empire bears the distinctive and honorific title of Chhatrapati Maharaj. The founder of the Kolhapur dynasty was Shivaji, son of Rajaram I, by his heroic wife Tarabai. It was not without much opposition that Kolhapur became an independent State in the year 1731 A.D. separating itself from the elder branch of Satara by a treaty concluded with it. Even after this its troubles were not over. The adjoining petty Chiefs were a constant source of annoyance, nor was the work of internal administration without difficulty. It was only after the year 1844 when the State was administered on firmer and more systematic lines under the direct supervision of the British Government that Kolhapur was in enjoyment of true peace and that progress was visible in all departments of the State. Kolhapur remained a faithful ally to the British Government and was able to pass unscathed through the critical times of the Mutiny in 1857. In 1862 was passed the final agreement of peace and friendship with the British Government which has since then continued to bind the rulers of the State. On the demise, without an heir, of His Highness the late Shriaji IV, His Highness the present Maharaja, the eldest son of the late Jagirdar of Kagal, and Regent of Kolhapur, Jaysingrav Ghatge alias Abasabeh, was adopted on the 17th March 1884 by Her Highness Anandibai Ranisabeh Maharaj as heir and successor to the gadi of Kolhapur and is named Shahu Chhatrapati Maharaj. As he was only then 10 years old the affairs of the State continued to be managed by the Council of Regency appointed in the year 1882, owing to the mental aberration from which his adoptive father suffered. His Highness has one daughter and two sons, the elder of whom named Rajaram is twelve years old. The installation of the Maharaja took place on the 2nd April 1894 at the hand of His Excellency Lord Harris. In 1895 the title of GCSI was conferred on His Highness by Her Most Gracious Majesty the late Queen Empress. In 1900 His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India was pleased to confer upon His Highness the title of "Maharaja" as an hereditary distinction. The degree of LL.D. was conferred by the University of Cambridge upon His Highness during his stay in England when he was there for the Coronation ceremony, while the title of G.C.V.O. was conferred upon him by His Most Gracious Majesty the King Emperor of India—and the insignia in connection with the same were delivered to His Highness the Maharaja by His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught at the time of the Coronation Darbar held at Delhi in 1903. His Highness the Maharaja has been presented also with a Delhi Darbar gold medal. The restraint in article 7 of the Treaty of 1862 requiring reference to the Bombay Government in cases involving sentences of death has been removed and the residuary jurisdiction in the Kolhapur State, which was exercised by the Political Agent under the same Treaty, has been relinquished to the Kolhapur Darbar.

The Feudatory Jagirdars of Kolhapur, who are nine in number, may be said to represent the members of the ministerial cabinet of the State in bygone days to whom grants of lands and villages were given for the maintenance of their position and dignity.

These Jagirdars pay havarana to the parent State on the occasion of a succession and their services have been commuted into money payments. They are all in some degree under the supervision and when minors under the guardianship of the Political Agent, who acts as far as circumstances permit in co-operation with the Maharaja's Government. Any new law enacted or introduced by the parent State comes in force in these jagirs with the consent of the British Government. All civil cases against the Jagirdars themselves are disposed of by a combined Court consisting of the Political Agent and a representative of His Highness. All criminal cases arising within the Feudatory Estates involving death or imprisonment beyond seven years and triable exclusively by a Court of Sessions are forwarded to the Kolhapur Darbar for disposal by their Criminal Courts, but His Highness, in Darbar held on the 2nd January 1905, entrusted to the four higher Jagirdars of Vishalgad, Bavda, Kagal (Senior), and Ichalkaranji enhanced powers in criminal matters. These Jagirdars are not allowed to alienate any portion of their estates beyond their lifetime without the sanction of His Highness. Information about the names of the estates, their present holders, area, revenue, etc., will be found in the accompanying statement.

Silver medals in connection with the Delhi Darbar were awarded to the Jagirdars of Bavda, Kagal (Senior), Kagal (Junior), and Kapsbi. The Jagirdar of Kagal (Senior) was created a C.I.E. on the 1st January 1905.

Kolhapur is noted for its celebrated shrine of the goddess Mahalakshmi Ambabal and pilgrims from distant parts flock to the place to perform worship. The spacious temple of the goddess is built exclusively of stone in the Jain Indo Saracenic style and is not less than 1800 years old.

The administration of the State has been maintained in a high state of efficiency.

The State maintains a local force, which consists of two separate establishments: (1) the Kolhapur Infantry officered by Europeans 534 strong, and (2) the Cavalry known as the Red coated Rissala with 156 horsemen, under the control of a Native officer There are 55 guns in all of which 10 only, which are used for salutes, are mounted

The Maharajas of Kolhapur are entitled to a salute of 19 guns and are entitled to be received and visited by both the Viceroy and the Governor of Bombay The present Maharaja is entitled to a personal salute of 21 guns

The highest British authority by whom the Maharaja has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor General The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — My esteemed friend—I subscribe myself, Your Highness's sincere friend.' The crest used is gold

The ruling Chiefs are called Maharanas and are Parmar Rajputs. They claim descent from Vikramaditya, the founder of the Hindu era. Their ancestors are said to have ruled at Nagar, Thatha and Sind, whence they came and settled in the territory of Danta after their defeat by the Mahomedans in the eleventh century. The Chief of Danta enjoys special influence from having in his territory the famous shrine of Amba Bhawani of which he is the hereditary custodian. Pilgrims of all ranks and creeds meet there periodically in large numbers and their offerings come in the end into the Chief's exchequer. The late Maharana Jaswantsinhji came to the gadi in 1876. He exercised personal supervision over the affairs of his State and looked into all details of the administration. His Bhil subjects held him in great awe and he ruled them with a firm hand.

This Thāna is situated in the north western corner of the province, and contains about 71 villages. It takes its name Gadhawāda from its position. Gadha means hills, and wāda a fenced place, i.e., a place fenced with hills and it has no doubt a really strong wall of hills all round.

2 Bhalasna	7 Mohur
3 Timba	8 Gāppur
4 Umri	9 Hadol
5 Kothārna	And other scattered villages

GHODĀSAR

Ghodāsār is a 4th Class Tālukā. The ruling family is said to have been originally Rājputs, who by marrying Koli women became known as Dabhi Kolis. They are said to have come to Gujarat from Bundelkhand. One of them named Velaji was taken into the service of one of the latter Hindu Rājas of Anhilwād Patan and received the district of Dangarwa in grant. The family was reduced by Sultan Ahmed I (1411—1443) but on submission, Mjaji an ancestor of the present Chief, was sent to the neighbourhood of the present seat. After defeating a tribe of rebel Rājputs he was allowed to enjoy their estate of 125 villages, his head-quarters being Barkimda. For this act of violence the family acquired the cognomen of "Khant." Since then except for some property cesses called Giras Ilaks, the family has lost nearly all its villages. Ghodāsār is the seat of the Thákor. The present Thákor Dadasahch succeeded to the gadi on the 24th January 1889. The administration of the Táluká has of late not been good.

The Táluká maintains no local force.

IDAR

Idar is the only 1st Class State in the Mahi Kantha Agency with full civil and criminal powers and comprises more than half its area. The ruling family belongs to the same illustrious Rathod family as Jodhpur. Their ancestors, Maharajas Anandsingh and Raisingh, brothers of Maharaja Abhaysingh of Jodhnur, settled in Idar in A. D. 1731. Before the advent of the present family several dynasties ruled over Idar—Gehlat rulers (800—970) Párihar rulers (1,000—1,200), the Raos and the Mussalmans. Idar Gadh is a fortress of historical importance said to have been built by a traditional Prince Veni Vachh Raj, who owned a magic gold figure. The late Maharaja Kesrísingh died on the 20th February 1901, leaving one of the Maharajas en ventre, who subsequently gave birth to a son who died in November 1901.

After the death of the infant Maharaja, the Government of India recognized Colonel Sir Pratapsingh as successor to the Idar gadi on which he was installed on the 12th February 1902. His Highness Sir Pratapsingh's father, Takhtasingh, was the last Raja of Ahmednagar and was adopted to the Jodhpur gadi after the death of Mansingh. His Highness Sir Pratapsingh enjoys the rank of Honorary Major General in the British Army. He has served in the Tirah Campaign and the Mohmand Expedition and held the command of the Imperial Service Lancers in China. He is a Knight Commander of the Most Noble Order of the Bath and he has been invested with the Grand Cross of the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India and is Honorary LL.D. of the University of Cambridge. He was for several years Aide de Camp to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales and has recently been promoted to the rank of Aide de Camp to His Imperial Majesty the King Emperor. All these distinctions earned by him show the value of the services rendered by him to the Empire. His Highness Major General Sir Pratapsingh before his succession to the Idar gadi for a long time carried on the administration of Jodhpur in an admirable manner. The administration of Idar, it is hoped, will improve under his rule.

The late Thákor Mansingh died on 29th October 1902, and the succession of Vajesingh to the Chiefship was sanctioned in December 1902. #### PETHAPUR

Pethapur is a 4th Class Taluká. The Thákór is a Vaghela Rájput descended from a branch of the Vaghela Chiefs of Anhilwád Pátan. Sramshí or Sarang Dev, one of the two sons of Raja Karan, the last Raja of Pátan, was allowed the town of Kalol and surrounding villages as an estate. Descended from him in the tenth generation was Himatoji. His mother's brother, Pithoo Gol, possessed the estate of Sokhroo near the Sábarmatí river. Pithoo was afflicted with an incurable disease and, as he had no offspring, he looked with an eye of apprehension on Himatoji, it being no uncommon thing in those times, says the bard, for nephews to put their uncles to death for their giras. Pithoo's fears were not without foundation, but the precautions taken by him prevented any open attack by his nephew. At length, however, Himatoji, pretending a pilgrimage to Sookhría, Mahadev, entered Sokhroo with a band of Rájputs concealed in the closed carriages used for the conveyance of women. These warriors made their way into the mansion of the Chief whom they put to death. "Sat" having then come upon the Rani, she cursed Himatoji and prophesied that the children, even of his daughters, should meet an untimely death. The Thákór implored for forgiveness and said, "Mother, you have no child. I am your son. What has happened has happened, be kind to me and I will obey any order you may give." The Sati commanded him to found a village in the name of his uncle and promised that his descendants in the male line should maintain themselves there, but declared that as her word could not be altered the daughters of his race should be childless. Such was the origin of Pethapur, a handsome town on the Sábarmatí river, a few miles from the north of Ahmedabad, distinguished by its manufacture of matchlocks. The present Chief, Thákór Fatesínbhí, succeeded to the Taluká on the death of his father, Thákór Gambhír sínbhí, in 1896. ## SURGANA

Surgana is the only State under the control of the Political Agent, Nasik. It is very hilly and difficult of access. The chief sources of income are āb-kārī, forest and land revenue, the latter being nearly one fourth of the total income. The rulers are styled

'Deshmukhs', which is a misnomer, the family being hereditary Deshmukhs of the Hatgad Division of Kalvan Taluka. The ancestors of the Deshmukhs appear to have been Konkani Kunbis (not Kohis, as stated in the Bombay Gazetteer) who lived in the fastnesses round Hatgad. Under the Mahomedan rulers the then Chiefs were entrusted with the charge of the line of the Sahyadris from Ravala to Shribhuvan, and several villages in Surgana were granted to them in reward for their services and for the support of irregular troops, with whose aid the roads and traffic were protected. At the commencement of British rule in 1818, the British Government sent an expedition against Malharji, the then Deshmukh, to punish him for an attack made on a party stationed at Surgana. He was seized and hanged and his cousin Bhikaji, who had helped Government against Malharji, was recognised as the head of the State and vested with the chief authority. Bhikaji was murdered in a disturbance set up by Malharji's widow, when Yesbvantrav, a minor son of Bhikaji, was recognized as the representative of the chief branch and a Diwan was chosen by Government to manage the State. Shankarrav who succeeded to the gadi in 1873, died in 1898 leaving seven sons by four wives. Then arose a question of succession and it was finally decided that Pratapray, the son by the first wife, should succeed. For 2½ years after his formal succession the affairs of the State were managed by a Diwan appointed by Government. On December 4th, 1901, Pratapray was formally installed by the Assistant Political Agent. He manages the affairs of the State with the assistance of the Diwan and exercises the same civil and criminal powers as his late father.

The administration of the State is simple and is efficiently carried on by Pratapray Shankarrav Deshmukh. Between the 1st of April 1903 and the 31st of March 1908, he, with the assistance of his Dewan, Mr H. V. Gole, has succeeded in converting a debt of about Rs. 15,000 into a surplus of a little more than Rs. 14,000. The land revenue assessment is levied in a primitive fashion, the rate being a uniform one of Rs. 6 per plough. The villagers pay direct into the Treasury at Surgana, in some cases having to travel over a long distance. A dispensary has been recently opened. There is room for improvement in the matter of vaccination, the management of liquor traffic and the conservation of forests.

The State maintains a small party of 8 armed policemen.

The Chief has no salute but is entitled to be received by the Governor of Bombay.

This Taluka is held by Koli Thakardas, originally it was a part of the Terwada district. It was taken in 1742 by Rathod Hathiji of Kankrej, who founded the town of Bhabhar and got possession of the lands. At present the Taluka has been divided into many shares and the share holders are under the jurisdiction of the British Thánadar of Deodar, who exercises the powers of a second class Magistrate in criminal matters and civil jurisdiction up to Rs. 500. British relations with this Taluka date from 1820 when the Chief signed an agreement in the same way as other Chiefs in the Superintendency.

No local force is maintained.

DEODAR

The Deodar Taluka is owned by the Waghela Rajputs forming the younger branch of the Tharad Waghelas. They originally belonged to Patan, but on the subversion of the Rajput authority they went to different places and ultimately obtained possession of the Deodar district. The Taluka was shared by Anandsingh, Sardarsingh, and Samatsingh, but the two former died in 1903 and have been succeeded by their sons. The Talukdars have the powers of a third class Magistrate in criminal matters and hear civil suits up to Rs 250, the residuary jurisdiction being with the Political Agent. The Talukdars are involved in debt and their estates are now on that account temporarily under Government management. This Taluka entered into engagements with the British Government in 1820 and 1826. In this Thana there is a sacred shrine dedicated to a saint named Aghad Mahant, who was held in great respect. The shrine is now supervised by a Bava residing at Dev Darbar, and is supported by landed property and cash contributions from surrounding villages.

TERWADA

This Taluka is owned by Baloch Mussalmans. It was once held by Waghelas but under the Sultans of Ahmedabad it came into the hands of Baloch nobles early in the eighteenth century. The present holders claim to be the descendants of the old Baloch family. Originally the estate consisted of many villages but they were all seized by Nawab Kamaludin during 1723—1730 and by the neighbouring marauding Kolis except sixteen which now form the Taluka. The Taluka does not exercise any jurisdiction and is under that of the Deodar Thanadar.

The Chiefs of the above Talukas have no salutes, but are entitled to be received collectively with other Chiefs of their class by the Governor of Bombay.

KANKREJ

This Taluka contains 34 distinct estates held by Koli Thakardas most of them descended from Rajputs who intermarried with Kolis. They are Solankis, Waghelas, Chohana and Parmars. The most important estate is Thara, which is divided into certain shares and the jurisdiction in which is exercised by a Joint Kamdar who is a third class Magistrate. The estates of two of the principal shareholders are under Government management on account of debt. The other estates are very petty and split up into several shares and many of the holders have been reduced to the position of mere cultivators. The jurisdiction over these estates is exercised by the Government Thanadar, who exercises the powers of a second class Magistrate in criminal matters and civil jurisdiction up to Rs 500. There is one religious estate in the Kankrej district Gangapuri ni Thali. This estate holder is a Bawa and is locally held in high respect. This Bawa does not marry and on a vacancy occurring the gadi is given to the chela considered most worthy to hold the office.

No local force is maintained.

PALANPUR

Palanpur is a first class State consisting of 508 villages. Of these, 133 are either the property of, or are shared with, Jagirdars. The ruling family is of Afghan origin—Lohani Pathan by descent—and has been in possession of the State since the end of the sixteenth century. The title of Diwan which is still retained was conferred by Akbar on Gaznikhan, one of the ancestors of the present dynasty in 1597 A.D. for his bravery in driving back an invasion of the Afghan tribe. The British connection with Palanpur dates from 1809, when an agreement was drawn up similar to the Kathiawar engagements, under which Palanpur promised to pay the Gaekwar a yearly tribute of Rs 50,000 Bahasahi currency—about Rs 38,462 British currency. The present Chief, His Highness Diwan Sir Sher Muhammad Khan Zorawar Khan, G.C.I.E., succeeded to the gadi with full powers on 19th September 1877. He has two sons aged 26 and 22 respectively. He has a Sanad of adoption granted by Government.

The administration of the State is favourably reported on.

The State assisted the British Government by supplying transport animals during the Afghan wars of 1842 and 1879 as a mark of its loyalty.

The State maintains a local force of 440 regular foot, 162 mounted police, 2334 village police, and 100 Vajedar sowars and has 24 guns and 'jamburas' in its possession.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 11 guns and is entitled to be received and visited by both the Viceroy and the Governor of Bombay.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Governor of Bombay. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows —

Your Highness I remain, Your Highness a sincere friend "

RADHANPUR

The ruling family belongs to the celebrated Babi house, which since the reign of Humayun (1530—1556) has been prominent in Gujarāt history. The State is said to have formerly belonged to the Waghelas and was formerly called Lunāwada after Waghela Lunaji of the Sardhāra branch of that tribe. Subsequently it was held as a fief under the Mahomedan kings of Gujarāt by Fakhkhan Baloch and was named Rādhānpur after Radhankhan of that family. About A.D. 1743 Jawan Mardkhan of this family usurped the viceroyalty of Gujarāt and in 1753 brilliantly defended Ahmedabad against the Marathas. His funds however failing, he was forced to surrender, but it was agreed that he should receive the districts of Pātan, Vadnagar, Rādhānpur, etc., free from any Maratha claim. On his death Damaji Gackwar in 1765 wrested from his sons Garuddin and Nazmuddin, many of the districts obtained by Jawan Mardkhan, leaving them only Rādhānpur, Sami, Munjpur, Tharād, Terwāda and two villages in Pātan. These districts were divided between the brothers, and after a lapse of time owing to failure of heirs again came under the Rulers of Rādhānpur, but Tharād and Terwāda seem to have been lost. The present Nawab, Muhammad Sher Khan, succeeded his father in December 1895 and was installed on the gads with full powers on the 13th April 1907. His Highness the Nawab was educated at the Rajkumar College Rajkot, and was for some time in the Imperial Cadet Corps and had the benefit of an extended tour in Europe. He performed the pilgrimage to Mecca while on his way back to India. From 1895 to 1907 the State was under British administration owing to the minority of the Nawab. The State being much isolated and with no proper communications suffered severely during the famine of 1899-1900, losing practically all the cattle for which it was noted.

The State maintains a local force of 106 sowars, 254 police and paltan; it has two guns for saluting purposes only.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 11 guns and is entitled to be received and visited by both the Viceroy and the Governor of Bombay.

The highest British authority by whom the chief has hitherto been addressed is the Governor of Bombay. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows —

SANTALPUR

The Santalpur district marches with the Runn of Cutch. It is divided into three parts—Chorad, Charchat, and Morwada. Santalpur is owned by Jadeja Rajputs, the chief among whom are Thakor Ravaji Lakhaji of Adesar and Devising Nathaji of Sanwa in Cutch. Both have girās in Cutch in addition to their shares in Santalpur. The other shareholders are too small to deserve any mention and all are under the jurisdiction of the British Thanadar stationed at Santalpur. These States made agreements with the British Government in 1820. Five villages were wrested from the Jadejas by Waghela Kanji of Morwada who added them to his own domain. At present Morwada belongs to the chief of Tharād and his Bhayats in equal parts. The estate of the Bhayats is under the jurisdiction of the Santalpur Thanadar, who exercises the powers of a second class

Magistrate with civil jurisdiction up to Rs 500 The Thakor of Adesar exercises the jurisdiction of a 3rd Class Magistrate and hears civil suits up to Rs 250 in the village of Gadsai which solely belongs to him

No local force is maintained

The Chiefs have no salutes, but are entitled to be received collectively with other Chiefs of their class by the Governor of Bombay

THARAD AND MORWARA

The jurisdictional powers of the Tharad State are the same as those of a fourth class State in Kathiawar, viz —

Criminal—Three years' rigorous imprisonment and fine to the extent of Rs 5000

Civil—To the extent of Rs 10,000

The ruling family claims descent from Kanji one of the supporters of the Babi family. He obtained possession of Morwada from Chavda Rajputs in A.D. 1508 and occupied Tharad in 1759 Kanji belonged to the Sardhara branch of the Waghefa tribe, who took their name from the conquest of Sardarghad in Saurashtra Kanji died in 1786 and was succeeded by his son, Harbhamji In 1819 Tharad being much harassed and almost unpeopled by the raids of Khossas and other desert plunderers, the then Chief, Harbhamji, prayed the British Government to help him, offering to pay a share of the cost In 1820, after the Khossas had been driven out, the Chief entered into an agreement with Government, and on the 14th February 1821 it was decided by Government that no tribute should be exacted until the revenue had increased, by one half, when one third of the increase was to be paid This arrangement remained in force until 1825, when the State was freed from tribute The present Chief is the lineal descendant of Harbhamji and he came to the gadi in 1892 The State is now indebted to Government For many years the larger half of the State consisting of what are known as the Jamaiya villages, numbering 107, was under British administration The Government of India affirmed in 1884 the principle that these villages were part of the Tharad State and that the jurisdiction belonged to the Thakor The exercise of jurisdiction in these villages was handed back to the Thakor in September 1904, on which date the Tharad Thana was abolished The majority of the holders of these Jamaiya villages are Chavan Rajputs who were in possession before the Mussalmans conquered them.

The State maintains no local force, but has a police force of 45 foot and 16 mounted police

VÁV (WAO)

Váv is a fifth class State as the term is understood in Kathiawad. The ruling Chief claims descent from Sambhar and Nandol in Márwár and also claims kindred with Prathiraj the Chuhán king of Delhi. After many turns of fortune Dedhrav, driven out of Nandol settled at Thárád, then under the Anhilvad kings. Rana Punjaji, the seventh in descent from Dedhrav was killed in battle and his son, Rana Vajoji, stripped of the Tharád Estates built the town of Váv. From the founder of Váv the present Rana Chandansing is twentieth in descent. He succeeded in the gadi in 1884 by adoption.

Owing to mismanagement and debt the State was put under management of the Agency in 1901. The State is paying the Government instalments regularly and has repaid Rs 26,837 of the Government debt. The Ranaaji was associated in the management of the State with the Administrator in 1904. The affairs of the State have been managed satisfactorily since.

VAV (THANA)

The Vav Thana District consists of small estates which are owned by Chavan Rajputs who are Bhayats of the Rana of Váv. These Bhayats are independent of the Taluádar and are under the jurisdiction of the British Thanadar whose head quarters are at Váv. The Váv family originally came from Marwar and claim kindred with Prathiraj Chavan, King of Delhi, who was killed by Afghan Shabudin Ghorí in 1193. Rana Vajaji built the town of Váv. The dates on which the Bhayats became possessed of their different holdings cannot be ascertained. None of the Bhayats are of any importance, and they are all more or less involved in debt. There is no river and the country is flat and sandy. The people are dependent for their water on tanks.

2 The Talúka of Saigam is in this district. The Thakors of this place have also sprung from the Váv family. ## BĀLASINOR (VĀDASINOR)

Bālasinor is the only considerable Muhammadan State in Rewa Kantha. The Chief belongs to the Babi family, the founder of which was door keeper (Babi) to the Emperor in the seventeenth century. On the death of the then head of the family in 1758 his younger son obtained the more important State of Junāgadh in Kāthiāwār, while the elder kept Bālasinor. He became tributary to both the Peshwa and the Gaekwar. The former's claim, which was fixed at Rs. 12 696 (Bahashai), passed to the British Government in 1817, while the Gaekwar's tribute was fixed at Rs. 4 004 (Bahashai) in 1813. The Pargana of Virpur, which was claimed by both Bālasinor and Lunāwāda, was adjudged to the former in 1863. The late Chief died in 1899, leaving a minor son, Jamiat Khanji. The State is thus under administration. The Nawab was in 1890 granted a Sanad guaranteeing succession according to Mahomedan law in the event of the failure of direct heirs.

The State maintains a local force of 10 guns, 18 cavalry and 109 infantry and police.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 9 guns and is entitled to be received by the Viceroy and to be received and visited by the Governor of Bombay.

Communications addressed to His Excellency the Governor are acknowledged by the Secretary to Government Political Department. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows:—"My friend,—Yours sincerely"

BARIYA

The first ruler of this State was a younger brother of the founder of the Chhota Udepur State (qv) and the State thus dates from the end of the fifteenth century. The position of the State permitted of its preserving its independence and levying contribution from the surrounding country. Its first connection with the British was in 1803, when cordial assistance was given to the British force which occupied Sindhia's Gujarát districts which led to the Chiefs being declared to be under British protection by the treaty of Dangi-Avgangaon. In the subsequent years, however, the State was harried by Sindhia's and Holkar's troops, and subsequent internal quarrels compelled British interference in 1819. In 1824 a tribute of Salamshah Rs 12,000 was imposed by the British Government. In 1868 it was determined that this sum should be devoted solely to the good of the State and it was formed into local fund which was devoted to the maintenance of the Gujarát Central India Road which runs through the State. In 1892 the administration of the fund was entrusted to the Raja. The present Chief, Maharawal Shri Ranjitsinghji succeeded on his father Maharawal Shri Mansinghji's death on 29th February 1908, and was installed on 7th May 1908. He was educated at the Rajkumar College, Rajkot, and for some time in a private school in Derbyshire in England, and gives every promise of being a good ruler.

The State maintains a local force of 3 guns, 39 cavalry and 189 infantry and police.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 9 guns and is entitled to be received by the Viceroy and to be received and visited by the Governor of Bombay.

Communications addressed to His Excellency the Governor are acknowledged by the Secretary to Government, Political Department. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows:—"My friend,—Yours sincerely"

CHHOTA UDEPUR (MOHAN)

Chhota Udepur or Mohan is the first among the 2nd class States in Rewa Kantha. The ruling family are Chavan Rajputs, the first Chief being the grandson of the last Raja of Pánágádh or Chámpáner, the State being founded shortly after the fall of that fortress in 1484. The history of the State is uneventful. Confined to the hills while the Moghals flourished, the Chiefs were able, on their decay, to found the town of Udepur on a trade route between Gujarát and Central India. They were, however, unable to resist the forces of the Gaekwar to whom a tribute of Rs 10,547 Babasbai (British Rs 7,806) is still paid, the State coming under British control in 1822. The town of Udepur was the scene of one of Tatta Topi's severest defeats in 1858. The present Chief, Maharawal Shri Fatesinghji Motisinghji, who succeeded in 1895, has been educated at the Rajkumar College, and after a period of association with the Administrator was installed on the gadi and invested with the full power of a 2nd class Chief on 12th March 1906.

The State maintains a local force of 3 guns, 23 cavalry, and 222 infantry.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 9 guns and is entitled to be received by the Viceroy and to be received and visited by the Governor of Bombay.

Communications addressed to His Excellency the Governor are acknowledged by the Secretary to Government, Political Department. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows:—"My friend,—Yours sincerely"

KADANA

This State ranks as of the fourth class. It was founded by the younger brother of the founder of the Sunth State in the thirteenth century. It has never been conquered by or paid tribute to any power, but suzerainty over it was claimed by Sunth, and was not finally disallowed till 1871. The State was under administration from 1889 to 1901 during the minority of the present Chief, Chhatrasalji. The Chief has been educated at the Girasia School, Wadwan, and was associated in the administration before his investiture. He gives every promise of being a good ruler.

The State maintains no local force.

The Chief has no salute, but is entitled to be received collectively with other fourth class Chiefs by the Governor of Bombay.

LUNÁVÁDA

The Chiefs of this State are Solanki Rajputs, descended from the family ruling in Anhilvād Pátan. They came to Virpur, now in Bálásinor territory, in 1225, and crossed the Mahi, probably under Mussalman pressure, to Lunáváda in 1434. From this time they were engaged in a constant struggle, in which they held their own, with their Mahomedan neighbours of Ahmedabad and Bálásinor on the west, and the Rajputs of Sunth and Godhra on the east and south. They were, however, unable to resist Sindhia. In 1803 the Bombay Government entered into a convention with the Lunáváda Chief, promising him protection. This was, unfortunately for Lunáváda, not ratified by the Governor General, and in the next few years Lunáváda was plundered by the Gackwar's, Haffkar's, and Sindhia's troops. By the intervention of the British, the Gackwar's tribute was fixed in 1812 at Rs. 6,000 (Babashai) while in 1819 Sindhia agreed not to interfere with the State on an annual payment of Rs. 12,000 (Babashai). This became payable to the British Government in 1860. Except for some slight trouble in the Mutiny, and for a border fight with the Sunth State, the history of the State has since been uneventful. The present Chief, Maharana Shri Wakhatsinghji Dalsinghji, was permitted to be adopted by the widow of the late Chief in 1867. Till he came of age in 1880 the State was under British administration. The Chief was created a K.C.I.E. in 1889, and given a Sanad of adoption in 1890. His administration was judicious and able, but of late years a severe attack of paralysis has reduced the share personally taken by him in the management of the State.

The State maintains a local force of 2 guns, 48 cavalry, and 149 infantry and 1 police.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 9 guns and is entitled to be received by the Viceroy and to be received and visited by the Governor of Bombay.

Communications addressed to His Excellency the Governor are acknowledged by the Secretary to Government, Political Department. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows:—"My friend,—Yours sincerely."

NARUKOT

This petty State is owned by a Chief of the Bária Koli clan, and is chiefly inhabited by Naikdas and Kolis, formerly notorious robbers and bandits. The Thakor himself claims to be a Parmar Rajput, descended from a family residing in Dhar in Central India, but is considered to be a Bária Koli. The State came under the control of the Political Agent, Rewa Kantha, in 1826, but the Gackwar's officer was allowed to collect the small annual tribute. In 1833 this officer compelled the Chief to make over half his revenue to the Gackwar's Government. The exaction of this amount caused a rising which was only put down by a British force with much difficulty. The Chief then asked for British protection and offered to pay half his revenue to Government. This offer was accepted, the revenue received being spent on the administration of the State, which has ever since been under British management. The Chief is now paid a fixed allowance of Rs. 5,000 per annum. After the establishment of order in 1837 the people remained wonderfully free from crime, until, in 1858, excited by the movements of rebel troops along the border, and joined by some of Tatia Topis men, the Naikdas rose and plundered the Government Thána at Nárukot. The revolt was put down in 1859. Nine years later a Naikda named Joria claimed supernatural powers and raised a serious disturbance, which had to be put down by the use of regular troops. Since then order has remained undisturbed. The present Chief is Dipsinghji. He succeeded to the Estate in 1869, but he has never exercised any powers nor managed his Estate. The extreme backwardness and excitable character of the people combined with the want of ruling qualifications in the Chief, still renders direct control necessary.

The present Thakor's son and heir, Gambhirsinghji, has been invested by Government with third class magisterial powers on probation and is being gradually trained in administrative duties.

The British control is exercised through a Thanadar and Police under the orders of the Political Agent. Before 1894 the State was treated as a Táluká subordinate to the Collectorate of the Panch Maháls, but since then it has been transferred to the Rewa Kantha Agency.

The State maintains no local force

PANDU MEWAS

As the Sankheda Mewas Estates are situated near the banks of the Narbada, so the Pandu Mewas Estates border on the Mahi River. They are 26 in number and cover a frontage of 58 miles along the river's bank. The Pandu Mewas Estates form four groups the Chiefs of which are (1) Kols, (2) Barias of mixed Koli and Rajput descent, (3) Rajputs and (4) one family of Mahomedans. The whole stretch of country was originally in the hands of the Kols, but the Rajputs forced their way in when driven from Chāmpāner. For three centuries they took advantage of the weakness of successive rulers to harry the rich surrounding plains. The two largest Estates—Bhadarwa and Umetha—with a few others, were placed under the protection of a British officer by the Gaekwar's agreements of 1812 and 1830, and the remainder were placed under the control of the Political Agent by the Convention of 1825. The assessment of tribute on them payable to Baroda was unfortunately fixed at a high figure, and this circumstance, coupled with family subdivisions and the want of cultivating power, have reduced most of the Chiefs and the Estates to a miserable point of poverty. The following is a list of the Pandu Mewas Estates arranged according to the castes of their Chiefs—

RAJPIPLA

Rajpipla ranks first among the States of the Rewa Kantha Agency. The Chiefs are Gohel Rajput descended from the family ruling at Perim in the thirteenth century. The original founder of the Rajpipla State is said to have been a son of the Parmar Raja of Ujjain. The Rulers of the State were driven into the hills by the Mahomedan rulers of Gujarat. In the time of the Moghals the Rajas of Rajpipla maintained semi-independence, occasionally paying tribute and supplying contingents for the Emperor. After the decline of the Moghals the portion of the State in the plain was recovered but the weakness of the Chiefs allowed the Gaekwar to overrun and hold the country. The British Government was obliged to interfere in 1820 when the annual tribute (Rs 6,500) payable to the Gaekwar was fixed and arrangements made to pay off the heavy debts claimed by him. The tribute now payable by the State to the Gaekwar is Rs 5,000. The State was restored to the Chief in 1827, but the next 60 years is a record of alternate misgovernment by the Rajas and management by the British Government. In 1887 it was found necessary to deprive the then Chief of all powers and the British Administrator, who had been associated with him since 1884 exercised complete control till 1897. In that year the late Chief died and the present Ruler His Highness Maharana Shri Chhatrasinghji<sup>1</sup> Gambhursinghji was installed and invested with full powers. He was educated at the Rajkumar College and has up to the present administered his State in an exemplary manner.

The State maintains a local force of 4 guns, 39 cavalry and 206 infantry and armed police.

The Raja enjoys a salute of 11 guns and is entitled to be received and visited by both the Viceroy and the Governor of Bombay.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Governor of Bombay. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—
 "Your Highness—I remain Your Highness's sincere friend"

SANJELI

This petty State is ruled by a Chief belonging to the Songada Chavan clan of Rajputs. The family originally came from Mewar, and the present Chief is said to be fortieth in descent from the founder of the State. It is undoubtedly the most ancient while one of the pettiest of the Rewa Kantha States. Its history consists of a series of struggles with its neighbours particularly with the State of Baria of whose territory it formerly had a large portion. Finally with the intervention of the British Government twelve villages were assigned to the Sanjeli Chief entirely independent of Baria. The State was taken under administration on the death on the 11th December 1901, of the late Chief Pratabsinghji. The Thakor's eldest son and heir Kumar Ranjitsinghji having been declared ineligible, the succession of Kumar Pushpasinghji the second son, a minor aged 10 years, has been sanctioned.

The State maintains no local force

The Chief has no salute, but is entitled to be received collectively with other fourth class Chiefs by the Governor of Bombay

SANKHEDA MEWÁS

This is a cluster of petty Estates on the banks of the Narbada River, owned by Chiefs of Rajput extraction, some have retained their Rajput customs and caste while others have embraced Mahomedanism under Mussalman pressure. These retain many Hindu customs and are called Molesaláms. These Estates date from the fall of Páwagadh (1484) when the Rajput power was broken by the Mussalmans, and the Rajput gentry betook themselves to the difficult country between the Rivers Orsang and Narbada and to the bank of the Mahi. Those who went to the south lived in the vicinity of Sankheda, a town in the territory of the Gackwar which has given its name to the possessions "Mewás" of these petty landed proprietors. Those who went to the north and west similarly formed the Pandu Mewás "round the village of Pandu. At first there were eight families in the Sankheda Mewás, but in course of time they became subdivided, and at the present day they number 26 estates. Early in the eighteenth century, when the Moghal authority was weakened and Maratha supremacy not established, the Sankheda Chiefs were able to spread their power over the rich plains of Gujarat but the increased power of Baroda drove them back, and laid them under an annual tribute which was never paid except on compulsion. In 1822 the disorder was so great that the British Government had to intervene. The Chiefs engaged to live peaceably and to pay the tribute fixed by the British Agent to the Gackwar, while the latter agreed to acknowledge their independence in their own States and to respect their rights in the villages in Baroda territory. The petty Chiefs have since given no trouble. They have paid their tributes regularly and accepted the Political Agent's settlement of their boundary and succession disputes. Some of them have been invested with small jurisdictional powers which they exercise subject to the supervision of the Agency Courts. Vajira and Mandwa are the largest of the States, a list of which arranged according to their sections is as follows—

SUNTH

The ruling family of this Second Class State are Povar or Parmar Rajputs of the Mahipavat Branch. Originally coming from Ujjain they ruled at Jhálod till driven into the hills by the Mussalmans. The present State was founded in 1255. It was successively tributary to the Ahmedabad kings and to the Moghals, but increased its territory on the decline of the latter power. A treaty was made with the Bombay Government in 1803 but was disallowed by the Governor General. In 1819, however, the British Government was obliged to save the State from Sindhua's exactions. The tribute to Sindhua, which became payable to the British Government after 1860, was fixed at Babashai Rs. 7,000 (British Rs. 5,385). The present Raja, Maharana Shri Jorawarsinghji Pratapsinghji, was invested with full powers on 10th May 1902. He was educated at the Rajkumar College and conducts the administration of the State satisfactorily.

The State maintains a local force of 3 guns, 22 cavalry and 133 infantry and police.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 9 guns and is entitled to be received by the Viceroy and to be received and visited by the Governor of Bombay.

The communications addressed to His Excellency are acknowledged by the Secretary to Government Political Department. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows - "My friend, - Yours sincerely"

AUNDH

The ruling family of Aundh claims descent from Shrimant Parasharam Trimbak, who was granted this Jaghir about A D 1700 by the Rani of Sátára (Tarabai, widow of Rajaram Bhonsle) and styled Pant Pratinidhi (Viceroy)

Shrimant Parasharam Shrinivas Pundit, Pant Pratinidhi succeeded to the gadi with full powers on the 20th February 1902 on the death of his father Shrimant Shrinivasrao Parasharamrao. He was in turn succeeded by Meherban Gopal Krishnarao alias Nana Saheb Pant in November 1905. From the time of his accession the latter devoted himself to pleasure and neglected the administration of his State. His powers have been withdrawn by Government, it having been proved that he had instigated a Mang to commit a dacoity in the house of the State Karbhari and murder him. The State is now administered by the Political Agent, Sátára.

The State does not maintain any local force.

The Chief has no salute, but is entitled to be received by the Viceroy and to be received and visited by the Governor of Bombay.

Communications addressed to His Excellency the Governor are acknowledged by the Secretary to Government, Political Department. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows —“ My friend —Yours sincerely ”

PHALTAN

Phaltan is a Satara Jaghir, and the Chief of the State besides being a Jaghirdar and Deshmukh ranks as a First Class Sardar. The ruling family (Nimbalkar) claims descent from one Nimraj, who was granted the Jaghir and Imam with the title of Naik by Muhammad Taghalak, Emperor of Delhi, about the year A D 1327. In the seventeenth century the State was tributary to Bijapur and in 1665 was invaded by Shivaji as being a Bijapur Jaghir. Later on the Jaghir became subordinate to the Raja of Sátára and the Peshwas of Poona. But after the fall of Baprao II we find it in alliance with the Raja of Sátára. The present Chief, Meherban Mudhoprao Naik Nimbalkar, Jaghirdar and Deshmukh, succeeded to the Jaghir in 1860, nearly seven years after the death of his adoptive mother Jibaisaheb. The present Chief was Additional Member of the Bombay Legislative Council from 1878 to 1881.

The Administration of the State has been reported on favourably by successive Political Agents of Sátára.

The State maintains no local force.

The Chief has no salute, but is entitled to be received by the Viceroy and to be received and visited by the Governor of Bombay.

Communications addressed to His Excellency the Governor are acknowledged by the Secretary to Government, Political Department. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows —“ My friend,—Yours sincerely ”

SAVANTVADI

Savantvadi, one of the ancient Maratha States in Western India, is under the political control of the Government of Bombay. It is situated between the British District of Ratnagiri and the Portuguese territory of Goa, about 200 miles to the south of Bombay. The ruling family traces its descent from one Mang Savant, a feudatory under the Mahomedan dynasty at Bijapur. Khem Savant I, who ruled from 1627 to 1640, established the independence of the State. In 1707 Khem Savant II received from Shahu the successor of Shivaji, a deed confirming him in his possession with full sovereignty. About the year 1784 the title of Raje Bahadur was conferred on the Chief by the Mogul Emperor of Delhi, and this title was subsequently recognized by the British Government. In 1730 the first treaty between the Chief and the British Government was concluded. In 1838 the then ruling Chief Khem Savant III, having proved himself unable to manage the State, the British Government assumed its administration and has continued to administer the State to the present time. The Chief is called the Sar Desai. Sar Desai Shriram Savant Bhonsle succeeded to the gadi on the 7th June 1900, the former Sar Desai Raghunath Savant Bhonsle, having died in December 1899. The Sar Desai has not yet been entrusted with powers and the administration is carried on by the Political Agent in the name and under the seal of the Sar Desai.

The Savantvadi Local Corps has lately been amalgamated with the Police.

The Sar Desai enjoys a salute of 9 guns. He is entitled to be received by the Viceroy and to be received and visited by the Governor of Bombay.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Governor of Bombay, but communications addressed to His Excellency the Governor are ordinarily acknowledged by the Secretary to Government, Political Department.

AKALKOT

The Raja of Akalkot is a Maratha of the Bhonsle family and is a First Class Sardar of the Deccan. The ancestor of the family was Ranoji, a son of Sayaji Lokhande, Patel of Parud in the Shivri Parganah of Aurangabad District in His Highness the Nizam's dominions, who without being formally adopted by the Chhatrapati Shahu Maharaj (grandson of the great Shivaji) of Satara, was taken by him into his family and had the family surname of Bhonsle of the Rajas of Satara conferred upon him under the following circumstances.

On the death of the Emperor Aurangzeb, Shahu Maharaj was released from captivity by the next Emperor, Bahadur Shah. On his way back to the Deccan Shahu encamped at Parud when he was attacked by Sayaji Patil who had espoused the cause of Tarabai, the widow of Rajaram, the other grandson of Shivaji. The Patil was defeated and slain in the encounter. His widow sought protection from Shahu Maharaj and placing her three little children at his feet implored his forgiveness. Naturally of a kind and humane disposition, Shahu Maharaj was touched with pity and expressed his willingness to take care of Ranoji, the eldest of the three children, and to bring him up as his own son. While marching onward from Parud some resistance was offered by the Bhils. On this occasion the nominal command of the detachment was entrusted to the boy Ranoji. The Bhils were defeated and dispersed and the Raja was so well pleased with this fortunate omen of the child's future career that he changed his name to Fatehsing and began to look upon him as a member of the royal family. In the year 1120 Fash, Fatehsing was granted the estate of Akalkot in hereditary Jaghir which is still held by his descendants.

The present Rajesahib Shrimant Fatehsing Shahaji III Raje Bhosle alias Bapusahab being a minor, the management of the State is being carried on by an Administrator, under the direct control and supervision of the Collector and Political Agent, Sholapur.

The State maintains a local force of 47 infantry and 71 police constables, including 5 mounted men.

The Raje Saheb of Akalkot has no salute, but is entitled to be received by the Viceroy and to be received and visited by the Governor of Bombay.

Communications addressed to His Excellency the Governor are acknowledged by the Secretary to Government, Political Department. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows:—"My friend—Yours sincerely."

KHAIRPUR

As regards its early history, Khairpur State is synonymous with Northern Sind. It was ruled by a Rajput dynasty which was conquered by the Muhammadans from Arabia about A.D. 711. Subsequently, along with the rest of Sind, Akbar incorporated it with the Mogul Empire from which it was dismembered in 1720 by Nadir Shah. After his assassination it became subject to the Durani Rulers of Kandahar. When the connection of the British Government with Sind commenced the country was in the hands of the Kalhoras who had risen to power. They, in their turn, were overthrown in 1786 for their despotism by a Baluch Tribe, the Talpurs, headed by Mir Fateh Ali Khan. The tyranny of this Chief led two of his kinsmen to rebel against him. One of them, viz., Mir Sohrab Khan Talpur seized Khairpur, renounced the authority of Mir Fateh Ali Khan and thus became the founder of the present Khairpur State. He retired from public life in 1811 and abdicated in favour of his son, Mir Rustam Khan. In a dispute with his younger brother, the late His Highness Mir Sir Ali Murad Khan Talpur, G.C.I.E., Mir Rustam Khan was defeated in battle in 1842 and subsequently forced to resign his turban to the former whom Sir Charles Napier then recognised as Chief of Khairpur. Mir Ali Murad attached himself to the British interests. During the Sind War he rendered valuable assistance to the British Government, and in 1845 he aided them materially both with arms and diplomacy to put an end to the Turki Campaign. In 1857, when in England, hearing of the outbreak of the Indian Mutiny, he sent orders to his eldest son, Mir Shah Nawaz Khan, to render every assistance to the Paramount power. On learning that the Shikarpur jail and treasury were threatened by the rebels, Mir Shah Nawaz marched there with troops and assisted in saving them from falling into the hands of the enemy. For his loyalty Mir Sir Ali Murad Khan had been, on the termination of the Sind War in 1843, established as Ruler of the Khairpur State with 1st class jurisdiction. His salute was raised from 15 to 19 guns as a personal distinction, and in 1891 the title of G.C.I.E. was conferred on him. On his death in the beginning of April 1894 his second and only surviving son, His Highness Mir Sir Faiz Mahomed Khan Talpur, G.C.I.E., succeeded to the gadi with the same powers as his father. His salute was raised from 15 to 17 guns as a personal distinction. He died on 5th March 1909 and has been succeeded by his son Imam Baksh Khan Talpur.

The administration of the State has been very favourably reported on by successive Commissioners in Sind.

The State maintains an Imperial Service Camel Corps the authorised strength of which is 40 mounted escorts, 120 camel transport men and 240 camels. A small local force of 375 men is also maintained.

The Chief is entitled to be received and visited by both the Viceroy and the Governor of Bombay.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor-General. The form of commencement and conclusion of letters is as follows—'My esteemed friend—I remain, with much consideration, Your Highness's sincere friend.'

BANSDA

Bansda ranks second among the Native States under the Surat Agency. The history of this State begins with the eighteenth century. The Bansda Chiefs are Solanki Rajputs and claim to have ruled at Bansda for twenty generations. It is probable that Bansda was formerly a much more important State than at present, its territory which stretched previously to the sea coast having been narrowed by the action of the Mussulman power. The present Chief Maharwal Shri Pratapsingji Gulabsingji, succeeded his father, Gulabsingji in 1876 at the age of 12. He was educated at the Rajkumar College in Kuthiawar. In 1856, in consideration of the British Government foregoing its share of transit duties the Chief agreed to pay a tribute of Rs 1,500 on account of chauff and to limit his customs demands to certain rates approved by Government.

The Chief takes a prominent part in the administration of the State, which has been reported on favourably by successive Agents.

The State maintains no local force.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 9 guns and is entitled to be received by the Viceroy and to be received and visited by the Governor of Bombay.

Communications addressed to His Excellency the Governor are acknowledged by the Secretary to Government, Political Department. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows —

My friend—Yours sincerely

DHARAMPUR

Dharampur ranks first among the Native States under the Surat Agency. The ruling family are Sisodia Rajputs of the Solar race. It has been in possession of the State for about 700 years. The country was conquered from the Bhils by Ram Raja and from their first leader their territory used to be and is still called Ramnagar. The connection of the British with the Dharampur State dates from 1803, when the Peshwa's claim to tribute was made over to the British under the terms of the treaty of Bassein. The present Chief, Maharana Shri Mohandevji Narandevji, succeeded to the gadi with full powers in August 1891 on the death of his father, His Highness Maharana Shri Narandevji Ramdevji. The late Chief was given the title of His Highness as a personal distinction when transit and other obnoxious duties were abolished by him.

The administration of the State is carried on by the Chief and successive Agents have reported favourably upon it.

The State maintains no local force.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 9 guns. He is entitled to be received by the Viceroy and to be received and visited by the Governor of Bombay.

Communications addressed to His Excellency the Governor are acknowledged by the Secretary to Government, Political Department. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows.

SACHIN

Sachin ranks third in the Native States under the Surat Agency. The ruling family is of African descent. When their ancestors came to India is doubtful. During the fifteenth century under the name of Sids of Danda Rajapur and Janjira in the Konkan, they were known first as the Bijapur, and afterwards as the Moghal admirals. In 1762 to the exclusion of Abdul Rahim, the rightful heir, Sidi Yakub succeeded at Janjira. Helped by the Marathas, Abdul Rahim, though defeated and a fugitive, was so formidable a rival that Sidi Yakub compromised the dispute by promising that on his death Abdul Rahim should succeed to Danda Rajapur and Janjira. Under this agreement Abdul Rahim succeeded in 1772 and continued to rule till his death. On Abdul Rahim's death his eldest son Abdul Karim Yakub Khan, commonly called Balu Mia, was excluded from the succession and Sidi Johar, commandant of Janjira, seized the Chiefship. Balu Mia fled to Poona.

His cause was strongly espoused by Nana Fadnavis, who was anxious by some means to gain power over the Island of Janjira. Johar appealed to the British to settle the dispute. Efforts were made to prevent war and on his making over his claims to the Peshwa, Balu Mia was promised a tract of land estimated to yield a revenue of Rs 75 000. The first instalment of the grant consisted of seventeen villages in the Choras Taluka of the Surat District called Satargam Parganah. As it was found that the tract granted did not yield the promised revenue, three more villages of Jalalpur Taluka were granted. Balu Mia came to Surat, and after a short residence there proceeded to Sachin, which he had chosen as his head quarters. In 1816, an attempt was made to induce the Nawab to transfer to the British the civil and criminal jurisdiction, but it failed owing to insufficiency of the concession. The State was taken under administration by Government in 1873, owing to the death of Nawab Ibrahim Mahomed Yakut Khan and the minority of his son Nawab Abdul Kadar. The latter resigned his claims to the State in favour of his minor son, Nawab Sidi Ibrahim Mohamed Yakut Khan in 1886 and died in 1896. The State remained under administration until May 4th, 1907, when Nawab Sidi Ibrahim Mohamed Yakut Khan was installed on the gadi at the age of 20 years. He was educated at the Rajkumar College, Rajkot, and the Mayo College, Ajmer, and served in the Imperial Cadet Corps.

The State maintains no local force.

The Nawab enjoys a salute of 9 guns. He is entitled to be received by the Viceroy and to be received and visited by the Governor of Bombay.

JAWHAR

No accurate account of the rise of the Jawhar dynasty is available, but it is believed that up to the time of the Muhammadan invasion of the Deccan and even a little later the greater part of the Northern Konkan was held by Koli Chiefs or Palegars. Of these, Jayaba Mukni was the most prominent having his headquarters at Jawhar. His son Nemshah, whose territory is estimated to have contained 22 forts and to have yielded a revenue of about nine lakhs of rupees, was recognized as Raja of Jawhar by the Emperor of Delhi in or about A.D. 1343 and the present Chief is believed to be directly descended from him. It appears that the Chiefs were not disturbed in their possessions either by the Muhammadans or by the Portuguese for the next 300 or 400 years, but the Peshwa's Government after reducing the coast of the Northern Konkan in 1739-40 began to annex such portions of the Jawhar territory as appeared to be of any value and ultimately in the year 1782 the then Raja Patangsha was confined in the small remainder of his possessions yielding then an estimated revenue of Rs. 20,000 on his agreeing to pay an annual tribute of Rs. 1,000 and also a nazarana on the accession of each new Raja. The late Chief Raja Patangsha IV died on 27th January 1905 and his eldest son Krishnashah, the present Chief, was installed on the gadi on the 19th May 1905 and being of age was entrusted with full powers. The succession being in the direct line, no nazarana was levied.

The administration of the State has been favourably reported on by the Political Agents.

The Raja of Jawhar has no salute, but is entitled to be received by the Viceroy and to be received and visited by the Governor of Bombay.

Communications addressed to His Excellency the Governor are acknowledged by the Secretary to Government, Political Department. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—"My friend—Yours sincerely."

HKAMTI LONG (KANTIGYI)

Hkamti Long consists of a collection of seven small Shan principalities, namely Lökkun, Lonkyein, Sekun, Setai, Langtai, Langne, and Mangne, of which Lökkun is the most important.

The Hkamti valley is situated at the head waters of the Mali Kba (Irrawaddy) river 17 marches from Myitkyina and about the same distance from Assam. It is surrounded by high mountains inhabited by Kachins, against whom the Shans living in the plains have to be always on guard. The staple crop of the valley is rice which is grown in fields irrigated from the neighbouring streams. India rubber is found in the hills but owing to the lawlessness of the tribes north of Myitkyina very little of it comes to Burma. Money is very scarce in Hkamti and opium is the chief medium of barter.

It is not known by whom these small States were founded. The Lökkun Sawbwa claims to be descended from San Manton, a brother of the Sawbwa of Mogaung, Sewanpha, who was a contemporary of the Burmese King Naryata. San Manton invaded the Hkamti valley and took possession of the Lökkun State.

From all that can be gathered, the several Hkamti States are independent of each other but owing to the great age and piety of the Lökkun Sawbwa he is much respected and in the graver matters of state his opinion is looked for and his decision regarded as final.

San Nwe Cho is said to be 80 or 90 years old. He succeeded his father in about the year 1862. He has three sons: San Myet, aged 43; San Nwe Ho, aged 42; and San Saw, aged 29, and four daughters, one of whom is married to the Langtai Sawbwa, another to the Sawbwa of Mangne, a third to the brother of the Langne Sawbwa, and the fourth to a cousin of the Chief of Setai. San Nwe Cho lives at Putai.

The Sawbwas collected yearly from their subjects a nominal revenue of Re 1 and a basket of paddy per house. The form of government is patriarchal.

The Hkamti Sawbwas have frequently sent deputations with presents to the Deputy Commissioner of Myitkyina, and the Lökkun Sawbwa has quite recently applied for help against the Lonkyein Sawbwa who has threatened to attack him with the help of the Kachins. The Lonkyein dynasty was at one time the most powerful in the valley, and it was only supplanted by the Lökkun dynasty about forty-five years ago, after many years of strife and varying fortunes.

The number of fighting men in the valley is estimated at 2,800 and the number of guns at 750.

MÔNG MIT (MOMEIK)

PART I

The Mông Mit State was founded in 1231 A D (600 B E) by Shwe Nan Shin, Sawbwa of Kengtung. Of his five sons, who ruled over vast areas stretching as far as Mogaung and Mohnyin, the fourth son, Tho han bwa (Hso-han hpa), was the first Sawbwa of Mong Mit, while his fifth son, Tbo-han-ka (Hso han ka), was first Sawbwa of Mohlaing which adjoins Mong Mit (Momeik) immediately to the north and lies between it and Bhamo.

According to local chronicles, on the death of Shwe Nan Shin in 638 B E (1276 A D) Tho han-bwa succeeded his father, and Mong Mit was made, over to Saw-ke-bwa, who founded Mông Mit town. There are said to have been 289 rulers in the interval up to 1837 (1199 B E), when Maung E Pu is recorded as being appointed Sawbwa of Mong Mit, by the Burmese King Shwebo Min. This E Pu was grandson of Sawbwa Maung Nyun, from whom the present Sawbwa, Kin Maung, is directly descended. E Pu was driven out by one of his Generals, Mingala Bo, and up to 1840 the Burmese King sent a succession of Wuns to turn out the usurpers till in 1207 B E (1843), the then Wun was recalled and the administration left in the hands of four Amatgys according to the local chronicles while, according to another story one Maung Hmaing became Sawbwa of the united Sawbwa-ships of Mohlaing and Mong Mit. In 1850 according to the local chronicles, Maung E Pu, with the aid of Kachins and Palaungs, returned and, expelling the council of four amats was recognised as Wun, but killed the only representative of the hereditary family—Kun Pu—he could find. Kun Te (Hkun Ti) son of the murdered man obtained an order from the King to depose E Pu advanced and destroyed Mong Mit but was recalled and his brother Haw Kyn appointed to the place. The Kachins rebelled and destroyed Mông Mit in 1858. The King then sent back Kun Te with a strong force under Bo Hlaing and by treachery the Kachins were overcome and 46 of them hanged which led to a "debt" against Mong Mit and caused recurrent friction and reprisals up to the annexation.

It would seem that when Maung Hmaing above alluded to died, the territory was divided between his sons Maung Pa (probably Maung E Pu noted above) who took Mong Mit, and Kya U who took Mohlaing. For some years the history of both States was much disturbed and contradictory accounts are given, but it may be gathered that ultimately Haw Kyn succeeded Hkun Ti in the Chieftainship of Mong Mit whether by murder or otherwise. Then alternately and confusedly various outsiders, e.g., Wuns sent from Mandalay, Kyaw San, Sawbwa of Mông Long, the Myadaung Wun, etc., intervened in the affairs of the State, held brief sway and were ejected till out of the welter in 1236 B E (1874) Kan Hlo, son of Hkun Ti, emerged from a judicious retirement and ruled Mong Mit till his death in 1245 (1883).

Unfortunately as Haw Kyin (of Mohlaing) died at about the same time as Kan Ho and the position was complicated by the remarriages of the widows of Hkun Tè and Kan Ho, whose second husbands both acted for some time as regents, the immediate succession became in abeyance, but apparently at the time of the annexation there was no recognised government of Mohlaing (pending consideration of Kan Hlaing's claim) while Mōng Mit was being administered by three Burmese officials on behalf of the minor Kin Maung

In October 1886 Kan Hlaing was induced to come to Katha where for some time he remained pending the consideration of his claims. Towards the end of that year he absconded and has been a bitter rebel ever since. In April 1887 the Chief Commissioner himself visited Mogók received the Mōng Mit officials, and settled the conditions under which Mōng Mit was to be administered, and fixed the boundary between that State and Mōng Long. Kan U (step father of the young Saubwa Kin Maung) was appointed regent of Momeik during the minority of Kin Maung. Momeik and Mohlaing were at the same time declared to be separate States while the boundaries of both States and of the adjoining British districts were rearranged and determined.

It was in contemplation at the time to recognize Kan Hlaing as the Chief of Mohlaing but he persistently declined to obey orders, and made repeated raids and occupied part of Mōng Mit territory. At the close of 1887 it was found necessary to drive him from Mohlaing by an expeditionary force sent from Katha, and Mohlaing State was then finally dismembered, the northern portion being attached to Bhamo District and the remainder added to Momeik.

Kan U and the Burmese Amats proved, however, unable to keep order in that part of Mohlaing which had been transferred to their charge. Kan Hlaing took up his residence in the Kachin Hills east of Mōng Long and fomented disturbances in the Upper Sinkan Township, as has been noted above. Towards the end of 1888 he established relationship with Saw Yan Nang the son of the Hmetkaya Prince, who had established himself at Manpon in a difficult position on the borders of the Taungpeng and Loi Lóng States and Mōng Mit. Together they endeavoured to arrange a simultaneous movement on a large scale at various points on the northern frontier. Mōng Mit itself, the capital of the State, was threatened. Reinforcements were then sent up and an attack was made on Manpon the headquarters of Saw Yan Nang. Four stockades were taken without loss and the position was occupied, but owing to a misunderstanding, the column returned to headquarters before the country had been thoroughly explored and settled. The result was that Saw Yan Nang almost immediately reestablished himself at Manpon, a few miles from Manpon, and remained there for the rest of the year.

Kan Hlaing remained with the Lwesaing Tnnhon Kachins, with whom he was connected by marriage and incited them to keep the southern part of the Bhamo District in a state of ferment. Other minor leaders, of whom the most important were Nga Maung of Twinnè and Heng Nga Maung of Mong Long, derived support and encouragement from these centres of disaffection and one or both of them found an asylum in the State of Mong Long.

Combined operations on a large scale were consequently organised. One column of troops and Military Police started from Bhamo in December 1889 against Lwesaing and Tonhon and it was arranged that another column should march from Mong Mit and should combine with the Bhamo column at Maupon while Mong Mit town was occupied by troops, and that Lieutenant (now Lieutenant Colonel) H Daly, the Superintendent Northern Shan States, with a detachment of the Shan levy of Military Police, should co-operate from the Hsenwi side, keeping touch with the other columns as far as possible. At the same time a party of Military Police under Mr H F Hertz, Assistant Superintendent of Police, was detailed to visit Mong Long and thence march along the Tawngpeng border to deal with any bands that might be in that quarter.

The country was quieted by the breaking down of organised opposition, but efforts to secure the surrender or capture of Saw Yan Naing and Kan Hlaing and of their leading adherents were unsuccessful. Saw Yan Naing slipped past Lieutenant Daly into Hsenwi and passed thence across the Chinese frontier where he has since remained at different places in the Shan Chinese States, and was afterwards joined by Kan Hlaing.

It became evident that a stronger form of government than that by the Burmese Amats was necessary, and in April 1887, Saw Maung the Sawbwa of Yawog Hwe in the Southern Shao States in Burmese times (and since re-appointed to that State) was installed as regent of Mong Mit for five years from April 1889 during the minority of Kin Maung, the hereditary Chief. Saw Maung unfortunately did not succeed in gaining the good will of the people of Mong Mit or in maintaining proper supervision over his subordinate officials. This is perhaps hardly surprising for he had no experience of Kachins or Palaungs who form about 80 per cent. of the population.

During 1889 the riverine portion of the Mong Mit State including Twinnè and the five villages of the Oaungbon Circle were included in the Ruby Mines District while a Myoth was put in charge of that portion of Molaing which had been handed to Mong Mit as a township. In October 1890 Yabon, the chief village of Maopoo, was attacked by Kachins and Palaungs and the Sawbwa's Amat driven out under the leadership of Sau Saing, Kachin Chief of the Labkams of Yabon, while in December 1890 the Lakuo Duma of Katkon attacked the Molaing Myoth at Etkeyi on the Shweli killing and wounding several of his men and carrying off his property.

The Assistant Commissioner from Momeik went out with a strong force. The Yabon affair was settled without much difficulty and the ringleader captured but the Katkon Kachins offered considerable resistance before their opposition was crushed.

By this time it became clear that Saw Maung was unable to manage the State and Government decided to take over the direct management. On the 2nd February 1902, Saw Maung made over charge of the State to the Assistant Commissioner, and from that date it was administered as a sub-division of the Ruby Mines District up to 31st March 1906.

During 1891-92 the boundary between the State and Bhamo District was laid down and the villages in the Kodaung were visited and brought under control.

Early in 1893 disturbances in North Hsenwi caused anxiety, but Saw Yan Naing and Kan Hlaing continue to be refugees and outlaws over the Chinese border. Since the direct administration of the State was taken over, however, there has been no internal disturbance. Maung Kan U, the regent, appointed in 1887 (see above), died in 1903.

The young Sawbwa Kin Maung was sent to school, left school about 1902, after which time he was kept under training as a Myoth. He was allowed to visit Momeik after the death of Maung Kan U for a short time, but committed various extravagances for which he was reprimanded and was sent back to Myingyan. Under orders of the Government of India he was installed as Sawbwa or Chief of Momeik with effect from the beginning of 1906-07.

As regards Mong Mit itself, the administrative system of the State in Burmese times consisted of a Sawbwa at the head of affairs with four Amalgys, four Amattaüks, two Thandausins, and four writers of the Court. Besides this, there was a headman appointed in each village to collect revenue and to prevent violent crime. No trained soldiers or police were kept, but in time of necessity every headman was ordered to come in with a certain number of men according to the size of his village. The thathameda revenue was first assessed at the rate of Rs. 5 per year on every family in the reign of King Mindôn, but after two or three years the rate was increased to Rs. 10, the assessment of other parts of Upper Burma. The total revenue collected in Mindôn's reign was about Rs. 25,000 a year made up from the following sources:—

	Rs
Thathameda	15,000
Land revenue	5,000
Fisheries	3,000
Duty on raw tea	2,000
Total	25,000

The land revenue was assessed at the rate of one and a half baskets on every hundred baskets of paddy.

Thathameda and land revenue were collected by the thugys.

Officers serving under the Sawbwa received their pay partly in money, partly in kind, but no regular system of monthly salaries was in vogue.

Of the various officials who served the State of Mong Mit in the time of the late Sawbwa Kan Ho the following are still residing in Momeik:—

- |                                  |                                   |

| (3) Maung Paw, Amattaük   | (6) Maung Kyu, Myosaye     |
| (7) Maung Po Tun, Myosaye |                                   |

The others are said to have died. Of the seven men mentioned above, Maung Ku (No. 6) is serving as the Momeik thugyi.

Amattaük Maung Paw (No. 3) was appointed Myoök of Mohlaing in 1891. He was subsequently made mythugyi of Sagadaung in 1893, then acted as ywathugyi of Sagadung and was removed from his appointment at last for incompetency.

Administration and Revenue of the State of Mong Mit while under direct civil administration as a part of the Ruby Mines District from 2nd February 1892 to 31st March 1906

POLICE

The strength of the Civil Police in the State which was paid for by the State was up to the end of 1903, 06, three Police posts and 72 men under an Assistant Superintendent of Police and eight local Kachin Police enlisted under the Police Act, but non personable and under direct control of the Civil Officer, Kodaung. There were Military Police posts as follows:—

ADMINISTRATION AND REVENUE

Until the instalment of the present Sawbwa Kin Maung at the beginning of 1906, 07 the State of Mong Mit was administered as a sub-Division of the Ruby Mines District and divided into the two townships:—

(i) Momeik (which included the township of Mohlaing abolished by General Department Notification No. 57 of 27th March 1900)

(ii) Kodaung (i.e. the hill tracts to the west and north west of Momeik)

(a) The Kodaung township was administered by a Civil Officer under direct control of the Deputy Commissioner. The law in force was that of the Kachin Hill Tribes Regulation and rules thereunder and the system of revenue was thathameda tax of Rs 5 per house on Kachins and Rs 10 on Palaungs, but no land revenue was assessed

The receipts for the four years 1902 03 to 1905 06 from the Kodaung were—

1902 03	12 849	15	6
1903 04	14 927	0	0
1904 05	23 529	0	0

(b) The Momeik township was administered as an ordinary sub division It included the two townships of Mohlaog and Momeik which were fused

There was one sub divisional officer in charge with a township officer under him the headquarters being at Momeik, which was also the residence of the Assistant Superintendent of Police in charge of the Civil Police The revenue was derived from thathameda at Rs 10 per annum a household, tax on laungya cutters at Rs 2 8 0 a household, while land revenue was collected at 15 per cent of gross outturn on State lands and 10 per cent on non State lands This proportion was levied whatever the crop the percentage being taken in baskets in the case of paddy and in viss in the case of tea and tobacco converted into money at harvest market rates

The revenue collected during the last four years before the State was made over to the present Sawbwa was as follows —

	Receipts Rs	Expenditure Rs
1902 03	1 01 538	1 07 910
1903 04	1 03 115	1 10 369
1904 05	1 13 630	87 649
1905 06	1 4 306	1 42 199

The State has in the past paid an annual tribute of Rs 20 000 to Government

FORESTS

There was no Forest Officer in special charge, but the whole of the reserved forests (of which there are 10) in the area of the State were controlled by the Deputy Conservators of Forests stationed at Bhamo and Mogok respectively, the dividing line between the two jurisdictions being the watershed between the Shweli and the Sinkan Chaung

PART II

Up to 31st March 1906, the State was administered as noted in Part I above as an ordinary subdivision of the Ruby Mines District At the beginning of 1906 07 the young Sawbwa Kin Maung was installed as Chief at a Darbar held by His Honour the Lieutenant Governor on 10th April 1906 and the State is now administered under the provisions of Mong Mit Administration Order of 1906 Briefly, the re arrangements consisted in replacing the Assistant Superintendent of Police by an Inspector, while the former subdivisional officer U Cho became Assistant Superintendent, the former township officer being retained in order to supervise the treasury and to assist in the administration of civil justice in the Chief's Court (the Assistant Superintendent having no original jurisdiction) because except for the township officer there are no competent local men who could be given high judicial powers The township officer also is of material assistance to the Chief in revenue matters while in order to ensure continuity of revenue administration the actions of the Chief are subject to the advice and review of the Atun-awn who is the experienced officer U Cho above referred to As regards the Kodaung there has been no radical alteration, the hill tracts being administered by means of a Civil European Officer directly under the Superintendent who is the Deputy Commissioner of the Ruby Mines District and the laws applicable to this tract remain the same as they were heretofore In the rest of the State the only changes of moment are the alteration in the civil jurisdiction of the local Courts, the Court of the Chief now having jurisdiction without limit of value, and the radical change in the opium administration whereby, in lieu of the ordinary law under the Opium Act, which has been administered for some years, any one may import, possess, and sell up to one-eighth of a viss of opium without let or hindrance

The young Sawbwa married in 1906 Ma Ein the daughter of Payataga Hmat, A T M, the chief native ruby merchant of Mogök He has made a good beginning

HSAWNGHSOP (THAUNGTHUT)

Up to 1195 B E the headquarters of the State went by the name of Gawntonna. From that year to the present time the following Sawbwas held sway —

- (1) Sawbwa Tho hon hwa
- (2) Sawbwa Tho han bwa
- (3) Sawbwa Tho ngan bwa
- (4) Sawbwa Tho-kyin bwa
- (5) Sawbwa Saw kan ho
- (6) Sawbwa Saw Sa

- (12) Sawbwa Saw Shwe Maing
- (13) Sawbwa Saw Ni Kan
- (14) Sawbwa Saw Kin Min
- (15) Sawbwa Saw Tun (present ruler)

The above information has been kindly furnished by the present Sawbwa. From the above list the average duration of a reign did not exceed five years, which in itself may be taken as a proof of unsettled rule. The Sawbwas originally lived on the east bank of the Chindwin River, removing to their present capital on the west bank in 1195 B E. The dates of the various reigns as set forth above are at present not available, but efforts are being made to procure them, if possible.

In 1858 A D the Sawbwa Saw Shwe Maing presented a white elephant to King Mindon, in return for which he was granted a large tract of country on the east of the Chindwin in addition to his original territory on the west, over which, however, he never exercised any efficient control. Saw Shwe Maing was succeeded by his son, Saw Ni Kan, in 1880, whom we found in possession when we entered the country in 1886. Saw Ni Kan from the outset showed himself friendly to our Government, he never allowed himself to be drawn into the plots of the Legayaing headmen, who gave considerable trouble in the early days. Had he opposed us, the pacification of the Upper Chindwin would not have been the easy task it proved. He was rewarded with numerous presents and title of KSM. He is to this day always spoken of by his relations as "Kyethu ye." He stood firm during the Wuntho rebellion, although he was related by marriage to the Wuntho Sawbwa and the Kale Sawbwa further south was disloyal. He refused to allow Bo Le, who was sent by the Wuntho Sawbwa to bring him over, to enter the State and prepared to resist him by force of arms.

In 1889 Chins from Kampat village in the Manipur State raided the village of Nannan in the inner valley. The Political Agent of Manipur fined Kampat Rs 250 which sum was paid to the sufferers by the raid. On the 27th August in the same year Saw Ni Kan was presented with a Sanad at a darbar held at Paungbryn. Saw Ni Kan died in 1893 and was succeeded by his son, Saw Kin Mun, who showed the same good will towards our Government as his predecessors. Saw Kin Mun did not prove himself a wise ruler. He took to bad habits and surrounded himself with favourites and bangers on all of whom had to be supported out of the scanty revenues of the country. The Kyamaing (who is the present Sawbwa) begao to intrigue with a view to getting him ousted, and brought several charges of misgovernment against him but nothing serious was proved. The Sawbwa resented this and showed marked favour to his own son, Maung Mu Pa, who had been sentenced to transportation for dacoity with murder and was released from jail in 1898. Saw Kin Mun died on the 13th December 1899 and was succeeded by the Kyamaing Saw Tun. Mu Pa was foolish enough to imagine that the British Government would recognize him, if not as Sawbwa, at any rate as Kyamaing, and as there was a prospect of his causing trouble he was ordered to leave the State, and subsequently died at Sagaing. The new Sawbwa revenged himself by keeping Mu Pa's sister and mother, Saw Kin Mun's widow, in a state of destitution and had to be compelled to make a provision for them by the Commissioner on the occasion of the presentation of his Sanad in March 1901. At the same time the Sawbwa's son, a boy of ten years of age, now being educated at Calcutta, was declared Kyamaing heir apparent. Since then Saw Tun has displayed all the hereditary good will of his family towards the British Government. He has shown himself a wise and capable ruler, and the State is prospering under him. In 1902-03 he built himself a handsome teak court house, and in 1904 a fine teak dwelling house on the site of "Kyetthu-ye's" old palace.

The Thauingthut Sawbwa was presented to the Viceroy, Lord Curzon, at Kalewa in 1901, and the title of K S M was conferred on him on the 1st January 1908.

SINGKALING HKAMTI (Zingalein Kanti)

Zingalein was originally inhabited by the Mart tribe of Theimbaws (Kachins). About 100 years ago Shans of a race known as "Maingtaung" settled among them and gradually acquired such power as to dispossess the Martis. Where the Maingtaungs came from is not recorded, but presumably from the north. Later on another Shao tribe called Lonchein were expelled from their country, "Kantigyi" or greater Kanti, many days' journey to the north, and came down to Neipin, a Theimbaw village still in existence in the Hukong valley, and their Chief, Saw Haw Hsi, in B. E. 1274 (A. D. 1812) presented his daughter, Nantaung, to King Bodawpaya who appointed Saw Haw Hsi's son, Saw N Kaung, as Sawbwa of Neipin. The original inhabitants, who were Tasao Theimbaws, would have noce of this, and drove out the emigrants, who went south and got a royal order appointing Saw Ní Kaung Sawbwa of Zingalein, and founded Kanti, so called after their mother country. The Maingtaungs did not dispute their title, and before long the two races became merged with one another. Saw Ní Kaung was succeeded by Saw E and Saw E by Saw Lí. King Mindón, being apprehensive of invasion by the British from Assam, erected a strong fort at Kanti and sent up a quantity of arms and ammunition. Shortly after this, about 1873 A. D., Amatgyi Saw E headed a successful rebellion and drove Saw Lí out. Myobí Maung Ba U was sent up by the King, but Saw E successfully resisted him. The King then sent up a large Army and in A. D. 1876 Saw Lí was reinstated. Two years later the Tazan Theinhaws came down and attacked Kanti, taking it entirely by surprise. It was utterly wiped out and Saw Lí had to flee, never to return. In 1881 A. D. he sent back his son, Po Hlaing to take charge of the State.

In 1883, Saw Pan, a Theinhaw of the Wadat tribe, and a brother in law of the Tazan Sawbwa of Letthi came down and settled at the village of Hmanbin just north of Kanti with fifty followers. Three or four months after his arrival, he and six of his followers were treacherously killed by Po Hlaing while on a visit to him at Kanti. The Tazan Theinhaws in revenge destroyed Kanti a second time and drove out Po Hlaing, who never ventured to return. The State was now reduced to four or five small villages, which for the next eight years were looked after by the Mant Sawbwa Lese-la. The control of the Zingalein country thus reverted to the descendants of its original inhabitants. On the annexation of Upper Burma we found Lese-la in possession, but the Shans expressed a wish to have a Sawbwa of their own and in 1891 a nephew of Saw Ní Kaung, Saw Ní Taung was appointed Sawbwa, without any opposition from the Theinhaws.

At the end of 1892 Saw Ní Taung died and his infant son, Saw How, aged five years, with Amatgyi Saw E as regent was appointed. Saw How died in 1894 and Saw Ní Taung's infant daughter, Saw Kin was appointed, still with Saw E as regent. Saw Kin died in 1898 and the regent Saw E, the present Sawbwa, was appointed. The Sawbwas of Kanti have always maintained a consistently friendly relation with the Naga tribes on the west of the Chindwin and there is no case on record of any Shan village having been raided. In 1895 a petty raid was committed on the "tame" Chin village of Laungsauk by the Tin-mzung Chins, but Laungsauk was considered to be beyond the Sawbwa's sphere of efficient control and no punishment was inflicted.

In 1899 similar action was taken in the case of a raid on a Lasaw Chin village. In 1901, some Shan traders were raided on the Nansalein chaung, which again was considered beyond the Sawbwa's control. In 1903 some Chins of the Lasa tribe carried off three Shans who were fishing at the mouth of the Nanpok stream on the west bank of the Chindwin above Kanti. The prisoners were soon released and enquiry showed that the Sawbwa had himself provoked the raid by detaining a buffalo belonging to the Lasas. The matter was settled satisfactorily, but it was discovered that the Sawbwa had been pursuing for some time past a frontier policy calculated to embroil us with the Chins and Kachins beyond the border. He incurred the censure of the Lieutenant Governor.

The present Sawbwa is reported as not being very reliable, but he is said to be astute, and not likely ever to give trouble. He has been giving some assistance lately in the suppression of opium smuggling. A relation of his was made opium licensee of the Thamanthi shop in the hope of securing increased seizures of opium. It is too early to say whether the hope has been fulfilled.

In 1903-04 he built himself a fine timber house. He was presented to the Viceroy, Lord Curzon at Kalewa in 1901.

The Sawbwa's palace was destroyed during the year 1908.

The State lies to the north east of Mandalay District and is roughly divided into two equal parts by the Lashio branch of the Burma Railways. It consists of Hsipaw proper and the sub States of Mong Long Hsumhsai, and Vong Tung. Hsipaw proper is controlled directly from the capital while the administration of the sub-States is conducted through subordinate officers, over whose appointment and removal Government exercises a right of veto. The early history of the State is obscure and present few features of interest. In the time of King Mindon however, the State had reached a high degree of prosperity, and the Chief enjoyed the favour of the Burmese Court. The then Sawbwa, Hya Htun, died in 1866 and was succeeded by his son, Hkun Saing who had previously received the title of Kemimong, or heir apparent. For the first twelve years of Hkun Saing's administration all went well, but trouble arose after the accession of King Thebaw, which resulted in Hkun Saing being obliged to flee from the State. He went first to Siam and then to Rangoon, where he traded as a jewel merchant. While at Rangoon he shot two of his followers whom he suspected of plotting against his life. For this he was tried and sentenced to death. The sentence was commuted, however, and after a short period of imprisonment he was released (1883), and ordered to leave British territory. He made his way to Karenni where he found protection with Sawlapaw, Myosa of Kantarawadi. On the fall of Mandalay and the annexation of Upper Burma, Hkun Saing returned to Hsipaw. The State had suffered from great disorder since his flight, and was in a condition of anarchy. He speedily collected a following and entered the capital without opposition (1886). Early in 1887 he submitted to the British Government. The sub States of Mong Long Hsumhsai, and Mong Tung were incorporated in Hsipaw, and Hkun Saing was recognised as Sawbwa. In Mong Long there was some opposition to his authority, but it was gradually overcome. Since that time the State has enjoyed peace, and has advanced greatly in population and resources. In 1893 a British officer was lent to the State as Adviser to the Sawbwa. Under his guidance all branches of the administration have been reformed, and Hsipaw is now probably the best governed of the British Shan States. The Advisership was abolished in December 1903 when the charge of Assistant Superintendent Hsipaw and Tawngpeng, was created. Sawbwa Hkun Saing was created a Companion of the Order of the Indian Empire in 1895 and a member of the Council of the Lieutenant Governor of Burma in 1899. He twice visited England and had the honour of being presented to Her Majesty Queen Victoria. Hkun Saung died in May 1902 and his eldest son, Saw Hke, was appointed acting Sawbwa. Saw Hke received a good education, partly in England, and for the last five years of his father's life he took a large share in the administration of the State. His extravagance, however, had led to his getting heavily into debt, and it was not considered advisable to grant him full powers as Chief until his liabilities had been discharged. With this object the control of the State treasury was taken over by Government in July 1902*. The control of the Treasury, coupled with a more strict supervision of the State finances, has been attended by a notable expansion of revenue. The Sawbwa's son, Sao On Kya, has been nominated as his successor, and the nomination has been approved by the Lieutenant Governor of Burma. Sao On Kya is now being educated in England.

The Sawbwa of Hsipaw is entitled to a salute of nine guns. This honour was conferred on the State in 1902.

Manglun lies on both sides of the Salween, but by far the larger part of the State is on the east of that river. It is divided into East and West Manglun, Mot-hai, Mang Hseng, and Maw Hpa. Over the two first divisions the Saubwas control is fairly complete. Mot-hai, Mang Hseng and Maw Hpa have subordinate rulers and are regarded rather as feudatories than integral parts of Manglun. The Saubwa also exercise overlordship in Ngekting, but he has little real control there. The limits towards the east and north east, both of the Saubwa's actual authority and of his pretensions, vary with circumstances and are never very strictly defined. West of the Salween the population is mostly Shan, but east of the river Was are in an overwhelming majority. Most of the latter profess Buddhism. They have given up head hunting, but they have made little further progress in civilization.

Up till comparatively recent years the Was of Manglun were no doubt in much the same condition as their brethren of the so called Wild Wa States are to day, that is ideas of Government did not extend beyond the village, or group of villages. Alliances, more or less permanent, probably existed and the people were ready at all times to combine against outsiders. The legendary history does not give any coherent account of the growth and consolidation of the State, nor is it possible to say from what period it has had a recognized chief. The present Saubwa is descended from one Ta Awng, a Wa of the Hta Mo clan who obtained the chiefship early in the last century. Ta Awng was a usurper, and he supplanted an older hereditary line of Saubwas which was then represented by one Sao Maung Saü.

On Ta Awng's death in 1822, his son Sao Nam Hpong appears to have been recognized as Saubwa. He was succeeded in turn by his son Hkun Sing, Sao Hsang (Sao Nam Hpong's younger brother) acting as regent during Hkun Sing's minority. [According to another account Ta Awng had no children, and was directly succeeded by Hkun Sing, who is described as his nephew.] Hkun Sing ruled thirty years and left six sons. He was succeeded by his eldest son, Upa Yaza (1852). In 1853 the latter's younger brother, Naw Hpa rebelled, and Upa Yaza fled to Mot-hai where he died the following year. Naw Hpa obtained possession of West Manglun and the southern portion of East Manglun while the remainder of the State came under Ton Hsang the present Saubwa. During these troubles several of the petty States which had formerly belonged to Manglun severed their connection and have since been independent. In 1859-60 Naw Hpa died and Ton Hsang obtained possession of the State. He appointed his three younger brothers, Hseng Kyaw, Sao Maha, and Ratana, to the charge of West Manglun. Ratana died shortly after. Hseng Kyaw attempted unsuccessfully to establish his independence and was driven from the State, the whole of West Manglun being united under Sao Maha. The relations of the two sections of the State, east and west of the Salween then remained satisfactory till the annexation of Upper Burma.

In 1888 Sao Maha was invited to meet the Political Officer at a Darbar at Mông Yai, but he took no notice of the invitation. He declined overtures which were again made to him in 1890, mixed himself up in various intrigues, evaded submission to the British Government, and finally adopted an attitude of open hostility to his brother, Tön Hsang, to whom he was nominally subordinate. When a British party marched through West Manglun in 1892, Sao Maha fled and Tön Hsang was put in direct charge, and recognized as Saubwa of the whole State of Manglun. A few months later Sao Maha attempted to recover his former charge, with a following collected in the Wa States. He ravaged West Manglun and gained some successes east of the Salween before he was eventually driven out. He retired to the Wa State of Ngek Lek, where he lived till

*Manglun State was excluded from the Census operations of 1901

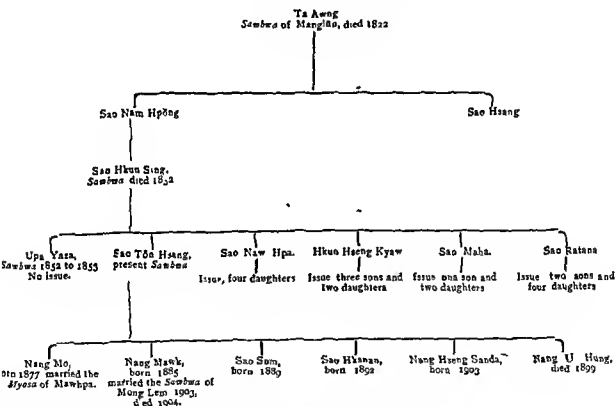

1903 Early in 1904 he was permitted to come to South Hsenwi, where he still lives as a private individual

Since the consolidation of the State under Sawbwa Ton Hsang there have been certain petty border disputes, but peace has generally been maintained. The country is a mass of hills, the people are poor, and administrative methods are of a primitive order. Manglun is nominally in the charge of the Assistant Superintendent at Tangyan in South Hsenwi, but there has been very little interference in its internal affairs. The Sawbwa has proved able to maintain his authority: he has obeyed orders loyally, and he has paid punctually the nominal tribute which has been demanded. Such development of the State and reforms in its government as may be possible must await an extension of our administration over the Wa States.

The Sawbwa has nominated his eldest son, Sao Som, as his successor, and the nomination has been approved by the Lieutenant-Governor of Burma.

BOUNDARIES

North and east	Chinese Shan States
South	Sonmu and South Hsenwi.
West	Hsipaw, Tawngpeng, and Mong Mit.

As a separate State, North Hsenwi dates only from the time of the British occupation of the country. It comprises the northern and eastern divisions of the old State of Hsenwi, once the largest and most important of the Burmese Shan States. About the year 1867, an official named Sang Hai rebelled against the Chief, and, though often defeated, succeeded in maintaining himself both against the latter and against a succession of Burmese officials who were sent up to restore order. When King Thebaw ascended the throne of Burma the Chief of Hsenwi, Hseng Naw Hpa, had been re-appointed for the third time, and was endeavouring to establish his authority. The State had then lost its southern division, which had been split up and created separate charges, but it still included in the areas now known as North and South Hsenwi. Up till this time, too, the Sawbwa, Hseng Naw Hpa, whether nominally in charge of the State or in disgrace in Mandalay, had been recognized as Chief by the Burmese Government. On his succession, however, King Thebaw imprisoned Hseng Naw Hpa's daughter, who had been a queen of King Mindôn's, and killed her son Naw Mong, Hseng Naw Hpa's son, was at the same time thrown into prison at Mandalay. These brutalities proved that Hseng Naw Hpa need look for no aid from the Burmese Court, and he retired to Mōng Si, a Kachin circle north east of Hsenwi town. Sang Hai's adherents thus obtained undisputed possession of the capital.

Sang Hai himself had already fled to the Wa country, where he died in 1876. But he had left as his lieutenant and guardian of his young son one Hkun Hsang Ton Hung who now headed the party opposed to the hereditary chief and to the Burmese. Hkun Hsang Ton Hung was no ordinary man. Of mean birth, the son of a petty village official in West Mang Lun, he rose rapidly in Sang Hai's service and ultimately married his daughter. Thenceforth he was the de facto ruler of the part of the State which had been reduced by the Sang Hai faction. But the fall of Mandalay was followed by the release of King Thebaw's prisoners, and Naw Mong at once came up to the Shan Country to support the cause of his father, the aged Sawbwa Hseng Naw Hpa. In the fighting which ensued Hkun Hsang Ton Hung was victorious, and Naw Mong was unable to do more than maintain a precarious position in the south of the State, where Hkun Hsang Ton Hung's influence had not extended. The contending parties both submitted to the British Government when a column marched up to the Shan States. A conference was held at Mong Lai (March 1888) which resulted in the division of Hsenwi into the Northern and Southern States. Hkun Hsang Ton Hung received the Northern and Naw Mong the Southern States.

During the long period of disorder from which Hsenwi had suffered, the Kachins had pressed down steadily from the north. Their assistance had been called in, from time to time, by both sides, and they had settled in many tracts from which the more timid Shans had fled. Hkun Hsang Ton Hung himself had made free use of Kachin auxiliaries and indeed owed his success in no small measure to these hillmen. But though a Kachin is a useful fighting man, he is not the sort of subject which a Shan Chief desires, or is competent to control, in time of peace. Spasmodic attempts at repression on the part of the Sawbwa led to open defiance on the part of the Kachins. It became evident that Government interference was necessary, and in 1893, a British officer was posted to the State in general charge of the Kachin tribes. His duty is to assess and collect the revenue, deal with civil and criminal matters, and to administer generally the areas which fall within his jurisdiction. The revenue (after deduction of collection expenses) is paid over to the Chief and goes to the State Treasury.

As regards the Kachins, the powers of the Sawbwa are exercised by a Government officer, but otherwise his position and functions are the same as those of any other Shan Chief. The State has increased greatly in population and resources since the British occupation, though it is still far short of its ancient prosperity. Since 1897-98, the revenue has risen from less than Rs. 25,000 to Rs. 1,32,000 and a good deal of money has been spent in opening up the State by roads. Administrative methods are still very primitive and reforms are adopted but slowly. This is due in some measure to the rugged nature of the country and the mixture of races which make up the population. The chief of the Kachins is the daughter of the Chief. It may be noted that Hkun Hsang Ton Hung's daughter in 1888, and that Sang Hai's daughter in 1893, were both recognized by the British Government. He recognized his children by this lady, however, and the name of her son Hkun Ai, was submitted in 1904 for recognition by Government as the successor to the Sawbwa ship. The title of Ajet thaye sawng shwe Salwe ja Min was conferred upon him in 1897.

The State of South Hsenwi was formerly known to the Burmese as Theinni Alé Let and to the Shans as Hsenwi Kwan Kang, that is the "Central Division" of the old State of Hsenwi. Its existence as a separate State dates from March 1888. Its history previous to that date forms part of the history of the old united State of Hsenwi.

Sao Naw Mong, the present Sawbwa (born 1855), is a son of Hseng Naw Hpa, the last of the hereditary Chiefs of the old Hsenwi State. Hseng Naw Hpa succeeded to the Sawbwa ship in 1846, when the State was in a very disturbed condition. He proved unable to restore order and he was recalled to Aya in 1849. A succession of Burmese officials followed, and from time to time Hseng Naw Hpa was re-appointed, but all attempts to suppress disorders and to establish a stable government failed. About 1868 an official named Sang Hai rebelled. He was joined by one Hkun Hsang Ton Hung (the present Sawbwa of North Hsenwi), who married his daughter and succeeded him as leader of the faction opposed to the hereditary Chief and to the Burmese. Hkun Hsang Ton Hung's party obtained possession of most of the northern part of the State, and successfully resisted the efforts which were made to oust him. Hseng Naw Hpa, however, was personally on good terms with the Burmese Court. One of his daughters was a queen of King Mindôn's and another had married the Hmetskaya Mintha (Mindôn's son). His son, Naw Mong (the present Sawbwa), was educated at Mandalay, and passed his novitiate in one of the royal monasteries under the special patronage of the King. These were all at Mandalay when King Mindôn died. They were arrested along with the members of the royal family who were regarded with suspicion by Thebaw, and who perished in the Palace massacres of February 1879. The young son of the Theinny queen (Hseng Naw Hpa's daughter) was torn from his mother's arms and cut to pieces and the mother herself thrown into prison. Naw Mong shared the same fate. These brutalities proved to Hseng Naw Hpa that he need no longer look to the Burmese Government for assistance. He retired to the Kachin circle of Morg Si, north east of Hsenwi town, and Hkun named Sang Aw, known as the Pa-oh-chok, had established a sort of supremacy in the Central division (the present State of South Hsenwi) and tried to maintain order. A Burmese official with a small force was at Lashio. He was utterly unable to enforce his authority, and though there was no fighting on a large scale between the contending actions the State was devastated by robber bands.

The fall of Mandalay in 1885 was followed by the final withdrawal of the Burmese. It likewise led to the liberation of Naw Mong who at once set out to recover his father's State. By the beginning of 1887 he had collected a following and occupied Lashio. Here however he was defeated by Hkun Hsang Ton Hung. The latter then crushed an attack by the Mong Si supporters of Hseng Naw Hpa and marching south occupied Mong Yai (August 1887) driving both Naw Mong and the Pa-oh-chok before him. After a time however, he returned to Hsenwi town and in the following year both leaders made their submission to the British Government. A conference was held at Mong Yai in March 1888 which resulted in the division of Hsenwi. Hkun Hsang Ton Hung received the Northern and Naw Mong the Southern State. The Pa-oh-chok died shortly afterwards, and the aged Sawba Hseng Naw Hpa, who had resigned his claims in favour of his son died in 1891.

Since 1888 the State has enjoyed peace and has increased in population. The revenue has risen from about Rs. 35,000 in 1897 to Rs. 88,000 in 1906 or 7, the increase being mainly due to a revision of the rates of assessment. The title of Kyet thaye saung shwe Salwa ya Min was conferred on the Sawba in 1896, and he was one of the Shan Chiefs who attended the Delhi Darbar in 1903. An Assistant Political Officer with headquarters at Tangyan has been in charge of the State since 1899.

The Sawba has nominated his eldest son, Sao Song, as his successor, and the nomination has been approved by the Lieutenant Governor of Burma.

The capital of Tawngpeng State Namhsan, lies about 40 miles due north of Hsipaw. The State is a mass of hills ranging from 3 000 feet to 6 000 feet in height. There are no cart roads, and all transport is carried on by pack animals. Tawngpeng is a Palaung State and the majority of the people belong to that race. The staple industry is the production of tea which is exported to Burma and the Shan States.

The Palaungs are divided into numerous clans, each of which formerly had local self government. Gradually, however, they were forced to unite for mutual protection. The first Chief to establish his authority over the whole State was Sawbwa Hkam Kung Mong. He is said to have been recognised by the Burmese Government in 1846. On his death in 1858 the Sawbwa ship was seized by one Hkun Hsa. The son of Hkam Kung Mong, Hkun Gyaw, thereupon formed an alliance with two other leaders, Hkun Aung Hla and Hkam Kwan, and for three years fighting took place between the rival factions. Hkun Hsa was killed in 1861. Hkun Gyaw died in the same year, and in 1865 Hkun Aung Hla also died. Hkam Kwan obtained the chief power in the State and restored order. He paid homage to the Burmese Court and was recognised as Sawbwa. He died in 1880 and was succeeded by his elder brother Hkam Mōng. This Chief declined to meet the British Political Officer when a column marched up to Namhsan in 1887. His son Hkam Tan Mong (or Hkun Kyan) was however, put forward by the people, and was subsequently recognised by Government as Sawbwa. Hkam Mong retired to a monastery, where he died in 1900. Hkun Kyan held the Chiefship till 1895 when he resigned on account of ill health. He died the following year. His cousin, Hkun Hsang Awn, was then recognised as administrator on behalf of Hkun Kyan, and on the latter's death was appointed Sawbwa. He is the present Chief. As a ruler he has not been a success. He has neglected affairs and has contracted heavy private debts. In September 1904 a Government officer was posted to the State to assist in reforming the administration and in dealing with the Sawbwa's creditors. Considerable progress has been made in both directions. Improved administration has led to a notable increase of revenue and the Sawbwa's debts have been extinguished. Hkun Pan Hseng, the Sawbwa's eldest son, has been nominated as his successor and the nomination has been approved by the Lieutenant Governor of Burma.

BAWLAKÈ

A Western Karenni State, lying to the south-west of Sawlô, the capital of the Kanta rawadi State. It is the principal Western State, of which there are four, the others being Kye bo gyi, Nawng Palai, and Nam mè kôn. The present Chief is Pahan, a Yang Talai by race and a spirit-worshipper by religion. Born about 1857, he succeeded to the Myosa-ship in 1872.

Pahan is distinctly loyal, is highly respected amongst the Karenni, and is in a way high priest amongst the spirit worshippers. He feels he has a grievance to still being a Myosa, when the Chief in Kaotarawadi (Eastern Karenni), a State of more recent origin, is a Sawbwa.

He has for years lived in seclusion, but has attended the Taunggyi Darbars and in 1906 he was presented to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at Rangoon and since then he has been spending money, which he had hitherto hoarded on public works, and he now moves about and seems to have changed his nature. He was always supposed by his brother Chiefs to know no Burmese but in Rangoon he astonished them by speaking to them in that language. He received the title of K S M on January 1st, 1908.

The independence of the Western Karenni States had been guaranteed by the British Government in the terms of a treaty made in 1875 with King Mindôn and they were there fore left to themselves on the British occupation of the Shan States in 1887. In 1892 the Chiefs were formally recognised as feudatories by the Government of India and presented with sanads at Bawlake, appointing them Myosas with powers in all criminal cases over their own subjects only except in sentences of capital punishment, which require the sanction of the Superintendent and Political Officer, Southern Shan States. In civil cases the Western Karenni Chiefs have unrestricted powers. Each State pays an annual kadaw or nussur in the case of Bawlake, Rs. 100.

There is no connected history of Karenni obtainable but it is generally admitted that Bawlake originally comprised the whole country, both Western and Eastern Karenni of the present day. The separation seems to have taken place in the time of the fifth Chief of Bawlake, one Po Byu Hla. In his reign a Talaing, called Mauog Poo said to be of royal blood, came up to Bawlake and settled there. He seems rapidly to have acquired great influence. So Po Byu Hla came to the conclusion that it was not good for two rulers to remain in the same village, and therefore made Maung Pon go and take charge of the country east of the Pawn stream. Thus the Talaing did and assumed the title of Pawpawgyi and the country he then took charge of is Eastern Karenni which has been a separate State ever since. About 1845 the country comprising the Western Karenni States of Kye bo gyi and Nawng Palai became detached from Bawlake, after opposition offered by Bawlake to Burmese troops. The first Chiefs who had been Amats (ministers) of Bawlake sent their submission to the Burmese Court and were granted titles. In 1875 in a fight with Eastern Karenni, Bawlake was defeated and lost further considerable territory.

Detached from the main State is the Padaung province lying north of Kye bo gyi and west of the Nawng Palai State inhabited by the Padaungs. The women are remarkable for the curious brass collars which they wear.

The revenue of Bawlake is but imperfectly known. It is estimated at Rs. 6000 annually exclusive of forest revenue. Not being in British India the forests are in the entire possession of the Chief and little teak of any girth is now left. Tin of very good quality occurs in the State but it is only worked spasmodically owing to the absence of streams where it is mined. Stick lac is largely exported from the State, and edible cutch to a small extent.

HOPONG (HOPON)

Hopong with its dependency Halong, was originally included in the Nawng Wawn State. It was separated and became a distinct State in 1783 A.D. The capital of the State was first at Tang Hkan from which it was moved to the present capital in 1807 A.D.

The succession of Hopōng Chiefs has been—

Hkun Kya, who held the title of Ngacgunhmū (1809 A D)

Hkun Sin (1818 A D)

Hkun Nan (1833 A D)

Hkun Lin (1845 A D)

Hkun Hti (1851 A D)

Myōōk Maung Nyo (1858 A D)

Hkun Hsuriya, Myosa of Mōng Pn and Mong Hsat (1875 A D)

Hkun Wara (1885 A D)

Hkun Sè (1893 A D)

Hkun Law (1900 A D)

Hkun Wara was the first titular Myosa. In the disturbances at the time of the Limbin Confederacy, Hopōng suffered very severely, the town was burnt on four separate occasions, and at the beginning of 1887 there was not a single house standing in the dependency of Hailong.

The succession was very much more disturbed than would appear from the above. Hkun Nan on his death was succeeded by his brother Hkun La and his successors were mostly non resident. Myōōk Maung Nyo really only held charge for six years. Hsuriya had also been Myōōk of Keng Tawng, and was a man who gave satisfaction nowhere and yet had Court influence enough to always get new appointments. He held Hopōng from 1874 to 1885 and was then expelled by the people who accused him of drinking and other bad habits. At the same time his son whom he had put in charge of Hailong was expelled for similar reasons. Hsuriya was succeeded by Hkun Hseng a son of Hkun Nan, but he was almost immediately ejected. He killed two men and was said to be mad. He was succeeded by Hkun O, a son of Hkun La. Hkun O remained in power only six months and then fled to Yawngbwe, before the attacks of the Limbin Confederacy. The Limbin Prince then nominated Hkun Wara and gave him the title of Myōōk. He had been a circle official under Hkun Nan. Hsuriya had given him the title of Amat, and he retained that title under the short administrations of Hkun Hseng and Hkun O. He early made his submission to the British Government and was confirmed in charge of the State, which he managed very well and rapidly restored to comparative prosperity. Hkun Law, the present Myosa, was born in 1895. On his succession Hkun Htawn was appointed as administrator during the minority. He died on the 1st November 1902. He had married the young Myosa's mother, who was appointed administratrix in September 1903. Until her appointment the State was technically administered by the Assistant Superintendent. The administratrix is helped and indeed guided by her brother who is the Amatgyi of the State. The minor Myosa is still too small to put into the Taunggyi school.

Hailong borders on Yawngbwe and was taken by force by the Chief of that State in 1886, but was given back again in 1888 under the orders of the Superintendent of the Shan States, to the Myosa of Hopōng. Since that date it has become gradually re settled.

HSAHTUNG (THATŌN)

Hsahtung was originally colonized by a migration of Taungthus from the kingdom of ThatŌn in Lower Burma. This took place about the year 1781 A D. Who were the aboriginal inhabitants of the State, if any, does not appear, but at the present time there is a great preponderance of Taungthus in the population and Hsahtung still remains the real headquarters of the Taungthu race in the Shan States.

The State includes the two dependencies of Tam Hpak and Lak Mong, the population of which is entirely Shan and which were acquired by Hkun O, about 1877 A D by his promising to pay an amount of tribute for them which the legitimate rulers said they could not raise.

The first Chief of Hsahtung was Hkun San U, the nephew of the then King of the Burmese ThatŌn, named Duttapaung and it was he apparently who led the original Taungthu emigrants and established a village at Hkan Saing in the Hsahtung State about 1781 A D. In the time of Hkun San U, the territory ruled over by him received the name of Hsahlung or Thatōn by Royal Order of Bo-daw paya. On his death he was succeeded by his younger brother Maung Myat Aung, who moved his capital from Hkan Saing to Limpun. He was succeeded by his son, Maung Naing, who also moved his capital, this time from Limpun to Kanweng, and in his time tribute was paid by the State to the King of Burma.

Maung Naing was succeeded by his brother Maung Pyu.

The subsequent successors of the Chief of Hsahlung have been—

Maung San Tha in 1837 A D, who was formally recognized as Myosa by the Shwebo King.

Hpa-w Di, who ruled in the time of the Fagan King Hkun Sein in 1852 A D and was contemporaneous with Mindōn Min.

Hkun Wara—1856 A D

Hkun O, his son, who founded the present capital of Loiput about 1873 A D

Hkun Law, who succeeded his father in 1896 and was murdered in 1905

Hkun Law was selected to succeed his father in preference to his uncle Hkun Mung. The right to succeed was argued with bitterness and Hkun Mung, aided by a relative of his (Eint), succeeded in getting all the power into his own hands and the Myosa was a nonentity. In 1905, steps were taken to place the power in the Myosa's hands and the Myosa responded. This caused Hkun Mung to arrange to have him removed, so that he and Eint might again control the State. The Myosa was shot dead in his hawōn September 5th. The culprits were duly brought to trial and four, including Hkun Mung, were hanged at Loiput whilst four others were sentenced to transportation for life. Eint is required to reside in Taunggyi by an order issued under the Frontier Crossing Regulation. He has now been allowed to trade within certain specified limits.

Hkun Hseng, a younger brother of Hkun Law, has been granted the sana.

HSAMONGHKĀM (THAMAKAN)

About 1777 A D, one hundred families left Lower Burma, owing to warfare and famine, and marched northwards. They climbed the hills and settled in the country now known as the Hsamonghkām State. Tun Chi came with them as their Chief, and arranged the settlement. Later on Narapathi Sithā, King of Pagan, is said to have visited the State. In 1807, Maung Shwe Pon is stated to have been recognised as Chief, and was succeeded in 1825 by Paung Shwe E who was deposed by the Burmese in 1834 and Maung Mè put in his place. Shwe E and Shwe Ton, however, combined and drove Shwe Mè out and Shwe E again became Chief. He was again removed by the Burmese in 1847 and Maung Mè was reinstated. He died in the following year and was succeeded by his son, Maung Shwe Min, as Ngwegunhmū. At this time the Po Thu daw U Mye Su had a great reputation for piety and learning and King Mindōn who always had an eye for such persons, ordered Shwe Min to send him down to Mandalay. U Mye Su very soon became a great favourite at Court and much power fell into his hands and was exercised in a way which, whilst it was inspired by piety or not created much disturbance in the Myelat. The Chiefs of Pangtara, Pwela, Mymmat, and other States were at once deposed and replaced by relatives and supporters of U Mye Su. Eventually, in 1867, Maung Shwe Min himself was dismissed and, with his son, the present Chief, came to the throne.

a certain Maung Lin, a hange

1876, when Maung Shwe Min was recalled and reinstated as Ngwegunhmū. In the disturbances caused by the annexation of Upper Burma Shwe Min wrested the eight circles which had been made over to Hsikap by Royal Order and resumed control over them. At the same time he seized the Taungla Ngwegunhmū ship, and the Ngwegunhmū of Magwe and Loi An voluntarily submitted to him. In the end of the year 1886, Maung Shwe Min died and was succeeded by his son, Maung Po, as Ngwegunhmū. Maung Po was born on 30th October 1854. He was confirmed by the British Government in 1887, received the

A T M Insignia of Honour in 1895, and was promoted to the rank of Myosa with first class magisterial powers in 1899. He attended the Delhi Darbar in 1903, as representative of the Myelat Chiefs. He is shrewd and well meaning and works well. His chief wife is the sister of the Pangmī Chief, by whom he has two daughters living. He has six other wives (daughters of respectable traders), one of whom, Me Myin, is the mother of the heir-apparent, Htun Than, aged nine years. The Chief's sister, Me Pu is married to Hkun Yon, the cousin of the Chiefs of Mawnang and Pwela, and his half sister, Ma Tin, is married to the Pangmī Chief. The Myosa's elder daughter was married in April 1907 to Hkun Ti, the Myosa of the Mawnang State.

KANTARAWADI OR EASTERN KARENNI

Kantarawadi is the most important State in Karenni: it bestrides the Salween between the 19th and 20th parallels of north latitude and has a considerable area further south on the west bank of that river. Kantarawadi is an offshoot from Bawlake, the latter State at one time comprising the whole of the Karenni country. In the reign of the fifth Chief of Bawlake, with whom history is acquainted, a Talang of the Royal house named Maung Pon came to Bawlake and rapidly acquired influence there. To this man the Bawlake Chief gave the country lying to the east of the Nam Pawn, Maung Pon, on assuming charge of his territory, took the name of Papawgyi. He was succeeded by his son Papawgale, who died about 1845. The next Chief, Sao hpya-tin, died in 1866 and was succeeded by Sawlapaw, the cousin of the late Chief, Sawlawi.

Towards the end of 1887, when the Southern Shan column was making a tour of the Shan States, the Political Officer made an attempt to open friendly relations with Sawlapaw. Letters were sent inviting him to meet the Political Officer at some point on the Karenni border, along which the column marched. Sawlapaw not only took no notice of these letters, but as soon as the column had marched north to Hsenwi, collected his forces and invaded the Shan State of Mawkmāi, which had just tendered its submission to the British Government. The attack took place in the spring of 1888 and the Mawkmāi Sawbwa was driven out of his capital, which, with most of the villages in the State, was absolutely destroyed. The Assistant Superintendent of the Shan States (now Sir George Scott), with fifty men of the Rifle Brigade and a party of Beluchi sepoys, drove out the Red Karens and reinstated the Sawbwa in Mawkmāi on the 16th May 1888. On the 3rd of July of the same year Sawlapaw's forces returned and attacked Mawkmāi, but were repulsed with some loss, and were finally driven across the border into Karenni. Sawlapaw, however, was as defiant as ever, and wrote to the Superintendent of the Shan States ordering the British troops to be withdrawn from Mawkmāi. He also issued proclamations offering rewards for the heads of several officers and sepoys. Nevertheless, he was given further opportunities of coming to terms and several letters were exchanged between him and the Superintendent without any result being arrived at. In December 1888 therefore, a British force, under command of General Collet, marched against him. Little opposition was encountered after the first engagement, fought a few miles north of Loikaw, in which the Karenni lost very severely, and at the final occupation of the Haw at Sawlōn not a shot was fired. Sawlapaw fled to the jungles and refused to come in, and at a meeting of the leading men in the State Sawlawi, the titular Kemmong (heir apparent), was elected Chief and subsequently confirmed in his appointment as Myosa by the British Government. The State was fined three lakhs of rupees and five hundred muskets and undertook to pay a yearly tribute of five thousand rupees to the British Government. The Myosa was granted his State under a sanad similar to that given to the Chiefs of the Shan States.

Siamese troops had meanwhile, on the plea of assisting the British Government, occupied Trans Salween Karenni. They failed to retire on the settlement of affairs at Sawlōn, and subsequently claimed the territory as Siamese soil. A boundary demarcation commission was appointed to examine the facts and finding that the territory belonged to Karenni, the Siamese posts were ultimately withdrawn, but not before the patience of Sawlawi and his tribesmen had been sorely tried.

Sawlawi, the late Chief, died on 8th July 1907. He was a man of marked ability and conspicuous loyalty, and his loss is much regretted by all his subjects. He had administered the State for nineteen years with ability. He was succeeded by Hkun Nan, his stepson, who was appointed by Government in December 1907. Hkun Nan is a pure Yangtalai, and is married to Sao Hkin Yio, the only surviving daughter of Sawlapaw.

The teak forests are the source of wealth in the State, they lie on both sides of the Salween but are being greatly impoverished by the wanton felling of undersized trees. In 1905 the output destined for Moulmein was about 31,000 logs, from the forests alone the Sawba's revenue is about one and a half lakhs of rupees yearly. The State exports stick lac largely. Lead is found near Loikaw and copper is said to have been found at Ngwédaung. About half of the magnificent plain in which Loikaw is situated belongs to Kantarawadi, otherwise the State is a mass of rugged hills, mostly timber clad. Apart from the forests the revenue of the State is insignificant. The annual tribute paid to Government is Rs 5000.

KEHSI MĀNSĀM (KYITHI BĀNSĀN)

The present State was part of the South Riding of Hsenwi from which State it was severed in 1837. It was created a Myosa ship in 1860 in favour of one Hkun Yawt, formerly a Hlamón in charge, under the Hsenwi Sawbwa.

A Burmese Myoök was appointed to look after the States of Kehsi Mānsām Mōng Nawng, Keng Lun, Mong Hsu, and Mong Sang which constituted the former Hsenwi (Taung Let), South Riding. The Myoök had his headquarters at Kehsi Mānsām, and his functions were similar to the "Bo Himu" of Mōng Nai, and he collected the tribute payable to the Burmese Government. No event of importance is recorded till the death of Hkun Yawt in 1881, who was succeeded by his son Hkun Hseng, the present Myosa, who obtained his appointment from King Thebaw.

This and the following year witnessed the rebellion of the Mong Nai Sawbwa against the Burmese Government, and Kehsi Mānsām took a prominent part in helping the Burmese to suppress it, and shared in the attack on, and the subsequent devastation of, Mong Nawng. For these services his tribute for one year was reduced to Rs 1,000. The State enjoyed peace till 1885 when Mong Nai and Mong Nawng returned with the Limbin Prince from Kengtung. Kehsi Mānsām refused to join the Limbin League and together with Lai Hka and Mong Kung sent messengers to Mandalay tendering submission to the British Government. As soon as the Mong Nawng and Mong Nai Sawbwas had restored themselves, they attacked Kehsi Mānsām and the two other States. A great part of South Kehsi Mānsām was burnt but the north and west suffered less severely. Kehsi Mānsām with Lai Hka and Mong Kung engaged in a retaliating raid against Mong Pawa when the British troops came up, stopped hostilities, and secured the surrender of the Limbin Prince. Since then the State has been free from all disturbances, many fugitives have returned and the general condition of the people is prosperous and satisfactory.

There were in 1905 11 circles and 359 villages. The Myosa is related to the Thebaw Sawbwa who married his daughter. In 1907, the exchange of the Kaw Hsang circle of Kehsi Mānsām for three circles of Mong Nawng lying inside Kehsi territory was sanctioned by Government.

KENG HKAM (KYAINGKAN)

The present State of Keng Hkam is said to have been taken from Mong Nai and created a separate State in 1811 A.D. Bodaw Sao Hkam Yi was appointed first Myosa by Royal Order and ruled the State till 1854 A.D. He was succeeded by his son Sao Hkun Mwe, who ruled till 1864. Naw Hkam Leng, the younger brother of Sao Hkun Mwe ruled till his death in 1870. In this year the troubles in Keng Hkam began. Sao Hkun Mwe left two sons Sao Hkun Long and Sao Naw Sang. They were passed over in favour of their uncle on account of their youth. Again on Naw Hkam Leng's death their claims were set aside by the Court at Mandalay, and various Myoöks were put in charge by the Mong Nai Sawbwa without success.

In 1874 Sao Hkun Long, the elder son of Sao Hkun Mwe, was appointed and ruled the State until 1878. Then the Mong Nai Sawbwa reverted to the old system of Myoðks and appointed a man named Maung Pe. He had no better fortune than his predecessors.

In 1879 Hkun Leng of Mung Pan was appointed through the influence of "Bo Hmu" of Mong Nai. The people resisted him under one Saya Nandiya and others. For two years and six months villages were burnt, and cattle carried off, and all respectable people lost heart and fled to other States.

At last in February 1882 the late Chief Hkun On, the son of Akkun Mwe, was appointed Myosa by the Royal Order of King Thehaw. There was not a single house in the capital and hut a few in the State. The people, however, soon began to return as the appointment of a Myosa from the old ruling family seemed to promise more prosperous times.

Unhappily for Kēng Hkam however, a few months later, the Mōng Nai Sawbwa rebelled against the Burmese Government, when the Royal troops came the Sawbwa fled through Keng Hkam where fighting took place. The State remained in comparative quiet till 1885 when Keng Hkam again became a battle-field, on which the Mong Nai Sawbwa and Lwet Nga Lu fought.

In the following year (1886) the British troops came to the Shan States and the Myosa made his submission and remained in charge until 1903, when he died suddenly on his way back to his State from the Lieutenant Governor's Darbar at Taunggyi. His son, Hkun Hawng Hkam, who was born in 1893 and who is a scholar in the Taunggyi School, has been given the sanad and during his minority his mother Sao Nang Tep Htila (a sister of the Kengtūng Sawbwa) administers the State. This lady separated from her husband several years ago.

KENG LUN (KYAINGLUN)

Kēng Lun was formerly part of the old "Tawng Let" or South Riding of Hsenwi. It was created a separate State in 1857, when the Tawng Let was broken up.

The first Myosa was one Hkun Pwin who was appointed by Royal Order. The State was involved in a quarrel with Kehsi Mānsam Mong Hsu, and Mong Sang shortly after its creation but peace seems to have been restored before much damage was done, and it was maintained till the death of Maung Pwio in 1873.

The next Myosa, Naw Hkam U, got his patent through the interest of Kehsi Mānsam and was no relation of Hkun Pwin. Naw Hkam U only ruled the State one year, and was succeeded by his younger brother, Hkun Tawng. This man held the Myosa ship till 1885 and during his time the State was peaceful and prosperous.

When the Chiefs of Mong Nai and Mong Nawng returned from Kengtūng with the Limbin Prince in 1885 and the Limbin Confederacy was formed, Hkun Tawng joined it. The majority of the people of the State, it is said, were against the policy, and Kehsi Mānsam who had, from the creation of Keng Lūn State, more or less actually governed the State, declared against the league.

Hkun Tawng's younger brother, the present Myosa Hkun Mōng, headed the party against the Chief and with the assistance of Kehsi Mānsam drove him out and established himself as Myosa. Keng Lun therefore, as well as Kehsi Mānsam, was attacked by Mōng Nawng and Mong Nai under the authority of the Limbin Prince. A large portion of the State was burnt out by the allies and the people fled to South Hsenwi and Mang Lūn. Peace was restored on the arrival of the British troops in the Shan States. In 1888 Hkun Mong was confirmed in his office as Myosa by the Chief Commissioner. The deposed brother, Hkun Tawng first fled to Keogtūng, but afterwards removed to Maw Hpa and is now in Mong Hsu State. In 1896 disturbances occurred in Kēng Lūn which resulted in the migration of half the households from the State. At present it contains eight circles and seventy-eight villages.

The Myosa, Hkun Mong, has his State in good order. He has done good work in opening out his State to traffic by the construction of roads but recently has become almost totally deaf. His eldest son is weak witted.

KĒNGTŪNG (KYAINGTŌN)

Up to the year 592 B E or 1229 A D the history of KĒngtūng is legendary and traditional.

These legends tell of how what is now Kengtūng city and valley was formerly a vast lake how it was reclaimed by people from the north or from China, but that the subsequent efforts of these Chinamen or Northerners to colonise the State failed, how that then the 'Was' sprung from the earth held the State but were driven to the hills and fastnesses by Mong Rai, son of supernatural parents.

The legendary founder of Kengtūng State as well as of Mong Lem and Keng Hung is Mōng Rai. He and his sons are held to have founded the State and colonised it with sixty nine families of the Hkun.

Mong Khun the home of these Hkuns, who still give its character to the State of Kengtung cannot be identified but it seems probable that the Hkuns formed the eastern wave of the great Shan migration southwards and that Kengtung was founded from the south not from the north. From the year 1229 A D the history of the State is recited, in bold outline in the Kengtung State annals, in which the reigns of some forty rulers or Sawbwas are commemorated.

Notable events recorded in these annals are

Kengtūng's co operation in the Burmese subjugation of Chiengmai in the sixteenth century, perhaps in revenge for a previous invasion of Kengtūng by Chiengmai.

Kengtūng's co operation in a Burmese invasion of Keng Hung early in the seven teenth century, and the subsequent repulse by the united Kengtūng Burmese forces of an invasion of KĒngtūng by the Chinese.

In the three Siamese invasions of Kengtūng of 1802, 1852 and 1854 of which the invasion of 1802 was the most successful the city was taken and sacked and many Kengtung families carried away and made to settle at Chiengmai. Sao Maha Hkanan was the only member of the ruling family to escape.

This Sao Maha Hkanan maintained himself gallantly, amid many vicissitudes in the north of the State and having obtained recognition from Ava he regained his State and reigned from 1813 to 1857 A D.

Sao Maha Hkanan is the most striking figure of all the modern Sawbwas in the course of his long reign he routed signally the almost overwhelming Siamese invasions of 1852 and 1854. He enlarged and restored the old walled city, leaving it in the shape in which it is to day he was also a great organiser and legislator, and established the constitutional procedure of the State which still obtains in most of its essentials.

The early history of the Burmese connection with Kengtung is a little shadowy early in the sixteenth century we hear of the Sawbwa Hpayā Kiao exchanging presents with the King of Ava while KĒngtūng levies assisted in the victorious Burmese invasion of Siam which ended with the fall of Ayuthia the ancient capital in 1564.

Possibly Kengtung sought Burmese assistance to render her secure against the Siamese Empire in the south and the Chinese Empire in the north, in any case from the seventeenth century the Sawbwas of Kengtung seem to have sought confirmation and recognition from the Court of Ava.

The Burmese do not seem to have ever maintained a large force at Kengtung and the Burmese representative was called the bo gyōk this official was appointed from Ava direct but he was under the general orders of the Sitkē-daw gyi or Burmese Viceroy of the Shan States stationed at Mong Nai.

The Burmese reserved to themselves the right of imposing tolls on merchandise passing through the State, and these tolls seem to have formed the principal perquisite of the bo-gyōk.

No tribute was imposed and though homage presents of gold and silver flowers had to be regularly despatched once a year to Ava, return presents, frequently of greater value, were always sent back. Intercourse between the do gyök and the Sawbwa seems to have been on terms of equality, and was regulated by rules of ceremonious politeness.

Generally speaking, the Burmese suzerainty was mild in character and in great contrast to the harsh domineering spirit invariably displayed in their dealings with the Western Shans. The Burmese suzerainty at Kengtung came to an end in 1882 amid the general anarchy of King Thebaw's reign.

In this year the Möngnai Sawbwa rebelled against the Burmese, with his brother-in-law the Chief of Mong Nawng, and fled to Kengtung, where he received shelter and assistance.

The do gyök's authority came to an end and his means of subsistence was cut off; the breach was, however, effected with little bitterness and the do gyök continued to reside at Kengtung.

In the years 1885 and 1886 the Limbin Confederacy was formed at Kengtung, the aim of which was to supersede Thebaw and place the Limbin Prince on the throne. Meanwhile, however, the British annexation of Upper Burma had been successfully accomplished and during the years 1887, 1888, 1889 Kengtung lapsed into some obscurity, the British Government was fully occupied with Upper Burma and with composing the intertribe feuds and quarrels of the cis-Salween Shans, so that only a "broken and resultless correspondence" was maintained with Kengtung. In the year 1890, however, Mr J. G. Scott and a small escort visited Kengtung; the then Sawbwa, Sao Hkam Pu, had played a part with his father in sheltering and succouring less fortunate rulers, and in forming the Limbin Confederacy, while for nearly ten years the State had been untrammelled by even the shadowy Burmese suzerainty.

However, after some delicate negotiations, the Sawbwa agreed to accept the condition of a State in subordinate alliance with the British Government, preserving his independence in purely domestic concerns; but agreeing to submit the conduct of his foreign relations to the Superintendent of the Shan States.

In 1893 the Superintendent visited Kengtung and held a very important darbar, and in 1894 an Assistant Political Officer was stationed permanently at Kengtung together with a small garrison.

By Political Department Notification No. 10 of 1895 the State of Kengtung was declared part of the Shan States, which are therein defined and placed under the Shan States Act of 1888.

According to this Act the civil, criminal, and revenue administration is vested in the

1897 to over
R1,00,000 in 1904, without any substantial additions to the burden of the taxpayer.

In 1901, the first census of the State was accomplished, with most creditable success, considering the timid and suspicious nature of many elements of its heterogeneous population.

In 1897 steps were taken by the Sawbwa to abolish the ancient institution of domestic slavery and the abolition was completely effected by the year 1901.

No mineral deposits have been found in the State as yet, but teak has been worked out successfully under Government supervision at Mōng Hsat and Mōng Pu in the west and at Mōng Pong Noi in the south-east of the State, though it seems doubtful whether a steady and permanent demand exists for the Mōng Hông teak. The State is fairly free from crime—it has been free from any organised crime, especially since its boundaries have been defined.

The people generally are very amenable to authority and are orderly and law-abiding. Notwithstanding a large admixture of Western Shans and Lūs and Lems, the character of the State remains essentially Hkūn or Eastern Shan and not Western Shan.

The Hkūn written character is used by the Court and is taught in all the monasteries, and the brothers and cousins of the Hkūn must be sought not west of the Salween, but east in the territory extending from middle Siam to well inside the Chinese Empire and populated by that race called Lao generally, whether or not known locally as Hkūn or Yōn or Lū or Lem. The plains or villages of the State are inhabited by the Hkūn with the racial admixtures above described. The census of 1901 disclosed the fact that the Hkūn numbered 42,160, the Lū 19,380, and the Tai 57,058 in the Kengtung State.

By far the greatest portion of the area of the State, however, consists of mountain ranges, some with peaks of 8,000 feet, which are peopled by a congeries of curious tribes said to be of eighteen different kinds, many of whom speak different tongues and must use Shan as a lingua franca in ordinary commerce with each other.

A comprehensive study of these tribes still remains to be made by the polyglot enthusiast of ethnology, with the necessary time at his disposal.

Kengtung is a good entrepôt for the distribution of merchandise of all kinds: the trade with Burma and Siam and Yunnan flourishes and prospers year by year and of late years several wealthy Rangoon firms of cloth and silk merchants have opened branches at Kengtung, so that articles which a short time ago were regarded as curiosities or luxuries of the rich are now in every-day use and wear.

The most important genuine exports of the State are raw cotton, which is grown wherever possible in the hills up to an altitude of about 4,000 feet, and which commands a price varying from Rs. 8 to Rs. 6 'per ten viss' among Yunnanese traders and opium grown in the highest inhabited altitudes, which commands about Rs. 17 per viss. The State is fairly well supplied with pack ponies and pack bullocks.

The buffalo is the plough animal everywhere and the bullock is only used for pack purposes.

Communications in the State are still in a backward condition but serious efforts are being made to improve the main routes to China and Siam. There is no water-borne traffic in the State.

The Sawbwa received the decoration of K. S. M. in 1901 in recognition of his efforts to abolish slavery and at the Delhi Darbar of 1903 he was awarded a salute of 9 guns and the Delhi gold medal. He was invited to Rangoon to be presented to Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales in January 1905.

In 1906 the Sawbwa abolished all the toll stations in his State and he opened the first lay school.

KYAWKKU (KYAUKKU)

Nga San Bon is the first recorded Ngwegunhmu of Kyawkku. Before his time it is not known how, or by whom, the State was administered. It is not known when, or for how long, Nga San Bon ruled the State. He was succeeded by his son Nga San Nya, who in turn was succeeded by his son Nga San Ma and he again by his son Nga Kaw Tha in the year 1145 BE (1783 AD). From this time dates are consecutive, but events do not seem to have been worth chronicling. Nga Kaw Tha was succeeded by his son Nga The Ri in 1820 AD, who was succeeded by his son Nga Chit Win in the following year. He seems to have been a person of some intelligence and of good report or in addition to being Chief of Kyawkku he was appointed to administer criminal justice in Pangtara, Mawson, Pwela, Kyauktat, Kyong and Namkbon, and was supplied with a personal guard of forty men from the Royal troops in Mong Nai. He died in 1843, the year in which the Karenni raided the Myelat and his son, Shwe Maung, who succeeded him, took an active part in the expulsion of the Red Karens. In 1852 he was removed from his appointment for being a supporter of the Pagan Min in an attempt to dethrone King Mindōn and the State was placed in charge of Shwe Yet, who was given the title of Ywa ôk. Four years later he fled to Toungoo in British territory, and Nga Shwe Min was reinstated. In 1864 he was appointed Myôôk of the State of Wānyin and Yan Kon was placed in charge of Kyawkku until his fall in 1866 when Chit Win's brother, Nga San, became Ngwegunhmu. He was abruptly deposed after eight years' rule and was followed by a succession of four Ywa-ôks. The last Nga Pyan, who was also Ngwegunhmu of Namkbon, held charge up to 1881, when he was succeeded by Nga San's son, the present Ngwegunhmu, Maung Thaung. He was born on the 16th June 1848 and was confirmed by the British Government in 1887. He has improved as an administrator. His eldest son, Maung Po Han, has been recognised as his heir.

Namkbon, formerly a separate State, now forms part of the Kyawkku State

KYE BO GYI

A State in Western Karenni which marches with the Toungoo district of Lower Burma. It was formerly part of the State of Bawlaô, from which it broke away about 1845, when Bawlaô was fighting with the Burmese troops. The Amat who was in charge of the district, now known as Kye bo-gyi, ignoring his Chief, sent his submission to the Burmese Court and received in return the State and the title of Mjasa

The late Chief Hkun U died on the 12th June 1908 and was succeeded by his cousin Hkun Saw

The Chief holds a sanad conferring on him the same powers as are held by Bawlake The portion of the State on the Toungoo border is inhabited mostly by Brès, a tribe very low in the social scale and until late years addicted to raiding their neighbours both in Toungoo and in Karenni of late the Brès have given very little trouble

In the drainage of the Tu stream in the Brè tract, there existed at one time forests of great value, but they are being rapidly exterminated Apart from income from these forests the revenue of Kye bo-gyi is estimated at Rs.1,000 annually, the Wiwas and White Karens in the State only paying annas 8, and Brès Rs.1, per house Stick lac is collected in considerable quantities and exported from Kye bo-gyi The State pays an annual kadaw or nuzzur of Rs.100

KYÔNG (KYÓN)

The State has no extant history and probably very seldom existed as anything but a dependency of one of its neighbours

The State consists entirely of grassy downs and is very dry

The present Chief Maung Po, holding the rank of Ngwegunhmu, was in charge of the State at the British occupation and was confirmed in his appointment in 1887 He has not displayed any administrative ability His eldest son, Maung Kaing, has been recognised as his heir

LAI HKA (LĒGYA)

Hkun Lek is the earliest Sawbwa of Lai Hka of whom much can be learnt his rule began in 1794 A D, and he appears to have been highly thought of at the Burmese Court when the Shwebo Min was king He had great power in the Shan States and his reign was a long one In 1844 A D, he was appointed General in Chief of a large force made up of contingents from many Shan States, which marched against Karenni Whether his strategy was weak or his troops unwarlike, is not stated, but he was twice worsted by the Red Karens and only succeeded in subduing them when he received a reinforcement of 1,000 Katho horse After a year's campaign he returned to his State and died in 1854

He was succeeded by his eldest son, who is always spoken of as Kemmong A, who also had a considerable reputation as a military leader He took part in raising the siege of Kengtung beleaguered by the Siamese force, and as a reward for his services he received the States of Lawk Sawk Moog Ping, and Mong Kung from King Mindôn He died in 1863, leaving issue only one daughter, Nan Ling According to Shan custom, he was succeeded by his next brother, Hkun Long until then Myosa of Mong Kung, who died four years later, and gave place to the next brother, then Myosa of Mong Ping Thus Sawbwa was killed in 1870 in a gambling quarrel by the Heng of Nawng Hkam

As Kemmong A had left no son Hkun Nawng a son of Hkun Long became Sawbwa, but he died in 1879 and was succeeded by Hkun Lai, the present Sawbwa, who is son of Nang Leng the daughter of Kemmong A He married Sao Lao, the widow of his predecessor Hkun Nawng a daughter of the famous Nai Noi (Ko Lan) Sawbwa of Mawkma

In 1886 the Lumbin Confederacy attacked Lai Hka and ravaged it from end to end The Sawbwa was driven out of the State and the population it is said, reduced to one hundred souls

Hkun Lai, however, refused to join the Confederacy and sent representatives to the British who had then reached Mandalay He then collected his men and recruited in Mong Kung and Kehsi Mansam and marched against Mong Pawn to punish that State for ruining his territory The arrival of British troops prevented much damage being done and the Chief withdrew to his State

A terrible famine then completed the destruction done by fire and sword the Chief's granaries were looted and he entirely lost control of his State for a few days, but he soon reasserted his authority and performed marvels in settling his State which is now in a most flourishing condition

The Sawbwa, Hkun Lai was born in 1858 was appointed Sawbwa by King Thebaw in 1882 and was confirmed in his appointment by the Chief Commissioner in 1887 He is doing remarkably well and has opened up his State with roads and built good and expensive bridges He has been granted the title and insignia of K S M His chief wife bears the title of Mahadevi granted by the Court at Mandalay Both the Chief and the Mahadevi were invited to Rangoon on the occasion of the visit of Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales to Rangoon in 1906

On the 1st January 1909 the title of C I E was conferred on Hkun Lai

LAWKSAWK (YATSAUK)

Lawksawk was formerly a part of the Yawnghwe State but in 1788 A D, and possibly earlier, it was a separate State, under a Myosa In 1847 A D, the Myosa died without issue or near relations and the Yawnghwe Sawbwa, through Court intrigue, obtained a grant of the State He sent his brother, Hkun Shwe, to administer it Hkun Shwe died three years later and thereupon a certain Maung Shwe Gya, of Myaung Aing, gave himself out as a descendant of the original line of Myosa and assumed authority in the State, throwing off the overlordship of Yawnghwe King Mindôn, however, sent him to act as Sitko in Mongnai About the same time Maung Baik, Myook of Hsikap, succeeded in obtaining for himself the charge of Lawksawk State In 1854 A D, however, he had to take refuge in Inlèywa, while Lawksawk was granted by the King to the Sawbwa of Lai Hka. Amats from Lai Hka administered the State until the death of the Sawbwa of Lai Hka in 1863 A D. A Myoök, sent up from Mandalay, took charge of the State for three years, and then, in 1866 A D, Hkun Weng, grand nephew of the Yawnghwe Sawbwa, obtained a Royal Order and took over the Chieftainship with the title of Sawbwa. When the Burmese forces came up to attack Mong Nai, Hkun Weng fled before them with the Sawbwa of the State to the trans Salween principality of Kengtūng. Hkun Mawng, the Sawbwa of Yawnghwe, was thereupon ordered to take charge of the Lawksawk State and sent his uncle L<sup>a</sup> Bwin with the title of Myosa. L<sup>a</sup> Bwin only remained a year and the administration was then carried on by two Amats from Yawnghwe. In 1884 A D, the Nawng Long Heng Nga Lin, attacked and drove them out, taking charge himself with the title of Myoök. He maintained his position until 1886 A D, when he was overthrown by Hkun Weng, who had returned along with the Mong Nai Sawbwa in the train of the Limbin Prince. About half a year after his return, Hkun Weng, as a member of the Limbin Confederacy, advanced on Yawnghwe, established a body of men in a strong position at Kugyo, a few miles north east of Maw Li-Hsat, and attempted to reduce the Yawnghwe capital. He refused to submit to British authority. His forces were driven from Kugyo by the British troops in February 1887 A D, and a couple of months later, on the advance of a column on his capital, he fled to Kengtūng and subsequently to Mong Sein Keng Hung, where he remained an exile and a bitter enemy of British authority until his death in 1896 A D. After Bo Saing had held charge of Lawksawk for nine months as a Myoök under the British Government, Hkun Nu, hereditary Myosa of Tam Hpak, who had rendered signal services to Government, was appointed Sawbwa of Lawksawk and was installed on the 6th October 1887 A D. Hkun Nu had ruled the State of Tam Hpak for a short time. On Hkun Mawng Sawbwa of Yawnghwe, becoming Myelat Wun about 1868 A D, he demanded greatly increased tribute. Hkun Nu could not raise it. The Ngwegunhmu of Hsahong undertook to pay the amount and received Tam Hpak from the Yaw Mingyi, then in Mong Nai. Hkun Nu thenceforward lived in Mandalay until 1887 A D, when he accompanied the Shan column as guide and interpreter. His son, Hkun Hsök, the present Sawbwa, was with his father, and also assisted the column greatly. He succeeded in 1900 A D, on the death of his father. He is a person of uncouth appearance and manners, but he has done very good road work and is opening up the State in a most satisfactory manner. He was invited to Rangoon to be presented to Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales in 1906. The Sawbwa received the decoration of K S M on the 1st January 1907 and is greatly improved in manners.

The State includes the dependency of Mong Ping, which originally formed part of Yawnghwe State, but was a separate charge in 1838 A D, under a Myosa named Hkun Cha. This man died in 1852 A D, after which a Myoök from Mandalay administered the State for two years until in 1854 A D. Mong Ping and Lawksawk were both assigned by the King to the Sawbwa of Lai Hka. In 1866 A D, Lawksawk was assigned to Hkun Weng and Mong Ping at the same time was given to his father, Hkun Shwe Baik, with the title of Myosa. Mong Ping was assigned along with Lawksawk to Hkun Nu.

There are valuable teak forests in this State, which are being worked by a European firm, the Chief receiving a share of the profits.

LOI AI (LWE E)

The records of the State have all perished and little exists but bare lists of names. Loi Ai, however, had a chequered existence being sometimes under its own Chief and sometimes a mere dependency of one or other of its neighbours. The present Ngwegunhmu, Maung Po Kin, succeeded his father, Hkun Kya, who died in October 1903. Hkun Kya was Chief from 1870 to 1903 and for his good services received the A T M Insignia of Honour on the 1st January 1903.

The genealogical tree of the family is as follows —

LOI LONG (LWELÔN)

The State is very hilly and in the early days each of the twelve ranges had its own community under its own Chief. Later on La-Sa became Chief of the Sawng Tung community and gradually extended his authority over the others. His son, La-Tein, followed in his steps and organized his territories and divided them into twelve Taungsa-ships. He then resolved to increase his population by inducing Shans and Taungthus to settle in the State. With this object he sent La-hn, an influential official, to create a village at Pinlaung; he was entirely successful and Pinlaung, now the capital of the State, was founded in 1794. La-Tein next made a treaty with Ke Waw of Samka to advance trade and one Pu Hwe Hkam Saw, said to be a Siamese, became intermediary and general agent for the two States. He acted in this capacity for four years and then went to Ava where he obtained from the Burmese King a patent as Sarōwa of the two States of Samka and Loi Lông. La-Tein does not seem to have resented his conversion into a feudatory, and probably the burdens were hardly felt, if indeed any were imposed. He died four years later and was succeeded by his brother La-Tu. La-Tu resented the authority of Pu Hwe Hkam Saw and resolved to go down to the Burmese Court, where he was favourably received and succeeded in obtaining a Royal Order appointing him Chief over the twelve Taungas of Loi Long. La Tu was succeeded by his son La Naw who when he died, was followed as ruler by two of his children (Shwe Ni and Shwe Aung). Shwe Ni's son by a Shan woman Nga Po, then succeeded. In 1854 Chief Hkon Na was succeeded by his cousin Hkun Sanda. Two years later he was followed by his son La Nu or Hkun Pu who was formally created Mjosa and ruled for twenty six years. He was succeeded by his son Hkun Hkam Chök, who is the Chief at the present time. During his minority Hkun Tangje (Mintag), the most prominent of the Taungas acted as Administrator.

Hkun Hkam Chök was born in 1874 and assumed charge of the State in 1895. He is half Saw n Tung (Zayeng) Karen and half Shan. He has many good qualities and has done well in a difficult position. He has received the K. S. V. decoration and was invited to Rangoon to meet Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales. His mother is the late Mongpai Sawbwa's sister and his wife Ma Saw Me, by whom he has two daughters, is the only sister of the late Chief of Pangtara. All the Taungas are related to the Chief, of whom the most influential now living are Hkun Pien (Mintag's eldest son), and Gonwara.

LOI MAW (LWE MAW)

The State records of Loi Maw as of most of the Shan States have been burnt, and details of its history are therefore fragmentary. The first Ngwegunhm mentioned is Maung Gök who held Hship in addition to Loi Maw. He attacked the State of Nam Hkai but was defeated by Maung Dwe of that State and had to fall back. He then persuaded Maung Shwe Ni the Chief of Inlèyna to join forces with him, and they succeeded in driving back Maung Dwe. Both he and Shwe Ni were thereupon ordered to Indein by the Burmese Wun and were imprisoned and died in jail. Maung Gök was a native of Indein and had displaced Maung Po Saw, the hereditary Chief of Loi Maw. This man was now in 1834 reappointed and after ten years of quiet rule was succeeded by his son Maung Lok who was murdered in 1847 by his brother-in-law Maung Shwe Daung a son of Maung Gök. Shwe Daung was forced to fly and was afterwards killed in an affray near Indein. Ni U the widow of Maung Lök, made a speedy marriage with one Maung Tok Kyi and got her son Maung Shwe Pyi, appointed as Ngwegunhm with Tök Kyi as administrator. In August 1855 Maung Shwe Pyi was placed in charge of the State. In 1874 the scheming Pa thu daw U Nye Su, procured his dismissal and deportation to Mandalay and placed one of his hangers on Maung Thè in charge of Loimaw and Loi A. Maung Thè was soon after replaced by Maung Kya who in turn made way for Maung Meik the eldest son of the deported Maung Shwe Pyi. He in due course was ousted by Maung Chat, and on his death by Maung At. In 1886 Maung Shwe Pyi returned from Mandalay and resumed charge of the State which he held until his death in 1907. He was succeeded by his son, the present Ngwegunhm Hkun Kyaw. Maung Meik the eldest son above mentioned committed suicide in 1897.

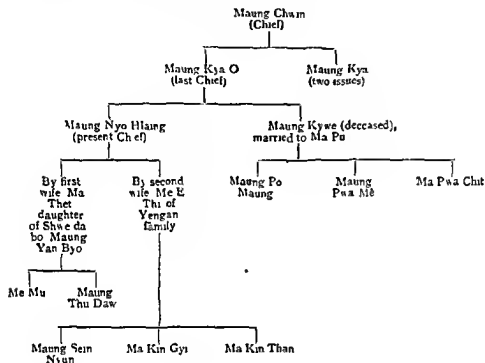

Hkun Kyaw was born in 1861. He is of a quiet, unassuming disposition and has the Taungthu fa ling for liquor. He is married to Ma Thè, daughter of the late Zavattaga Thaw of the Pangm State and has one son Maung Byan, aged 13, a pupil in the Taunggyi school and one daughter Ma Saw Mè. The late Maung Meik was twice married and has left three children by his first wife, Nang Myat Pwin, sister of the Pangm Chief, one daughter Ma Hpi and by his second wife one daughter Ma Pi aged 11 and one son Maung Lun aged 10. Maung Hpon, the younger brother of the Chief, has three sons.

MAW (BAW)

The records of the State were lost in the Myogyi fire and very little is known of its history. A mau whose real name is not known but who is always referred to as Ko Then Shin accompanied Namani Suthu in his progress through the hills. He was noted for his learning and good deeds and in consideration of his services to the prince was presented with an elephant and placed in charge of Myogyi, a town said to have been founded by the prince. The territory made over to him contained forty four villages and the tribute paid in his time was four viss of silver extracted from the mines. The mines still exist, but have not been worked for years. The Shaunggabwe tract was made over to the Kyaukse district in 1887 and the annual tribute of that quinquennium was reduced from Rs 5 600 to Rs 5 000. Ko Thein Shin was succeeded by his grandson Thudewa and there were at least fourteen rulers between him and the present Myosa Maung Nyo Hlaing who was born in 1860 and succeeded his father, Maung Kya O, in 1873. During his minority the State was administered by Maung Yit and afterwards by the late Shwe da bo, Maung On Gang T D M. The Chief received the A T M Insignia of Honour on the 1st of January 1903, and was promoted to Myosa in 1907.

The genealogical tree of the family is given below —

MAWKMAI (MAUKMÈ)

The first Sawbwa of Mawkmai was Hsai Kyo, the son of the Myosa of Mong Sin in Chiengmai. He was appointed in 1800.

Sawbwa Hsai Kyo reigned till 1818, and was succeeded by his son Awk Hkun, who was contemporaneous with Sagaing Min, and whose Sawbwa ship appears to have been quite uneventful. He ruled till 1824, and was succeeded by his son, Let To, in 1824.

Let To remained in power till 1831, and was succeeded by Ko Lan, the most famous Mawkmai Sawbwa.

Ko Lan was contemporaneous with Shwebo Min and assisted the latter's army in Karenni. It was through his aid that the King of Burma got the better of the Karenni forces.

He was formally recognized as Sawbwa for his good services in the war. However, in 1867 he fell into disfavour, probably for his repeated quarrels with the local Burmese Governors and was disposed in favour of Hkun Hmon. The latter only held rule for about one year, for Ko Lan was restored to favour and power. This was in King Mindon's time.

In 1887 Ko Lan died and was succeeded by another Hkun Hmon, his son. He was a poor creature of vicious habits and he died, when still young, in 1899. His son, Hkun Htun Peng a minor, succeeded, and the State was placed in charge of an uncle named Hkun Nè until 1904 when the Sawbwa came of age and was installed.

he was favourably received and succeeded in obtaining a Royal Order appointing him Chief over the twelve Taungzas of Loi Lóng. La Tu was succeeded by his son La Naw, who, when he died, was followed as ruler by two of his children (Shwe Ni and Shwe Aung). Shwe Ni's son by a Shan woman Nga Po, then succeeded. In 1854, Chief Hkon Na was succeeded by his cousin Hkun Sanda. Two years later he was followed by his son La Mu or Hkun Pu who was formally created Mjora and ruled for twenty six years. He was succeeded by his son Hkun Hkam Chók, who is the Chief at the present time. During his minority Hkun Tangye (Mintagè), the most prominent of the Taungzas acted as Administrator.

Hkun Hkam Chók was born in 1874 and assumed charge of the State in 1895. He is half Sawn Tung (Zayeing) Karen and half Shan. He has many good qualities and has done well in a difficult position. He has received the K S M decoration and was invited to Rangoon to meet Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales. His mother is the late Mongpai Sawéna's sister and his wife Ma Saw Me, by whom he has two daughters, is the only sister of the late Chief of Panglata. All the Taungzas are related to the Chief, of whom the most influential now living are Hkun Pien (Mintagè's eldest son), and Gonwara.

MAWKMAI (MAUKMÈ)

The first Sawbwa of Mawka was Hsai Kyo, the son of the Myosa of Mong Sin in Chuengmai. he was appointed in 1800.

Sawbwa Hsai Kyo reigned till 1818, and was succeeded by his son Awk Hkun, who was contemporaneous with Sagaing Min, and whose Sawbwa-ship appears to have been quite uneventful. He ruled till 1824, and was succeeded by his son Let To, in 1824.

Hkun Htun Peng died on the 30th November 1906 His brother Hkun Leng has been named successor subject to conditions of good behaviour He is a pupil at the school for the sons of Shan Chiefs His uncle Hkun Nè, administers the State

MĀW NANG (BAWNIN)

Though it is now so insignificant as a State, Maw Nang at one time extended its boundaries over a great part of the Myelat and its Chief, it is said, was an ally, but not a tributary, of the King of Pagan This Myosa was named Hkam Hon, and from his time to the present time a list of the Myosas exists, but without dates The present Myosa, Hkun Ti, is the eighteenth on the list It is specially mentioned that when Ye Tut (ninth on the list) was appointed Myosa in 1736, he was granted the full insignia of a Myosa by King Hanthawadi Sin Byu Shin

The eleventh Myosa Maung Myat was extremely unpopular, so much so that the King yielded to the representations of the people and summoned him to live at Ava, while the State was administered by officials from Burma Maung Myat took part in the war against Siam in the train of Sanda Wethanda, one of the Burmese generals, and displayed such gallantry that on his return he was formally reinstated as Myosa The results were rather disastrous for Maung Myat was so cordially disliked that thirteen circles seceded and placed themselves under the Chief of Hsamonghkam Many of the northern and eastern circles were also seized by the Chief of Yawng Hwe Hkun Ti, the present Chief, was born in 1886 and succeeded his father in 1907 His mother, Nan Serg is the cousin of the late Sawbwa of Mong Pan, and has five children Hkun Ti married the daughter of the Hsamonghkam Myosa on 5th April 1907 His two elder sisters are married to the Chiefs of Yengan and Loi Ai and his uncle Saw Nyun, A T M, is the Chief of Pwela His cousin Hkun Yon is married to the sister of the Chief of Hsamonghkam and after the Chief is the most influential man in the State

MAWSON (BAWZAING)

In 1426 A D the King of Burma is said to have sent 40 families under Maung Mu Nwe and Maung Mu Thi to colonize the district and work the silver lead mines The former took charge of Mawson and the latter of Kyauktat, now a circle of the Yawnghwe State Maung Mu Nwe on his death was succeeded by Òn Gaing In 1784 Maung Pwe assumed charge and received the title of Ngwegunhmu His successors were Maung Kyaw his brother Maung Wang son of Maung Kyaw Maung Nyun, son of Maung Waing and Maung Kya Ywet, another son of Maung Waing, who succeeded in 1878 The State was burnt in the last house in the year before the British occupation Maung Kya Ywet was born in 1851 and on the 1st January 1905 received the A T M Insignia of Honour His wife Ma Pwa Me, the daughter of U Pe, of the Pangtara State, died in 1908 and has left no children Two of the Chief's nieces are married to the Yawnghwe Sawbwa and a nephew is now in the Taunggyi school for the sons of Shan Chiefs The Chief and a Chinese firm are at present working the Sizet and Bawzaing mines in the State

MÔNG HSU (MAING SHU)

Mong Hsu and Mong Sang were formerly districts of Hsenwi, and on their partition in 1857, were created a separate charge by King Mindôn and placed in the jurisdiction of the Burmese Myoök at Kehsi Mausam

The present Chief represents himself as the descendant of a long line of Myosas who administered the districts under the Hsenwi Sawbwa From the date of the partition of Hsenwi, till 1874, the little State of Mong Sang was only recognized as a circle of Mong Hsu In this year, however Hkun Saw, the present Chief of Mong Hsu, was appointed Myosa of Mong Sang by his father, Hkun Mun When the latter died in 1879 Hkun Saw was confirmed in independent charge by his younger brother, Hkun Maha, who then became Myosa of Mong Hsu. Both were confirmed by the Chief Commissioner in 1888. Hkun Maha died in 1893, and was succeeded by his son, also called Hkun Maha, who died in 1901. Hkun Maha left no son and so Mong Sang was amalgamated with Mong Hsu, and Hkun Saw was appointed Myosa of Mong Hsu and Mong Sang, now known as the Mông Hsu State.

In 1882 and the following year, however, the Burmese troops entered the State of Mông Nawng with the avowed intention of proceeding to Kengtung to attack the Mong Nai and Mông Nawng Chiefs who rebelled. It is improbable that the leaders ever contemplated such an expedition and the real object was most probably to obtain plunder and to display Burmese authority. This was the view at any rate of the people of Mông Hsu and Mông Sang, and as the several Burmese forces entered the State, the people fled before them. The Burmese troops soon marched back to Mong Nai again, but when the refugees returned they found that the soldiery had burnt and destroyed everything they could not take away.

The Chiefs of Mong Hsu and Mong Sang were members of the Limbin Confederacy but took no active part in it, and, indeed, confined their attention to their own States.

They have enjoyed peace since the Burmese invasion, except for a small outbreak in 1897, in Mong Awt, by a "Koyin," who burnt some villages and disappeared. He is believed to have been killed in Northern Siam whilst dacoiting there.

The Myosa is not liked by his people, who in 1904 refused to obey him and pay taxes, encouraged in this course by the wife of the late Mong Hsu Myosa, who was anxious that her brother, Naw Heing, should be appointed Myosa. Things, however, quieted down on the lady heing made to understand that such conduct would necessitate her residing elsewhere.

MÔNG KŨNG (MAING KAING)

In 1254 B.E. Mong Kung was assigned by King Mindôn to the Sawbwa of Laihka, and Hkun Cho, who had been Myosa for over 20 years, resigned himself to fate, common enough under Burmese authority, and fled to Hsipaw. Hkun Long, brother of the Laihka Sawbwa, took his place and title.

On the death of Kemmông A, in 1263 B.E., Hkun Long succeeded to the Sawbwa-ship of Laihka and Heng Guna became Myosa of Mông Kung. Three years later, on a representation to the Court at Mandalay, he was relieved of subordination to Laihka. He died in 1873 and was succeeded by his son Hkun San Kwan, who assumed the title of Sawbwa, but apparently without the authority of the Mandalay Court.

In 1879 he died and his son Hkun Mong, the present Chief, then a child of six years of age, became Myosa. The State was administered by Hkun Sang, Heng of Tung Lan, who was styled Heng of Mong Kung. Meantime Hkun Mong lived in Mandalay. Hkun Mong, K.S.M., succeeded in 1883. Hkun Sang the Heng of Mong Kung (afterwards a sergeant of Civil Police, Taunggyi), raised a rebellion against Hkun Mong and the young Myosa was driven from his State to Kehsi Mansam, but after a time he restored himself, being a favourite with the majority of the people.

Mong Kung State refused to join the Limbin Confederacy and was burnt and pillaged.

The Myosa is not related to any other Chiefs in the Shan States.

The Myosa has opened up his country in the most praiseworthy way. He has thrown off the opium habit, to which he was formerly addicted, and is now quite satisfactory as a ruler of the State.

MÔNG NAI (MONÈ)

The early history of Mông Nai is buried in obscurity. The town has been several times burnt. It always was the centre of disturbances in the Southern Shan States and the greater portion of the records have perished in various fires. The only records that can be obtained are obviously incorrect and vague.

In 1223 A.D. Mōng Nai was conquered by Sam Long Hpa of the Northern Shan Empire and became tributary to Se Lan, or whatever the capital was at that time.

In 1256 A.D. Mōng Nai fell to the King of Pegu and then Buddhism appears to have been first introduced.

During its independence Mōng Nai seems to have included the whole of the Southern Shan States, certainly Mōng Pai and Yawnghwe, and probably the present Myelat, but never extended to the east of the Salween or north of the Nam Tu. This much is certain that till quite recent times the Mōng Nai State was of much larger dimensions than it is now, and in the year 1802 it is said to have included the territory of Mong Pawa, Mawka-mai and Keng Hkam.

From 1848 Myodks and Sithes were sent by the King of Burma to supervise the administration of the State.

In 1852 when Mindōn Min and Pagan Min were fighting in Mandalay, Hkun Nu, the father of the present Sawbwa, Hkun Kyi, sent down two of his daughters as a present to King Mindōn: their names were Sao Om and Sao Ti. After King Mindōn's death Sao Om returned to Mōng Nai and died in 1891. Sao Ti afterwards married the Hsipaw Sawbwa Hkun Kyi.

The present Sawbwa sent his sister Hkun Sinda to King Thebaw when he entered the palace. Subsequently she came up to Wanyin and married the Kemmong; she divorced him and returned to Mong Nai, where she now lives.

In 1882 Hkun Kyi was driven into revolt by the exactions of King Thebaw and the Burmese troops at Mong Nai. The Sawbwa fled to Kengtung and Twet Nga Lu, an uncrowned monk, was given the State by King Thebaw. In 1886, at the time of the fall of Mandalay, Hkun Kyi returned from Kengtung, and with the assistance of Kengtung troops as well as of his own subjects, he drove out Twet Nga Lu and restored himself as Sawbwa. He then combined with other Chiefs to place the Limbin Prince on the throne of Burma, but the league submitted to the British Government in 1887 when a party of British troops visited Mong Nai. The Limbin Prince was deported.

Twet Nga Lu made an attempt in 1888 to regain the Mong Nai State and he actually captured the capital. A week later Mr J. G. Scott and Lieutenant Fowler with only seven mounted men made a forced march, galloped into the capital, and captured all the chief bohs as well as Twet Nga Lu and all were executed later on, except Twet Nga Lu who was shot whilst making an effort to regain his liberty. Hkun Kyi then fairly established himself and he has ruled the State ever since.

At this time the Sawbwa, whose influence in the country is very great, materially assisted the British officers to settle the country by throwing the whole weight of his authority on the side of Government. Of late years his health has failed and he does not now pay sufficient attention to the administration of his State. He has received the insignia of the C. I. E. and the decoration of K. S. M. He possesses the gold Darbar medal. He was granted at the Delhi Darbar a salute of nine guns and for two years he occupied a seat in the Burma Legislative Council. His chief wife received the title of Mahadevi from the Mandalay Court.

The forests in the State are valuable: they are leased to the Sawbwa.

MONG NAWNG, (MAING NAUNG)

The present State of Mōng Nawng formerly constituted a part of the "Taung Let" of Hsenwi, and for several years previous to its final separation and creation into a State with a Chief of its own, was administered under the Hsenwi Sawbwa by two Hengs, the Heng Long and Heng Awn (the great and little Hengs). These men were relatives, and had equal rank and authority in the management of affairs. The elder was called Heng Long on account of his age and not because he was a superior officer to Heng Awn. Heng Awn, in 1850, with a Mong Nawng contingent, went to the aid of Kengtung which was involved over border disputes with Chiangmai. Heng Awn's contingent is said to have saved Kengtung.

Heng Awn, on return from Kengtāng, petitioned Pagan Min to make Mong Nawng a separate State, and this was done in 1851, and Heng Awn was appointed first Myosa by Royal Order. He administered the State for fifteen years and during all this time it remained at peace and appears to have been fairly prosperous.

Heng Awn died at Mandalay in 1866, and was succeeded by his son, Hkun Hkang. Shortly after this Myosa's succession an attempt was made to oust him by one Kawn Kai, who had been an official under the two Hengs when they administered Mong Nawng. He went to Hsenwi 'Alelet' where he had no difficulty in getting men and arms to help him in his enterprise and returned with a large following and attacked Mong Nawng. The Myosa was defeated and fled to Lai Hka, whence he appealed to the 'Bo Hmu' of Mong Nai. Aid was sent, and with this addition to his force he attacked the invaders and in turn drove out Kawn Kai, who withdrew to Hsenwi, where he died.

During the two succeeding years the State was quiet. In 1868 the Burmese Government demanded from Mong Nawng in common with all the other Southern Shan States, a contingent to join the expedition against the rebel Myingun Prince, who had taken up his abode in Karenni. The Myosa accompanied his men and was killed in a fight at Loikaw in East Karenni.

On Hkun Hkang's death, his son, Hkun Hton, then a boy of ten years, was appointed Myosa by King Mindōn. The State was well administered by the relatives of the young Myosa and it increased in population and prosperity and enjoyed peace till 1882, when the people heard with terror of the large force which the Burmese Government had raised and were sending up to revenge the massacre of the Mong Nai garrison.

The Mong Nai Sawbwa had married the Mong Nawng Myosa's sister and the latter feared that the vengeance of the Government would fall not only on the Sawbwa but on all his connections.

There does not seem to have been any other reason for apprehending the attack, and it appears that if Mong Nawng had joined the other States and had assisted the Government in attacking Mong Nai it would have escaped injury. The Myosa, however, threw in his lot with his kinsman, and Mong Nawng met the same fate as Mong Nai. The Burmese entered the State and marched through it, burning the houses, kyauungs, and everything which they could not carry away. They killed or drove off all the cattle that had been left behind and in fact made a desert of the State.

During 1884—1886 Hkun Shwe Hkam a brother of the Myosa's mother, was appointed Myoök by the Burmese Government.

In 1886, on the taking of Mandalay, the Burmese troops withdrew from the Shan States and the Mong Nawng Myosa returned with the Mong Nai Sawbwa from Kengtāng. All the people took his side and he was able to drive out Hkun Shwe Hkam without much fighting in 1886 and Hkun Hton, when the British came up, was found in charge of the State and was confirmed as Myosa.

In 1887 Mong Nawng joined the Limbin Confederacy and attacked Lai Hka, Kehsi Mansam and Mong Kung. On the arrival of the British troops and the surrender of the Limbin Prince in May 1887, hostilities ceased.

Hkun Hton was given the title of K. S. M. in 1904. Unfortunately his health broke down entirely and the State was administered by his son. Hkun Hton died on August 9th, 1906, and his son Hkun Lōng is recognised as his successor.

MONG PAI (MOBYE)

About the year 1541 A.D. when the Shan Prince of Onbaung (Hsipaw) seized the throne of Ava, he appointed his son Saw Pe as Chief of the State of Mōng Pai. On the death of the King of Ava, about the year 1546 A.D., the nobles and ministers of the court placed Saw Pe on the throne, and his cousin or half brother Kam Kaw was appointed Chief of Mong Pai. He was succeeded by his brother Maw Kya on whose death Nam Pe became Chief. On the death of this ruler his son Kan Tat was appointed Chief. Kan Tat after ruling over the Mōng Pai State for some years threw in his lot with the Chinese, who were working the lead mines of Banzaing. The King being afraid that with the monetary and armed assistance of his Chinese friends he might be in a position to rebel removed him from power and placed a Maington man in charge of Mong Pai. In December 1682 A.D., Kam Tat, with his brothers Nga Sang, Nga Se, and Nga Tan, fled to Siam. On the expiration of five years, the Maington Prince was removed and a person from Maing-Yin appointed. On account of oppressive acts on his part he was killed in 1692 A.D. In his haren, Yinbaw, and Padaung subjects, and all his followers, relatives, and ministers fled. No action was immediately taken by the Supreme Government to avenge the murder of their protégé, but in 1696 A.D., Burmese troops were sent up and Mong Pai was devastated by them. During the reign of Sin Byu Shin, between the years 1759 and 1763 A.D., Nga Hte Maung, brother of Nga Zaung, an influential bullock trader, re-settled Mong Pai. The old ministers then decided on offering the State of Mong Pai to Hkun Pya, son of Hkun Naw Seng, a member of the ancient line which he accepted and journeyed to the Court of the King to obtain an order confirming him in his appointment. At this time the King Sin Byu Shin died and Singu Min eventually obtained the throne. Hkun Pya had displeased him and he refused to recognize him as Sawbwa, but appointed the Mjora of Lawk Sank in his place, then the Htong Mjora succeeded, then a Military leader 'Ye Kyaw Dewa' was appointed Mjorun and after him the Thi Gyi Chief was made ruler. He held the Chiefship for three years and was removed and 'Ye Kyaw Dewa' was re-appointed Mjorun. In 1803 A.D. he was dismissed and the hereditary Chief, Hkun Pya, was appointed Sawbwa of all the State with the exception of certain States, which had broken away before 1783 A.D., and had become separate Mjora and Ngwegunhmu ships. He ruled for two years and was succeeded by his son, Kan Maung who ruled for three years and was succeeded by his brother, Kan Hlaing. In 1820 A.D. Kan Hlaing made an attempt to regain those portions of his State which had seceded. He called in the villages which had formerly belonged to Mong Pai. They refused to be coerced and would not come and he sent an armed force to reduce the recalcitrant villagers and a battle was fought at Ko Kaung. For this act of insubordination the Mong Nai Viceroy arrested him and sent him to Ava, where he was imprisoned and Athin Hkun Nga Kyi was appointed Myobh in charge of the State. In 1823 A.D. the Burmese invaded Manipur and Hkun Hlaing was attached to the force. On his return victorious, he was reinstated as Sawbwa as a reward for good service rendered. The State enjoyed comparative peace until 1833 A.D. when Naungpalè attacked certain Yinbaw Padaung villages. The Sawbwa not wishing to be embroiled with Naungpalè, gave them no assistance. In the following year the Harens of Lailong seized certain villages. The Sawbwa sent his brother Hkun Lon with an armed force of forty men to expel the Lailong invaders, but they were driven back and the Harens seized Hkun Lon and invested the town of Mong Pai and in July 1836 A.D. while the Sawbwa was going to his fields he was assassinated by his own subjects because of the trouble he had brought on the State and on them.

The people then elected Hkun Yon as Sawbwa and he was subsequently confirmed by the Mong Nai Viceroy. His uncle Hkun Long, intrigued against him and tried to get him assassinated. Hkun Long was eventually appointed to Maing hlon, where, after ruling for one year he was assassinated by his haren subjects. The Burmese invasion of the haren country then took place. During the years 1852—1857 A.D. there were constant haren attacks on Mong Pai. A quarrel between the Sawbwa and the Mjora of Sakoi ended in the former being ordered to go to Burma and remain in the service of the King in the capital. He escaped in 1857 A.D. and returned to Mong Pai. He was eventually pardoned and restored to his State. He had constant quarrels for several years with Sawbwa Po Bja of Western Harenni, but these were eventually settled and the frontier delimited in 1889 A.D. Hkun Yon lived through the reigns of four Burmese Kings and was confirmed as Chief by the British Government in 1887. In 1890 he abdicated in favour of his eldest son Hkun Hsuriya, who succeeded him in 1900, in which year Hkun Yon died. Hkun Hsuriya died of fever on the 30th December 1907. He had been in indifferent health for some years. He was a loyal chief, but not a strong administrator. His eldest son, Hkun Ping nya, has succeeded him. The head-quarters of the Chief is Kaung. His State, which contains hill people, Brà, Padaung, and Karens, is not easily administered. Theft is still rife.

The Burmese had a stockaded post at Hpaikhun above Mông Pai town. The garrison, which consisted of about eighty men, all inhabitants of Wuntho, had dispersed before the British troops marched into Mông Pai in 1887.

MÔNG PAN (MAING PAN)

The State was created a Myosa-ship, and one Tawk Lu was appointed first ruler by the Burmese King in 1637. His successors were —

Tawk Hkam	.	.	.	.	.	.	His younger brother
Tawk Awn	.	.	.	.	.	.	Another younger brother
Paw Twe	.	.	.	.	.	.	Son of Tawk Awn
Op La	.	.	.	.	.	.	Son of Paw Twe
Hkun Som	.	.	.	.	.	.	Son of Op La
Swe Tong	.	.	.	.	.	.	Son of Hkun Som
Sai U	.	.	.	.	.	.	Nephew of Swe Tong
Sai Nyo	.	.	.	.	.	.	Son of Sai U
Naw Hkam	.	.	.	.	.	.	Younger brother of Sai Nyo

Naw Hkam died in 1808 without issue; and the appointment of a successor to the Myosa ship devolving on the King of Burma, his choice fell on one Mana Ne Myo. This man had been for many years Bohmu, a commandant of the Mông Nai garrison, and the State of Mông Pan was given to him as a reward for his services and a provision for his old age. This man died in 1825, was succeeded by his son Maung Shwe Hkan, who ruled for thirty five years and was, at his death, succeeded by his son Hkun Tun U.

Mông Pan was mixed up with inter-State quarrels in Hkun Tun U's time.

Hkun Tun U was succeeded by his brother Hkun Leng in 1886. He left a son, Hkun Pon, then eleven years of age, but the Shans, while they insist that their Chiefs shall be appointed from the ruling-families, do not greatly respect the law of primogeniture and the times did not admit of a boy ruler. Hkun Leng was therefore elected. Immediately after Mandalay was taken by the British troops, and the Burmese guard with the central authority in the Shan States left Mông Nai, the whole country was at once plunged into war. Mông Pan was one of the greatest sufferers. Hkun Leng fled to the Trans Salween States in 1887. He re-established himself and drove back the Mawkaï troops. In December 1887, Tuet Nga Lu attacked Mông Pan, but peace was brought by the capture and death of Tuet Nga Lu.

Hkun Leng died in 1894 and was succeeded by his son Hkun Num who was born before Hkun Leng became Chief. Hkun Num's mother was a common woman and he was allowed to grow up without being properly educated. His father, after he became Chief, married a lady named Nang Ngon and he made her his chief wife and she bore him a son. Hkun. On the death of the Sawbwa Hkun Leng this lady expected her son to succeed to the State, and as he did not do so she and her uncles made matters as uncomfortable as possible for Sawbwa Hkun Num and Government had to interfere. The lady now resides at Mông Pan and one of the uncles, Naw Hkam, has gone to Karen. It has been made quite clear to the lady and her relatives that they are not to interfere with the Sawbwa or meddle with State affairs. Her son is recognized as the heir apparent.

The Chief Hkun Num is a rough person and he has lacked courage, but he has made a good road and now, strongly backed up by us, he is administering more boldly.

There are rich teak forests in this State and in the sub-States of Mông Tôn, Mông Hang, Mông Kywut, and Mông Hta. A new lease of the Mông Pan forests has been given to the Bombay-Burma Corporation for three years from 1st January 1907.

MÔNG PAWN (MAINGPUN)

The State of Mông Pawn originally belonged partly to Yawnghwe and partly to Mông Nai, the Nam Pawa forming the boundary line. It was created a separate State in 1816, the Chief receiving the title of Myosa. In 1854 A.D., however, the influence of the son of the Mong Nai Sawbwa, then in Mandalay, and of his sister, Nang Le, who was one of the minor queens procured the State for the Mong Nai Chief. The Myosa Hkun Lek, however, was not deposed, but retained in charge under the authority of Mong Nai until his death in 1860.

Hkun Hti, the present Chief, then succeeded and ruled under the same conditions until 1880. When the Mong Nai Chief fled before the Burmese to Kengtung, Hkun Hti went down to Mandalay and returned two years later as an independent Myosa.

The State has been prominent in all internecine fighting and Hkun Hti was the tongue and scribe of the Limbin Confederacy. He, however, promptly submitted to the British suzerainty in April 1887 and was confirmed as Chief by the Chief Commissioner and proved of great use, helping to settle the country. His father was only a Myosa and Hkun Hti asserts that he was appointed Sawbwa by King Thebaw, but his patent was never produced. He was raised to the rank of Sawbwa by the British Government.

The Sawbwa was honoured with the title of K S M as a recognition of his services at the time of the Limbin Confederacy and the intelligent and able manner in which he administered his State. The Sawbwa is a man of considerable energy and has spared no pains in improving communications in his State, at first but now he has grown weary of making roads and devotes his time and money to building a palace and a pagoda, both of which are fine buildings. His State is small and he finds it difficult to occupy his energies—he is growing overbearing in his dealings with his neighbours and his tongue and pen run away with him.

He was invited to Rangoon to meet Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales on the occasion of their visit to Burma in 1906. His eldest son, Sao Sam Nyun has been recognised as heir apparent to the Sawbwa-ship.

MÔNG SIT (MAINGSEIK)

Mong Sit seems to have first come into existence as a separate State in 1816. It had previously formed a part of Mong Nai.

In 1854 Court intrigue restored it to Mong Nai, but the Myosa Sao Haw Pik was retained in subordinate authority. He died three years later and was succeeded by his son Hkun Kyaw Saw, who was followed by another son, Hkun Lu. On his death in 1873 the State was granted to Nang Li, sister of the Mong Nai Sawbwa and a minor wife of King Mindon (Nang Li now lives in Mong Nai Town). A Myoök, Hkam Yi, was appointed to carry on the administration and collect the revenue. In 1876, however, he was recalled, and Sao Leng Long, the Mong Nai Kemmong and brother of Nang Li, became Myosa. He fled with the Mong Nai Sawbwa to Kengtung in 1880, and the Myoök again administered the State until 1883. When he returned to Burma, the present Myosa Hkun Pwin took charge. He is a son of Nai Noi, the Ko Lan Sawbwa of Mawmai, and married a daughter of the Mong Pawn Sawbwa.

The State is said to have been 'bought' by Hkun Pwin—he was appointed by King Thebaw and was confirmed in possession by the Chief Commissioner in 1888.

The State is small,illy and land locked, and the Chief has little besides his connection with several ruling Chiefs.

NAM HKAI (NANKE)

Before 1808 Nam Hkai is said to have been a part of the Yawng Hwe State, but it seems somewhat doubtful. In that year at any rate, one Damma, a Taungthu, made his way to Ava and successfully petitioned the King to be appointed Ngwegunhoun. During his time the State was several times raided by Red Karens, and was also somewhat wantonly attacked by Nga Kot, the Chief of Hsikip who proposed to annex Nam Hkai. A vigorous resistance, however, was offered, and Nga Dive, the brother of the Nam Hkai Chief, eventually overthrew Nga Kot near Saungye and drove him back to Loi Maw, which at that time was a portion of Hsikip. Damma ruled for forty-five years. He was succeeded by his son, Hkun Pe, who two years after his succession became embroiled with the Chief of Loi Ai That Chief laid claims to the village of Paw Ya on the ground that the Kyaw (headman) had made formal submission to him Nam Hkai took up arms but was defeated, and Loi Ai has ever since retained possession of Pan Ya In 1860, Hkun Ngè, the Myosa of Samkà, rebelled, and allying himself with Loi Lông invaded the Myefat The whole of the Nam Hkai State was laid in ashes, except the Chief's village, and the State was practically deserted for some years

In 1867 Hkun Pe died and was succeeded by his son, Hkun Pan Through intrigue at the Burmese Court Hkun Pan was deposed, and one Nga Meik was sent to administer Nam Hkai as well as Loi Ai and Loi Maw He was succeeded by two other Burmans Nga Thè and Nga Po, but eventually in 1876 Hkun Hmaing a cousin of Hkun Pan was appointed Ngwgunhmu He was confirmed by the British Government, but in 1888 was tried for waging war in British territory, having mixed himself up in the quarrel between the Yawng Hwe and Loi Long States and on the 29th June of that year he was convicted and sentenced to three years rigorous imprisonment Hkun Pan was then reinstated He died on the 5th January 1891 and was succeeded by his brother Hkun Kyè, the present Chief He is forty five years of age and takes little interest in the administration of the State He is married to Ma Kan, a Taungthu of the Loi Lông State but has no issue Three children, however have been adopted by them of whom Maung Paw, aged 16, is the eldest and is now a pupil in the Taunggyi school

NAMHKOK (NANKÔK)

Namhkok was formerly included in the Nawng Wawn State It became a separate State in 1744 A D

The succession of Chiefs of Namhkok has been—

Hkun Myat
Hkun Kaw
Hkun Hkam
Hkun Mawng
Hkun Pok

Hkun Awng Hkam
Hkun Pok
Hkun Hkam
Hkun Hseng
Hkun Myat

Hkun Myat the present Myosa, succeeded in 1900 A D on the death of his father Hkun Hseng He is now fifteen years of age and is a pupil at the school for the son of Shan Chiefs During the minority, the State was administered by his uncle, Hkun Num brother of the late Hkun Hseng Hkun Num married the Myosa's mother, who is also the mother of Hkun Htun Uk, Myosa of the neighbouring State of Nawng Wawn

Hkun Num and the Myosa's mother died on the 10th August 1906 The administration of the State is now in the hands of Hkun Htun Uk, the Nawng Wawn Myosa, half brother of Hkun Myat

NAMMÊKÔN

A Western Karenni State, lying south of the Shan State of Mong Pai As a separate State Nammêkôn is of comparatively recent origin About 40 or 50 years ago the country was part of the sub-State of Ngwedaung (Eastern Karenni) and was given to one Po Bya, a revered Karenni ascetic by the Myosar of Ngwedaung and Bawlakè

The present Myosa of Nammêkôn, Pra To, was elected to succeed Hkun Baw, who was tried for procuring the murder of one of his subjects, and imprisoned in 1902 Pra To is a Red Karen and by religion a spirit worshipper, he was born about 1863, a shrewd man, but tactless in dealing with the neighbouring Chiefs by whom he is not yet well received, he was a Minister of Hkun Baw, his predecessor

The Chief holds a sanad conferring on him the same powers as those held by the other Western Karenni Chiefs

Nammêkôn consists of a flat, well-watered plain, and produces good rice crops There is no teak in the State, but there is a not inconsiderable output of stick lac

The revenue is about Rs 400 and kadaw or nuzzur of Rs 100 is paid annually to Government

NAMTÖK (NANTÖK)

The first Chief of Namtok was Maung Shwe Tha. He was a Kyaw or village head man and was recognized by the Burmese Government in 1771. He was succeeded by his son Maung Yi, who went to Ava and received the Royal patent appointing him Ngwegunhmu. Shortly afterwards, in 1821, the State was overrun and pillaged by Red Karens who burnt the villages and carried off many of the inhabitants as slaves to Karenni. Maung Yi left four sons, the eldest of whom Hkun Taw, became Ngwegunhmu. He was driven out by his brother, Hkwe Pwe, whom, however, the Burmese Government refused to recognize and instead appointed the third brother, Hkun Pwaw, who died shortly afterwards. His son, Hkun Pu, succeeded and he was Ngwegunhmu at the time of the British occupation. He died on the 9th October 1892, and was succeeded by his son, the present Ngwegunhmu, Hkun Maung, who was born in 1866. By his first wife, Me Hpwe deceased, he has a daughter, Hpu Hkan, aged 18. By his second wife, Mi Htun, he has two sons, Hkan I un, the heir apparent, aged 21, and Hkan Lun aged 9. At different periods during the past fifty or sixty years villages now in the possession of Loi Long Samka and Sakoi were wrested from Namtok.

NAWNG PALAI (NAUNGPALE)

A Western Karenni State sometimes called Kyèbögale from the relationship formerly existing between the two Chiefs of Kye bo gyi and Nawng Palai. It was formerly a part of Bawlake State and became detached about 1845, and at the same time as Kye bo gyi became independent.

The present Myosa, Hkun Che, was born in 1857, and was elected to succeed the previous Chief whose adopted daughter he married in 1897. He is a Red Karen, and by religion a spirit worshipper. The State has a bad reputation for cattle theft and the Myosa himself is not considered to be above suspicion. He is a person of no dignity or education.

The Chief holds a sanad conferring the same powers on him as those held by the other Western Karenni Chiefs.

Nawng Palai consists of flat, open country, rice being the only crop of importance. The revenue is roughly Rs. 400. The State pays an annual kadaw or nussur of Rs. 50.

NAWNG WAWN (NAUNG MUN)

Nawng Wawn was at one time a State of much larger size and greater importance than it is now. It comprised Hopong, Namhkok, Wanyin and Hsahtung and probably extended as far south as the Karen country. In 1602 A.D. the ruler is said to have borne the title of Sawbwa. In 1744 A.D. Namhkok was separated from Nawng Wawn and placed under a separate Myosa. Subsequently first Hopong and then Hsahtung were detached and placed under separate rulers known as Ngwegunhmu. In 1862 A.D. Wanyin was also separated, the Wanyin Chief receiving the same title. In 1862 A.D. Hsahtung again fell under the rule of Nawng Wawn, but was subsequently detached for the second time. Under King Thebaw, Nawng Wawn became a Myosa ship and has remained of this standing up to the present time. Hkun Htun Uk, the present Myosa is now in his twenty fourth year. He succeeded in 1894 A.D. on the death of his father Hkun Wa, and assumed charge of the State on coming of age in 1902 A.D. Hkun Wa had ruled without intermission since 1870 A.D., having succeeded his father, Hkun Hpu, who died in 1866 A.D. The Chieftancy had remained vacant for four years. Hkun Htun Uk is a half brother of Hkun Myat, the minor Myosa of Namhkok and a nephew of Hkun Hti, the Sawbwa of Mong Pawn. During the minority first Hkun Hpo, an uncle, then Hkun Sai a second cousin acted as administrator. The State is very rich, the Myosa works hard and is doing very well. It is unfortunate that he is constitutionally delicate.

PANGM (PINHIM)

This history has not been preserved, and if it existed would probably be little more than an account of the number of times the State changed hands.

In the time of Bodaw Paya, Maung Hke was the Ngwegunhmu. He was succeeded by his son Maung San Myat, who was succeeded by his son Maung San U, who was succeeded by his son Maung Hkun Yeik. On the death of Hkun Yeik, his brother, Hkun Shwe Daung succeeded in 1870 and held charge of the State till his death in 1901, when he was succeeded by his son, the present Chief, Maung Nyun. He was born in 1871, has been well brought up, and has given satisfaction since he assumed charge.

He is married to the sister of the Chief of Hsamonghkam by whom he has a son, Maung Po Min, aged 18, now a pupil in the school for the sons of Shan Chiefs.

One of the Pangmī Chief's sisters is the Hsamonghkam Chief's chief wife. Another sister is married to the second son of the Kyong Chief.

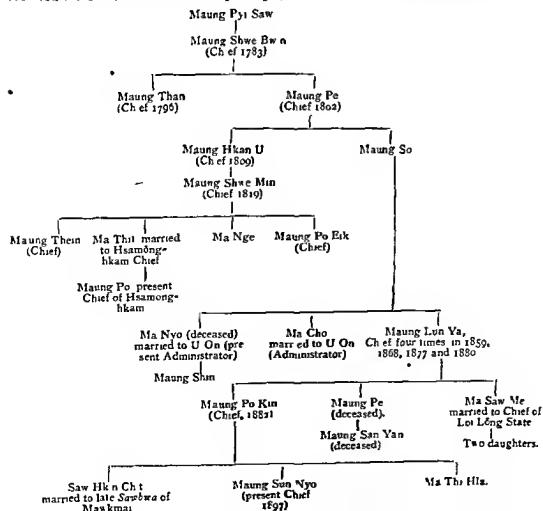

The Pangmī Chief is also related to the Chiefs of Samka, Loi Ai and Loi Maw.

PĀNGTARA (PINDAVA)

Nothing of the history of Pāngtara survives apparently except the legend in connection with the Shweohmin cave, in which there is a very richly gilded pagoda the work of many centuries. The sides and the roof of the cave are crowded with the statues of Buddhas and emblems of the Buddhist faith.

In 1783 Maung Shwe Bwin succeeded his father, Maung Pyi Saw, as Ngwegunhmu of Pāngtara. His descendants and successors are given in the accompanying genealogical tree.

The present Chief Maung Sun Nyo was born on the 15th January 1890 and succeeded his father in 1897. He is at present a pupil in the school for the sons of Shan Chiefs, and during his minority the State is being administered by U On, now in his 85th year. U On also administered the State during the late Chief's minority and for his good work received the T. D. M. distinction in June 1904.

PWELA (PWEHLA)

All the records were burnt several years ago and nothing is available but a bare list of Chiefs. Maung Law Ma became Ngwegunhmu in 1835 on the death of his father, Maung Kyok. In 1863 Maung Po Thein succeeded his brother, Maung Law Ma, and died in 1875 without issue and was succeeded by Maung Ywe, an alien, who married Maung Po Thein's mother. He died in 1886 and was succeeded by his son-in-law, Saw Nyun, who was confirmed by the British Government in 1887. He received the A T M Insignia of Honour in 1893, was made a first class Magistrate in 1901, and was promoted to the rank of Myosa on the 1st January 1903. He represented the Myelat Chiefs on the occasion of the visit of Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales to Rangoon in 1906. He makes an excellent administrator and is much respected by the people of his State. His wife is Ma Thaug, daughter of Maung Nyo, deceased, of the Pangtara State, by whom he has four children—two sons and two daughters. The elder son and heir-apparent, Saw San Hya, is now fourteen years of age and is a pupil in the Taunggyi School for the sons of Shan Chiefs.

Saw Nyun's nephew is the Chief of Maw Nang State. Maung Ywe's second daughter, Ma E Pu, is married to the third son of the Chief of Kyong.

The Pwela Chief has done well in growing English fruits and grafting foreign scions on local stock.

SAKOT (SAGWE)

The present Myosa is unable to give the history of the State. It seems certain that it is a very old State, and was at one time of much larger size and greater importance than it is now.

According to the present Myosa the succession of the Chiefs of this State has been—

Paw Hma ng (about 1183 A D)
Hkun Sai
Bu Hkam
Hkun Pu

Awng Hkam
Hkun Naw
Hkun Kyn
Hkun Htung

Hkun Htung is the present Myosa and succeeded his father, Hkun Kyn, who died in 1878 A D. He was ruling when the British Government annexed Burma, and was confirmed as Myosa of the State by the Chief Commissioner in 1888 A D. He has retained charge ever since and as the Myosa has improved as a ruler the little State which had been much devastated by Karens is now advancing.

The State, though small, is rich in possibilities, when it gains population.

SAMKA (SAGA)

In the year 1636 A D in the reign of King Thalun Mintaya of Ava, Pynnmyabala or Banya Bayan was appointed Myosa of Samka. A nephew, Hkun Lu, subsequently became Myosa. He ruled for some years and on his death his son, Hkun Saing succeeded, and was in turn succeeded by Naw Maing, who was succeeded by his son, Ne Dun, who left no issue and was succeeded by his brother, Hkun Pyu. He was succeeded by his son, Hkun Yè, who died in 1838 A D and Hkun Sun, his grandson, was appointed by the King of Shwebo to succeed. Hkun Sun married a daughter of his grandfather, Hkun Yè, and had issue one son, Hkun Seng Hpu. In 1858 A D the Samka and Mong Sit Myosas had a quarrel and Hkun Sun was dismissed and the Myosa ship was given to his first cousin, Hkun Noi. In 1860 A D Hkun Noi rebelled against the King of Burma and Hkun Sun was reinstated and the King sent troops to uphold Hkun Sun, as the State was in an unsettled condition. Hkun Noi was defeated and retired to Toungoo. Hkun Sun then continued to reign in peace. In 1872 A D King Mindôn sent an order for one hundred men from Samka to go to Hsenwi to protect the silver mines from Kachin raids. As they were not immediately despatched, Hkun Sun was dismissed and his State made over to the Hsenwi Sawbwa. On the 5th November 1873 A D, Hkun Seng Hpu, son of Hkun Sun, was appointed Myosa and ordered to serve the King for one year at Mông Yòk, and in his absence a Burman Maung Pu, was appointed to the charge of Samkā, with the title of Sitkè, while Hkun Seng Hpu was detained by the King in Mandalay. In 1876 A D the inhabitants of Samkā fell out with Maung Pu and killed him, whereupon Hkun Seng Hpu was dismissed and Hkun Noi appointed again. In 1883 A D Hkun Noi died and his son Hkun Pwin succeeded. In 1885 A D Hkun Pwin and the inhabitants fell out and Hkun Pwin left the State, and on the 30th December 1885 A D Hkun Seng Hpu returned and was received as Myosa by the people. When the British Government annexed Burma, he was among the first of the Shan Chiefs to submit and was confirmed as Myosa of the State. He has received the T D M decoration. He was invited to Rangoon on the occasion of the visit to Burma of Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales in 1906. He is a particularly good chief, being kind and strict with his people. He is loyal, and his opinion on all matters connected with the administration of the country is always worth hearing. In 1907 the Myosa was promoted to the dignity and style of Sawbwa.

The State includes the dependency of Pông Mu which was ruled by a Ngwegunhmu who failed to submit to British authority, and as the territory was quite insignificant in size and utterly burnt out, it was assigned to Samkā in 1887.

The State is an exceedingly fertile plain well irrigated by the Nam Hpilu.

WĀNYIN (BANYIN)

In former times Wanyin was included in the Nawng Wawn State from which it was separated in 1826 A D, when it became a distinct State.

In 1862 A D, Wānyin again came under the rule of Nawng Wawn and it was subsequently detached a second time.

The succession of Chiefs since that date has been —

Hkun Hsaw, 1865 A D who received the title of Myosa in 1874 A D, and died in 1893 A D.

Hkun Long his son who died in 1897 A D.

On Hkun Long's death his eldest son Hkun Han, a boy 13 years old was given the sanad and he was placed in the Taunggyi School but he exhibited so bad a disposition and proved so incapable of reformation that his sanad was cancelled in 1906. No sanad has as yet been issued, but Hkun Waik Hkun Long's second son, who is a scholar at the Taunggyi School, is the natural heir to the State.

Hkun Yung an uncle of Hkun Han and Hkun Waik, was appointed Administrator of the State during the minority of Hkun Han. He was removed from his appointment in 1903 for misconduct in harbouring and encouraging a gang of robbers, and Hkun Ung, his half brother was appointed in his place and is giving satisfaction. Hkun Han and Hkun Waik's mother is a niece of the Mong Nai Sawbwa, who adopted her.

YAWNG HWE (NYAUNGYWE)

In the olden times the Shan States were spoken of by the Burmese as the nine cities or countries. Of these Yawng Hwe was one, and the Yawng Hwe Sawbwa claimed thirty-nine States as subordinate to his authority.

The ancient boundaries far overstepped the limits of the present State and practically the Southern Shan States were at one time divided between Yawng Hwe and Mong Nai, the line between the two principalities being the Nan Pawa.

The Sawbwa of Yawng Hwe claims descent from King Beinnakayi of Tagaung in whose reign Tagaung was sacked by the Chinese, and its inhabitants immigrated to the Shan States. The first Sawbwa is said to have built at this time a large city which was called Kawthanbimyo (Kaw Hsam Hpi) on a site north of the present town of Yawng Hwe.

Here many succeeding Sawbwas reigned until the Chinese came down in the reign of King Alaung sithu, grandson of Nara Hta of Pagan and destroyed the city. After the destruction of Kawthanmyio two towns were established on the lake, Mong Hsaw (Maing Thauk) and Thalè U. It is said that the area of the lake was then much smaller than it is now and at the present time the remains of houseposts can be seen far below the surface of the water and are evidence of an ancient Eindaw ywa.

The present town of Yawng Hwe was established in 721 B E (1359 A D) during the time of the Chief Si Hseng Hpa. The greater part of the town was destroyed by fire in March 1908. In this reign two brothers from Tavoy came and took service under him; they were called Nga Taung and Nga Naung. With the permission and assistance of the Sawbwa the two brothers went to Tavoy and brought up thirty six households to Yawng Hwe. These people originally settled at Nanthe, south of Yawng Hwe, and gradually spread southwards until they peopled almost the entire Lake district. Their descendants are the Inthas who now comprise about forty per cent of the entire population.

The following Chiefs succeeded Si Hseng Hpa —

	B E	A D
Hso Seng Hpa . . .	796	1434
Hso Hung Hpa	839	1477
Hso Yaw Hpa	880	1518
Sao Maw Hkam	919	1557
Kang Ham Hpa . . .	936	1574

Kang Ham Hpa died without male issue and was succeeded by his grandson, Sao Htoi, in 970 B E (1608 A D) the State being managed during the minority of the latter by a lady, Nang Nung Pe.

Sao Htoi was succeeded by his son Sao Sao Hkam, in 977 B E (1615 A D) who died in the same year the administration of the State again reverting to Nang Nung Pe.

On Nang Nung Pe's death the State was without a ruler for about twelve years when it was found that a grandson of a former Sawbwa lived in Mong Mit his mother being a daughter of that house. This boy Sao Awng Hkam was called to the Sawbwa ship at the age of fourteen years. Difficulties in the succession did not occur until the annexation of Upper Burma.

The following Chiefs succeeded Sao Awng Hkam —

Sao Naw Hpa . . .	1220	1858
Sao Mawng . . .	1226	1864

With the accession of Sao Mawng authentic detailed history begins. Sao Mawng lost his father by assassination when he was five years old. He was taken to Mandalay with his mother and adopted by King Mindon and lived in the palace. Sao Naw Hpa was regent during Sao Mawng's minority. About twelve years after Sao Mawng's adoption by King Mindon Sao Naw Hpa became involved in a conspiracy with the Einshe Min and the King sent an army of a thousand men to Yawng Hwe. After three or four months' fighting Sao Naw Hpa was defeated but escaped to Toungoo, thence he went to Rangoon and afterwards joined the Myingun Prince with whom he went to Karenni. He later went to Siam and is believed to have died in that country.

Sao Mawng then assumed charge of the Yawng Hwe State on the 8th Labyr gyaw of Thadingyut, 1226 B E (23rd October 1864). He was seventeen years of age, and Yawng Hwe appears to have been free from trouble till 1885 A D, when during his absence on a visit to the King at Mandalay, his cousin, Saw Chit Su, collected men and attached the State. On Sao Mawng's return an engagement took place at a place called Loi Htan east of Yawng Hwe town in which Sao Mawng was wounded in both legs. He retired with his forces to Yawng Hwe town and later in the day to Kyaw Htat.

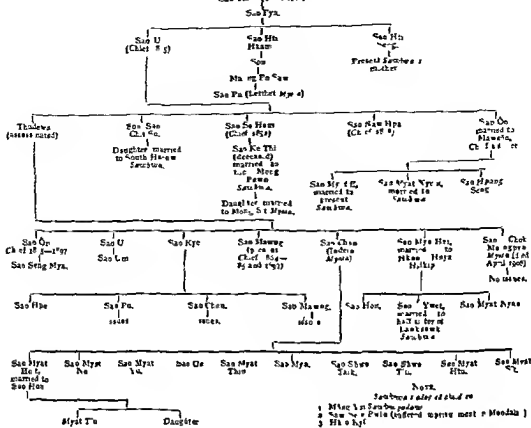

From here he sent for Sao Ôn, an elder brother, then Myosa of Ang Teng (Indein), and went down to Burma to recover from his wounds, leaving Sao Ôn to get back the State from Saw Chit Su and manage affairs generally till his return. Sao Ôn found no difficulty in ousting Sao Chit Su and took charge of the State.

This happened immediately after the occupation of Mandalay by the British. Sao Chit Su had been a supporter of the Limbin Prince, and Sao Ôn by driving out Sao Chit Su, was thus thrown into direct opposition to the Limbin Prince, and in a short time the whole force of the Confederacy banded together to drive him out. In the meantime Sao Ôn overlooked his promise to restore the State to Sao Mawng on the latter being cured of his wounds. He assumed the Sawbwa ship and appealed to the British for protection against the Limbin Confederacy. To support him and to establish authority in the Shan States a force was assembled at Hlaingdet in December 1886, which ultimately marched into Yawng Hwe on the 10th February 1887, meeting with little opposition. Sao Ôn, being in possession of the State, was recognized by the British Government as Sawbwa of Yawng Hwe, and Sao Mawng was granted a pension. Sao Ôn ruled till his death on the 6th May 1897. Sao Mawng then returned to his own and was recognised as Sawbwa and he still rules the State. The Inthas, who form a large portion of the population of the State, gave Sao Mawng some little trouble in 1904 and 1905 as they objected to his progressive ideas and his views regarding taxation, some of them resent his rule as the old Indengôn Ngwe gunhmu ship was independent until Sao Chit Su led them against Yawng Hwe State, when they were defeated and their petty State annexed.

In 1905 the State revenue arrangements were thoroughly examined by the Superintendent who drew up a revenue scheme abolishing certain forms of taxation and basing all taxes on sounder principles. This scheme which was approved by Government was accepted by the Sawbwa and issued in his name, and its immediate result was to appease the people who seem now to be contented.

Sao Mawng is a strict Buddhist, was born in 1848 and has no children. He possesses the gold Delhi medal, and has received the title of K S M and Insignia of the C I E. In 1906 he received the honour of a salute of nine guns. He was invited to Rangoon in January 1906 to meet Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales, and when Their Royal Highnesses visited Mandalay he sent two Intha crews to compete in the Regatta. He is clever and has great knowledge of the country and its customs, he has grown tolerant and is a most valued Chief.

Sao Van 1 (Chief 175)

King Narapati Sithu is said to have visited Ye Ngan in his Sithya hpaung, or magic large, and to have halted for several days at the site of the present capital. This spot was thereupon called Yatngan which has been softened down to Ye Ngan.

Incidental allusions point to the fact that war and violence were seldom absent from Ye Ngan, but no history has been preserved. Standing as it does on the threshold of the Shan States, violence was natural. In 1860 Maung Htun Lin, who had been appointed Ngwegunhmu a few years before, was dismissed from his appointment. He had greatly oppressed the people, who rose in rebellion against him, and the Myelat Hun deported him to Bhamo. After some years of exile he died at Naga on his way back to the State. Maung Nyo Sen was appointed Ngwegunhmu in his place in 1861, and in 1884 was raised to the rank of Mjosa, which title he held until his death in 1886, when he was murdered by the Anauk Windaw Hmu, U Paung. There was then no central authority to determine the succession and the deceased Mjosa's son, Maung Thu Daw, was a child of eight years. His step mother, Mi Thaug, remained in charge of the State for ten days and then fled to Pangtara before the attacks of the Tammbaung Heng Yin Yo and his brother in law Maung Chit Su, who held the State for twenty five days and then fled before Maung On Bin, an elderly cousin of Maung Thu Daw. Maung On Bin was confirmed as administrator for the Ngwegunhmu. Maung Thu Daw on the British occupation, but was driven out by Bo Nga Lan, a daoint leader from Burma, with whom was associated a local Bo named U Gya, maternal grandfather of the little Ngwegunhmu. These two were arrested by the Superintendent of the Southern Shan States and Maung On Bin reinstalled. Bo Nga Lan escaped from custody but after disturbing the Myelat for over a year was surrounded and killed by Military Police under Captain V. C. Tonnochy at Pwela in 1890. Since then the State has been quiet almost for the first time in its history. Maung Thu Daw came of age and was placed in charge of the State as Ngwegunhmu in May 1898. He was born on the 7th February 1878. His chief wife is the late Ma i Nang Mjosa's eldest daughter, by whom he has three sons and two daughters.

BASTAR

This family is said to have been driven from Warangal in the Deccan by the encroachments of the Muhammadan power early in the fourteenth century. Disputes arose between the Raja of Bastar and the neighbouring Chief of Jaipur, and as Bastar failed in its payment of tribute to Nagpur, that Government took possession of the pargana of Kotpar and subsequently granted it to Jaipur, subject to the obligation of furnishing military aid against Bastar when required. On the occasion of a revision of the settlement of the Chhattisgarh District, the Bastar Chief bound himself to pay an annual tribute of 5 000 Nagpur rupees, subject to a remission of Rs 1,000 so long as the Kotpar Pargana should injustice committed on the people by the then Diwan. In 1883 the Chief Commissioner appointed Lal Kalandar Singh, a cousin of the Raja, to be Diwan, assisted by a selected officer of Government. This arrangement was sanctioned by the Government of India but eventually broke down owing to the incompetence as Diwan of Lal Kalandar Singh. In 1886 an Extra Assistant Commissioner, selected by the Chief Commissioner, was appointed by the Raja as his Diwan to administer the State. The State remains under Government management. A suggestion was put forward in 1895 for the appointment of a European officer of standing and experience to administer the State. This was approved, and Colonel J. L. Fagan (late of the Bombay Staff Corps) was appointed as Administrator of Bastar. He joined his appointment on the 1st January 1896, and was succeeded in March 1899 by Mr G. W. Gayer, District Superintendent of Police, who gave over charge on the 1st July 1903 to an Extra Assistant Commissioner who was appointed Superintendent.

The present Chief, Raja Rudra Pratab Deo, was born in 1885 and succeeded to the gadi on the 29th July 1891, on the death of his father Raja Bhairam Deo. He is a Chandrabansi Kshatri and has the hereditary title of Raja. He was educated at the Rajkumar College. At the close of 1901 he was married to a daughter of the late Feudatory Chief of Damra, but has no issue. He was installed in January 1908. Lal Kalandar Singh, aged 45 years, uncle of the Feudatory Chief, is the heir-presumptive.

No military force is maintained in the State, and the Chief is not entitled to a salute.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Local Administration. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—

My esteemed friend—I remain your sincere friend.

CHANGBHAKHAR

This State first came under the authority of the British Government in 1819, when it was a feudal dependency of the Koria State. In 1849 separate settlement was made. The ruling family is said to have been descended from an illegitimate branch of the Koria family.

2 The present Chief, Bhaiya Mahabir Singh Deo, was born in 1879. He succeeded to the State while he was a minor on the death of his uncle, Bhaiya Balbhadar Singh, in September 1896. During his minority Lal Bajrang Singh, a member of the family, was in charge of the State, but his administration was not satisfactory. The present Chief took charge of the State in July 1900 soon after attaining majority on the 15th April of that year.

The State is in a very backward condition, and owing to its remoteness rapid improvement can hardly be expected. However, some improvement has been made but the chief obstacle to progress is the want of funds. Lal Jagdishwar Prasad Singh Deo, aged 10 years, son of the Chief, is the heir-apparent.

3 No military force is maintained in the State, and the Chief is not entitled to a salute.

The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—"My esteemed friend—I remain your sincere friend."

CHHUKHIADAN (KONDKA)

The Chiefship was conferred on Rup Das in 1750 by Madhoji Bhonsla. Mahant Sham Kishor Das was the Chief in 1892. He was born in 1838 and succeeded to the gadi in December 1887 after having been for some years previously the virtual ruler of the State. About the time of his father's death it was brought to light that Mahant Sham Kishor Das had committed a gross act of injustice by threatening certain malguzars with eviction from their villages, and as it was found that the affairs of the administration were grossly mismanaged, the Chief was called on to abolish the nazarana system. Mahant Sham Kishor Das died in December 1896. In 1897 the administration of the State was placed in the hands of Mahant Radha Ballabh Das, eldest son of Mahant Sham Kishor Das, who was to be assisted by an approved Diwan with a view to carrying out the necessary reforms in the State. A Tahsildar of approved service was appointed Diwan under the supervision of the Political Agent.

Mahant Radha Ballabh Das died from arsenic poisoning in 1898. He was succeeded by his eldest son, Mahant Digbijai Jugul Kishor Das, who died on the 30th September 1903 and was succeeded by his next brother, the present Chief, Mahant Bhudhar Kishor Das, who was born in April 1891. He is receiving his education at the Rajkumar College, Raipur, and is reported to be getting on well with his studies. The State is under the management of Government owing to the minority of the Chief. Tikamdas, aged 11 years, brother of the minor Chief, is the heir presumptive.

No military force is maintained in the State, and the Chief is not entitled to a salute.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Local Administration. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows —
"My esteemed friend—I remain your sincere friend."

JASHPUR

This State was ceded to the British Government by the provisional agreement concluded with Madhoji Bhonsla in 1818. It was originally treated as a feudal dependency of Surguja, but it has been long dealt with as a separate State except for the fact that it still pays tribute through Surguja. The ruling Chief is descended from a Kharwar family, but this family has now virtually been admitted into the caste of Rajput, forming connections by marriage with Rajput families.

2 The late Chief of the State, Raja Pratap Narain Singh Deo Bahadur, C.I.E., who had administered the affairs of his State with marked ability for over 50 years, succumbed to an attack of small pox in April 1900 and the succession of his eldest son, under the name and title of Raja Bishnu Prasad Singh Deo, the present Chief, who was born in 1864, was recognized by the Government of India in September 1900, subject to his retaining for a period of two years a Diwan to be selected by Government. This condition was considered indispensable owing to certain grave suspicions attaching to his conduct in connection with the mysterious disappearance of certain persons. In accordance with this condition Mr. G. R. K. Meares, the late District Superintendent of Police, Ranchi, was appointed Diwan. Since January 1903, the State has been placed under the direct management of the Chief himself, whose management of the affairs of the State generally is satisfactory. The State is in a financially strong position. The Chief has a son, named Deo Saran Singh Deo, aged 16 years, who is the heir apparent. There are some roads in the State and trade is fairly brisk.

3 The Korwas a wild hill tribe gave considerable trouble some years ago in this State but the revolt was ably suppressed by the late Raja and the estate of the Korwa leader was confiscated and now forms part of the Chief's khalsa property.

4 There is no separate military force in the State, but the tenures are of feudal nature. The Chief is not entitled to a salute.

The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — "My esteemed friend—I remain your sincere friend."

KANKER

This State was held from the Marathas on the condition of furnishing 500 men for the service of the Government, free of expense, whenever required to do so. In 1809 the then Chief was deprived of Kanker, but it was in 1818 restored to him under the authority of the British Resident at Nagpur on payment of an annual tribute of Rs 500. This was remitted in 1823 and the Chief therefore now pays no tribute.

Maharajadhiraja Narhari Deo was born in 1850 and succeeded to the gadi in 1853. In 1889 his mind became unhinged and a Diwan was in 1890 appointed to administer the State. In 1892 the State was taken under management, but in 1894, with the sanction of the Government of India it was restored, subject to the condition that the Chief should consult the Political Agent as to his budget. The Chief died on the 9th May 1903, leaving no issue and was succeeded by his nephew Lal Kamal Deo with the hereditary title of Maharajadhiraja. He was born in 1873. He has no issue nor has he adopted a son. The State is managed by its own Chief. The administration of the State is efficiently performed and its financial position is sound. Lal Kalandar Singh of Bastar, cousin of the Chief, aged 45 years is the heir presumptive.

There is no military force maintained in the State, and the Chief is not entitled to a salute

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Local Administration. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows —

KAWARDHA

Kawardha is held by a branch of the Pandaria family, and was conferred for military services by Raghoji Bhonsla. In 1863 Bahadur Singh was recognized as Chief of Kawardha, but died shortly afterwards, when he was succeeded by his nephew Rajpal Singh, who was born in 1849.

In consequence of the maladministration of Rajpal Singh, the Government of India in 1884 sanctioned his removal from power for a period of five years, the arrangements being subject to reconsideration at the expiration of that time. In November 1889 the Government of India sanctioned the continuance of the same arrangements for a further period of five years, the State being administered by an Extra Assistant Commissioner, who was called Superintendent, assisted by a Tahsildar.

The present Chief, Thakur Jadunath Singh alias Kritpal Singh was born in 1887 and succeeded to the gadi on 1st December 1891 on the death of his uncle and adoptive father Rajpal Singh. The State was formerly in financial difficulties which were accentuated by the effects of the two famines of 1897 and 1900, but its position is now assured. The Chief was educated at the Rajkumar College, Raipur. In 1905 he was married to a daughter of Thakur Bhanu Pratah Singh, brother of the zamindar of Phuljhar, which was then in the Sambhalpur District. A son was born to him at Pandaria on the 9th May 1906 but died suddenly on the 29th July 1906 at Raipur. He was installed on the 30th November 1908.

The tribute originally fixed at Rs. 2,000 was subsequently more than quadrupled by the Bhonsla family, it now stands at Rs. 30,000.

No military force is maintained in the State, and the Chief is not entitled to a salute.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Local Administration. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows —
 "My esteemed friend—I remain your sincere friend"

KhAIRAGARH

The family of the Khairagarh Chief is a branch of the old Gond dynasty of Mandla. In 1755 the Marathas levied a tribute of 1,500 Nagpur rupees, and this amount was at various times raised till on the lapse of the Nagpur State to the British Government in 1854 it stood at nearly 39,000 Company's rupees. In 1867 the tribute was again revised and fixed at Rs. 47,000 per annum for a period of 20 years. It now stands at Rs. 80,000. In 1870, owing to his tyranny and oppression, the ruling Chief, Lal Fateh Singh, was deprived of civil and criminal jurisdiction. In 1873 his indebtedness and continued maladministration compelled the Government of India to deprive him of the fiscal management also and to assume the entire administration of the State. Lal Fateh Singh died in 1874, and the State remained under direct management till 1883, when it was restored to his eldest son, Lal Umrao Singh, alias Kanbaya Lal, who died on the 6th November 1890, when his son the late Chief Raja Kamal Narayan Singh, who was born in 1871, succeeded to the gadi. His succession was recognized by the Government of India in February 1891, and he was installed on the 26th July 1892. The title of Raja was conferred on this Chief as a personal distinction on the 1st January 1896 and was declared to be hereditary on the 1st January 1898. He died on 7th October 1908, when his son, Lal Bahadur Singh, aged 20 years, succeeded to the gadi. Lal Bahadur Singh was educated at the Rajkumar College, Raipur. He was married to the daughter of Rana Padma Jang Bahadur of Nepal in December 1905.

The State has been temporarily taken under the management of Government and Rai Sahib Sundar Lal Extra-Assistant Commissioner, has been appointed Superintendent. The late Diwan, Khan Bahadur Maulvi Muhammad Hossain, who had served the State for a long period, died on 24th November 1908, shortly after the death of the late Chief.

The late Raja was present at the Coronation Durbar held at Delhi in January 1903, and subsequently received a gold Delhi Durbar medal

No military force is maintained in the State, and the Chief is not entitled to a salute

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Local Administration. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows —
‘ My esteemed friend—I remain your sincere friend ’

KOREA

The Korea family call themselves Chauhan Rajputs and profess to trace back their descent in the direct line to Dhanrel Singh, a Chief of the Chauhan clan, who conquered Korea several centuries ago. The State was ceded to the British Government under the provisional agreement concluded with Madhoji Bhonsla in 1818. In early times there had been some indefinite feudal relations with the State of Sirguja, but these were ignored from the first by the British Government.

2 The late Chief, Raja Pran Singh Deo and his two sons died of small pox in July 1897, and the State was reported to have become an escheat to Government. Pending the decision of the question, the State was temporarily placed under the management of a leading zamindar for nearly two years. The question was finally decided in favour of the present Chief, Raja Sheo Mangal Singh Deo, whose claim to be a distant cousin of the late Chief was eventually admitted by Government. He was born in 1874. He is intelligent but is lacking in strength of character. The finances of the State were not very satisfactory. A Government officer has been appointed Diwan and the financial position has somewhat improved. Rama Ramani Mani Prasad Singh Deo, aged 8 years, son of the Chief, is the heir apparent.

3 There is no separate military force in this State, but the subordinate tenures are of a feudal nature. The Chief is not entitled to a salute.

The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — ‘ My esteemed friend—I remain your sincere friend ’

MAKRAI

This petty Chiefship struggled with varied fortune against the Peshwa Sindhus and the Pindaris, and was eventually taken under British protection. In 1858 the Chief was placed under the control of the Deputy Commissioner, Hoshangabad, as Political Agent. Up to 1863 the Chief received Rs 2,243 14 5 annually as compensation for the loss of transit duties, the levy of which was entirely abolished in 1847. This payment was commuted in 1863 for the lump sum of Rs 23,000 and no payment is now made in lieu of transit duties.

The present Chief, Raja Lachu Shah, alias Bharat Shah is an adopted son. He was born in 1846 and succeeded to the gadi in 1866 on the death of his father. His son Shriman Rajkumar Chhatralal Sa, who was born on the 4th March 1876, is the heir-apparent.

Towards the end of 1890 the management of the State was taken out of his hands for a period of three years on account of gross mismanagement, and a Diwan was appointed to conduct the administration of the State under the superintendence of the Deputy Commissioner of Hoshangabad. It is now managed by its own Chief aided by a Diwan. The administration of the State is satisfactory and its financial position is sound.

No military force is maintained in the State, and the Chief is not entitled to a salute.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Local Administration. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows —
‘ My esteemed friend—I remain your sincere friend ’

NANDGAON

The country comprised in the Nandgaon Chiefship was first conferred in 1723 by Raghoji Bhonsla on a religious devotee named Ram Das, who was the family priest of the ruler.

Celibacy being one of the observances of the sect to which Ram Das belonged the succession was maintained by adoption. The Chiefs however do not now maintain the observance of celibacy. The late Chief, Ghasi Das, was himself married at a somewhat advanced time of life, and following the Hindu custom married his son at an early age. On a representation made by him in 1879, the Government of India assured him that marriage would not be allowed to invalidate the succession.

Ghasi Das died in November 1883 and was succeeded by his son Balram Das, who was born in 1866. The administration of the State, until Balram Das attained the age of 21, was entrusted to his mother aided by a Diwan. In 1887 the Chief received the title of Raja as a personal distinction. In 1888 owing to the lax supervision of the Diwan and the general remissness of the State Police in dealing with crime, the arrangements sanctioned in 1884 were suspended and an officer of the standing of an Extra-Assistant Commissioner was appointed as Diwan to conduct the administration of the State in the name of the young Chief, Raja Balram Das, till he should prove himself capable of managing its affairs. Raja Balram Das died in 1897.

The present Chief, Mahant Rajendra Das, was born in 1895 and succeeded to the gadi on the 25th August 1897, on the death of his father, Raja Balram Das. He is being educated at the Rajkumar College, Raipur. The State is under the management of Government. The Superintendent, Khan Bahadur Kutub ud din, has greatly improved the position of the State financially and otherwise.

There is no military force maintained in the State, and the Chief is not entitled to a salute.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Local Administration. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—

My esteemed friend—I remain your sincere friend

RAIGARH

The zamindari of Bargarh was in 1833 conferred on the Chief of Raigarh, Deonath Singh its former holder having been convicted of rebellion. Deonath Singh rendered good service in 1847, died in 1862 and was succeeded by his son, Ghansham Singh. Owing to the Chief's maladministration, the State was in 1885 taken under Government management. Ghansham Singh died on the 31st January 1890 and was succeeded by his son the present Chief, Raja Bhup Deo Singh, who was born in 1869.

The State is at present managed by its own Chief. The administration of the State is efficiently maintained and the financial position of the State is sound. The Raja is an intelligent man and takes considerable interest in the administration of his State. His son Lal Nathbar Singh, who was born on the 14th March 1891, is the heir apparent.

The Raja was present at the Coronation Durbar held at Delhi in January 1903 and subsequently received a gold Delhi Durbar medal.

No military force is maintained in the State, and the Raja is not entitled to a salute.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Local Administration. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—

My esteemed friend—I remain your sincere friend

SAKTI

This State was formerly held as a tributary to the Maharaja of Sambalpur. The late Chief, Raja Ranjit Singh, who died last year, was born in 1836. He was, however, deprived of all power in 1875 for gross oppression and attempts to support false representations by means of forged documents, and the management of the State was assumed by the British Government. In February 1892 the Government of India sanctioned the installation of Rup Narayan Singh his elder son as Chief of Sakti, and the appointment of a Tahsildar as Diwan of the State.

The present Chief, Raja Rup Narayan Singh, was born in 1856 and succeeded to the gadi on the 26th July 1892. The State is at present managed by him. Lal Liladhar Singh, nephew of the Feudatory Chief, aged 17 years, is the heir apparent. He is being educated at the Rajkumar College at Raipur and is reported to be making good progress.

This State suffered severely in the famine of 1900. Owing to mismanagement by the Chief the affairs of the State fell into disorder, and as an alternative to Government management he was obliged to appoint a Diwan selected by the Chief Commissioner and to entrust a very large share of the administration to him. There has since been a marked improvement in the several branches of the administration of the State, and the financial position of the State, owing to better supervision, is now established on a sound basis.

There is no military force maintained in the State and the Chief is not entitled to a salute.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Local Administration. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—
“My esteemed friend—I remain your sincere friend”

SARANGARH

Sarangarh, at the time of its cession by the Marathas to the British Government formed one of the Sambalpur group of the Garhjat States.

In 1873 gross mismanagement was found to exist in this State. The ryots were oppressed, revenues were misappropriated, fraud and injustice prevailed and the young Chief, Raja Bhawan Pratab Singh, had been allowed to grow up without education. Temporary management of the State during his minority was accordingly assumed by the British Government. Raja Bhawan Pratab Singh died in September 1889 and was succeeded by Lal Raghubar Singh.

The present Chief, Raja Jawahir Singh, was born in 1888 and succeeded to the gadi on the death of his father, Lal Raghubar Singh, on the 5th August 1890. He was educated at the Rajkumar College Raipur, which he left in September 1906. On the 4th March 1907 he married a daughter of the zamindar of Khargawan in the Korea State. The State is at present administered by a Superintendent under the control of the Political Agent. This State suffered severely from the effects of famine in 1897 and 1900 but it has now recovered and is in a fairly prosperous condition. The financial condition of the State is sound.

There is no military force maintained in the State and the Chief is not entitled to a salute.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Local Administration. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—
“My esteemed friend—I remain your sincere friend”

SIRGUJA

The ruling family are said to be descended from the Raksel Rajas of Palamau and call themselves Raksel Rajputs. In 1818 the State was ceded to the British Government under the provisional agreement concluded with Madhopi Bhonsla and Captain H. Sincock. He was appointed Superintendent of the affairs of Sirguja. When order was restored, Lal Amar Singh, grandfather of the present Chief, was declared Raja and in March 1826 was invested with the title of Maharaja. The present Chief Maharaja Bahadur Raghunath Saran Singh Deo, was born in 1862 and succeeded to the gadi while still a minor on the death of his father, Maharaja Indrajit Singh Deo, in March 1879. Maharaja Indrajit Singh was a lunatic, and his younger brother Raja Bindeswari Prasad Singh Deo Bahadur CSI father of the late Raja of Udaipur was appointed by Government as Sarbarahkar or Manager of the State during Maharaja Indrajit Singh's life time and this arrangement continued during the minority of the present Chief up to March 1876 when Raja Bindeswari Prasad died. The present Chief attained his majority in June 1882 and took over charge of his State. He received the title of Maharaja Bahadur in the year 1895-1896. Unfortunately, while still a youth, the Maharaja had contracted unsteady habits and allowed himself to become a tool in the hands of his principal amils—Lallas from the Gaya District in Behar. To make matters more complicated the administration of the Police and Excise Departments, under the custom formerly prevalent in this and the other Native States, was in the hands of the subordinate zamindars and khorsashdars, each of whom exercised practically independent powers in these matters within the limits of his own estate. These persons headed by the late Raja of Udaipur, who held as khorsashdar some of the best pagans in the State (possession of which had been acquired by his father, Raja Bindeswari Prasad whilst acting as Sarbarahkar), continued to resist all attempts of the Maharaja to bring the administration under a proper central control

2 It was reported that the necessary reform had, however, been effected by the appointment of one Pundit Manik Lal Joshi, Deputy Magistrate Collector in the service of the Government of the United Provinces, as Diwan of the State, and by the transfer on 1st April 1901 of the entire control of the Police and Excise Departments from the subordinate landlords to the Chief of the State. The relation between the Chief and Diwan was not satisfactory from 1901-02, and the Maharaja Bahadur brought certain charges against the Diwan. After enquiry into the conduct of the latter he was removed from the State. The State was managed by the Chief himself from August 1902. Munshi Sheo Charan Lal, Pleader, Allahabad, who was appointed, in 1903, as Assistant to the Maharaja Bahadur, continued to act as such up to the end of the year 1903-1904, when the relations between him and the Chief became very strained, and in consequence the former was removed from the State. The State is now managed by the Chief himself and his administration is reported to be satisfactory. The title of Maharaja Bahadur is a personal distinction. He has a son named Jubraj Ramanuj Saran Singh Deo, aged 15 years, who is the heir-apparent. The name of the capital of the State has been changed from Birsampur to Ambikapur.

3 In this State, the wild Korwa tribes used to be a standing cause of trouble and an armed expedition had to be sent against them in the year 1883. Three or four years ago they again showed signs of unrest by committing continual dacoities and highway robberies in the adjoining district of Palamau. This was especially the case with the portion of these tribes in the khorsosh properties of the Udaipur Raj family, but owing to the Police reform the position is much improved.

4 There is no separate military force in this State, but the subordinate zamindars are of a feudal nature. The Chief is not entitled to a salute.

The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — 'My esteemed friend—I remain your sincere friend.'

UDAIPUR

The ruling family call themselves Raksel Rajputs and they have been in possession of the State since 1860. During the earlier part of the last century the ruling family of the State was a distasteful collateral branch of the Sirguja Chief's family, but about the year 1843 owing to the general mismanagement and the subsequent criminal conduct of the last surviving male heir, Dhuraj Singh, the State became an escheat to Government. Subsequently, as a reward for his good services, the Chiefship was bestowed in 1860, together with the title of Raja Bahadur, upon Lal Bindeswari Prasad Singh Deo the younger son of Maharaja Amar Singh of Sirguja and the father of the late Raja Dharamjit Singh Deo of Udaipur.

2 The late Raja Dharamjit Singh Deo died in December 1900, leaving as his successor the present Chief, Raja Chandra Shekhar Prasad Singh Deo, who was born in 1889. Besides the Udaipur State, the minor Raja is heir to two valuable parganas, Pratapur and Pabarulla, in the Sirguja State, yielding an annual income of about Rs 48,437. These parganas are held as a maintenance grant from the Sirguja Raj family.

3 The State is at present administered by a Government officer under the title of Superintendent. The minor Chief is being educated at the Rajkumar College at Raipur and is reported to be making fair progress in his studies. He is keen on riding and shooting. He was married in the beginning of 1908 to the daughter of the Raja of Champur in the Palamau District in Chota Nagpur. Dharampal Singh Lal, aged 51 years, uncle of the Chief, is the heir-presumptive.

4 No military force is maintained in the State, and the Chief is not entitled to a salute.

The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — 'My esteemed friend—I remain your sincere friend.'

HILL TIPPERA

The State is of great antiquity, and used to comprise a varying area won by conquest in the plains as well as in the hill tract, and at times its armies enlarged its dominions from the Sundarbans in the west to Burma in the east and south and Kamrup in the north.

The military prestige of its Rajas was at its height during the 16th century, but at the beginning of the 17th century the Moguls obtained a footing in the country. In the 18th it was reduced by the Nawab of Murshidabad, and remained thereafter under Muhammadan control.

The Muhammadans, though dominating the whole, actually occupied the plains only, which were parcelled out among the Musalman nobles and placed on the rent-roll under the name of Roshnabad. The British on assuming charge in 1765, took settlement of these leaving the hills independent. The two tracts have since been declared to be what is legally known as an "Impartible Raj" and the Raja for the time being is both a British zamindar and a Ruling Chief. The position has had an anomalous effect on succession to the State, which has from time to time been allowed by the British Government to follow the establishment of a title to the zamindari in the British Courts.

The latest decision* is, however, that the latter have no further jurisdiction than to declare that the ruler selected by the Government for the State is the rightful proprietor of the zamindari.

The Raj family of Tippera, like that of Manipur, belongs to the Indo-Chinese stock, with an admixture of Aryan blood. The Rajas have, however, taken the status of the Kshatriya caste and claim descent from the Lunar race. Their present title Barman means "armour"—a term applicable to all Kshatriyas, and their family name was "Pha" up to 1279 A.D., when Tugral, then Governor of Bengal, conferred on them the appellation to Manikya (Manik), a jewel. The traditions and history of the family are contained in the Rajmala, or State record, an epic in Bengali, said to be the oldest composition in that language in existence. The family has recently intermarried freely with the stock in Manipur. The family lost its hold on the State on the death of Bejoy Manik, who was sent prisoner to Delhi for failing to pay the revenues due to the Mogul and Shamsher Jang, a Musalman, was appointed Governor of Tippera. After the State came under British rule with the Deans of Bengal Krishna Manik was made Raja by the aid of the English in succession to Shamsher Jang.

In 1862, when Ishan Chandra Manikya died, the succession was disputed, but it was eventually decided in 1870 in favour of his brother, Maharaja Bir Chandra Manikya, who rendered assistance to Government in the last Lushai Expedition. Raja Radha Kishore Manikya, 140th of his line, was confirmed in succession to his father Maharaja Bir Chandra Manikya in 1897, at the age of 41 and was formally installed as Raja by the Commissioner of Chittagong on behalf of the Government of Bengal on the 5th March 1897. The Bara Thakur of Hill Tippera submitted a memorial against the order of the Raja appointing his eldest son as Jubaraj but it was rejected by the Government of India. He afterwards brought a civil suit for declaration of his title to the zamindari in succession to the present Raja but it has been rejected on the ground of want of jurisdiction.

Raja Radha Kishore Manikya died on the 12th March 1909 at Benares from injuries received in a motor accident and the Jubaraj Birendra Kishore Deb Burman took charge of the administration. He is a young man of 25 years of age. He is fairly well educated and able to speak and write in English. He was married on 30th November 1907 to a daughter of the late Rana Padam Jung Bahadur, by whom he has one son, Bikram Kishore Deb Barman, born on the 19th August 1908.

Rai Umakanta Das, a Bahadur, retired from the post of Minister in November 1908 and was succeeded by Babu Annada Charan Gupta a Deputy Magistrate.

The zamindari was managed, under the supervision of the Minister, by Babu Prasanna Kumar Das Gupta a Deputy Magistrate and Deputy Collector to the State, who took over charge of the Chakla office at Cumilla on the 24th May 1907.

The administration of both State and zamindari has been a frequent source of anxiety to British officials. In 1871 a Political Agent was appointed to reside at Agartala, the Raja's capital, with the object of protecting British interests on the frontier, which were in special danger from Lushai raids. In 1878 the Political Agency, as a separate post, was abolished, the Magistrate of Tippera being appointed ex officio Political Agent. Since then some improvements have been effected in the State by the adoption of British methods of administration and codes framed on British models, and in the zamindari by a survey and settlement under the Bengal Tenancy Act, which was concluded in 1899. Subordinate offices in the State are chiefly held by Bengalis.

The British Government has no treaty with Tippera, nor does it receive any tribute. A sanad dated the 21st June 1904 was granted to the Raja by the Viceroy settling the question of succession to the State and its appurtenances. Nazarana is taken on succession the position of the Raja having been declared by the Government of India in 1870 to be that of a feudatory. He has his own laws and regulations to administer in Hill Tippera, while he is a zamindar as regards his possessions within the British territories. His position is therefore unique among the Native States.

The present Raja attended the Imperial Darbar held at Delhi on the 1st January 1903 with his father, the late Raja Radha Kishore Manikya. A Gold Delhi Darbar Medal was awarded to the late Raja, and silver medals to the present Raja, then the Jubaraj and to two of the sardars who accompanied them. At the invitation of Government the Raja and the Jubaraj were present at Calcutta at the reception of Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales in January 1906.

Sir Andrew Fraser visited Agartala in July 1904. This was the first occasion on which a Lieutenant Governor of the Province paid a visit to Hill Tippera. At a Darbar held in the palace at Agartala, His Honour presented to His Highness the Raja the sanad mentioned above.

The Raja's younger brother Raj Kumar Brajendra Kishore Deb Barman was admitted into the Imperial Cadet Corps in August 1903, but retired in 1904 from the corps owing to ill health.

Raj Kumar Brajendra Kishore Deb Barman was married on 8th March 1903 to a sister (by a different mother) of the Maharaj Rana of Dholpur at Dholpur.

Her Highness Rani Tulsibati Mahadevi, mother of the present Raja, died on 23rd March 1903.

Arrangements were completed during the year for raising a loan of ten lakhs of rupees for paying off the balance due to the contractors for building the Palace at Agartala and some other debts of the Raja. The zamindaries in the Tippera District are mortgaged as security for the loan, which is to be repaid in a period of ten years.

The Raja is entitled to a salute of 13 guns and to visit the Viceroy but not to have his visit returned. He maintains a local military force of 265 Infantry, rank and file, and 30 armed police.

The highest British authority by whom the Chieftain has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor General. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows:—'My friend—I remain Your Highness's sincere friend.' The crest used is gold.

MANIPUR

Area 8,000 square miles (approximately) of which 7,350 square miles are mountainous and the remainder level land at an elevation of about 2,600 feet above the sea. The total population at the last census was 284,465. The only town is Imphal which contained at the last census 67,093 persons. The town is really only an overgrown village as each house stands in its own compound which is surrounded by a bamboo fence.

There is little doubt that the population of the valley who have now embraced the Hindu religion, are descended from offshoots of the various tribes which inhabit the hills round the valley. The earliest reliable information we have of the country is from a Shan account, quoted by Captain Pemberton dated 777 A.D., describing the visit of Sam-ang a brother of the Pong King, who found the people in a miserable state. Mourang at the south end of the valley was independent of Imphal, the capital of the Meithei. For the next 700 years little is known of what went on but the Meithei Chief consolidated his power and conquered all the other tribes in the valley. In 1475 A.D., Manipur combined with Pong and defeated the Khumbat Chief and absorbed his dominions. Until 1714 the annals of Manipur contain little of interest even to a Manipuri. In that year Pamheiba, afterwards known as Gharib Nawaz, who is stated to have been a Naga boy, accidentally shot his adopted father, Raja Chura Romba, and succeeded him. Hinduism began to be introduced shortly before this King's reign but it made little progress. All Manipuris are now strict Vaishnavs, but Sir J. Johnstone says at least ten per cent have adopted this religion since 1867. They still believe in various spirits of the hills, woods and rivers, whom their forefathers worshipped as the hillmen do now, and each village has its sacred tree or grove where dances are performed and offerings made. Gharib Nawaz made several inroads into Burma but was finally forced to retire. He was murdered by one of his sons, who in turn was expelled by a younger brother. The Burmese now made a series of attacks on Manipur, and the reign of Jai Singh, which lasted till 1798, was a series of flights from the invaders who committed the most frightful cruelties on the inhabitants. Embarkments, stretching for miles through the valley from one eminence to another, bear witness to the Manipuris' unsuccessful attempt to keep back the tide of invasion. Jai Singh called upon the East India Company for help, but the detachment sent to his assistance got no further than Kashipur in Cachar. Jai Singh abdicated and went on a pilgrimage to Nuddia, leaving many sons who for the next 23 years made Manipur miserable by their struggles for the throne. In 1812, with the help of the Burmese, one of the sons named Marjit, seized the throne and held it till 1819 when in consequence of his refusing to pay the promised tribute the Burmese attacked him and nearly depopulated the valley. Marjit and his two brothers Churjit and Gumbhur Singh fled to Cachar, and were well received by the Raja who gave them certain parganas, they usurped the greater part of his dominions, and then fought among themselves till they made Cachar as miserable as they had made Manipur. In 1823, when the first Burmese War broke out and the Burmese invaded Cachar, the East India Company made an alliance with Gumbhur Singh, and a Manipuri contingent which afterwards reached 2000 men, was taken into British pay and, under command of Captain Grant, drove the Burmese not only out of Manipur, but also out of the Kubo valley as far as Kalle. Subsequent negotiations with the King of Burma ended however, in the return of the Kubo valley to Burmese hands on an annual payment of Rs 6270 being made to Manipur as compensation. This payment is still continued. By the Treaty of Yandahoo, Gumbhur Singh was declared independent ruler of the country gained with the assistance of the British Government. Till his death in 1834 he was occupied in coercing to obedience the hill tribes and bringing back the fugitives who had escaped from the Burmese and taken refuge among the hills. On Gumbhur Singh's death his brother Nar Singh, with unusual moderation, placed his nephew Chandra Kirthi Singh on the gadai and declared himself regent during his nephew's minority. Gumbhur Singh's widow, however, in 1844, having failed in a plot to murder Nar Singh, fled to Cachar with the youthful Raja, and Nar Singh then took the throne and held it till his death in 1850. At the commencement of his regency the British Government ceased paying the Manipur contingent. The troops were, however, not only kept up but increased the sepoys being given land in lieu of pay, a system which led to much trouble afterwards. On the death of Nar Singh, Chandra Kirthi Singh proceeded to Manipur and quickly seized the throne, which he held till his death in 1886 in spite of several attempts made by his relatives to eject him. These attacks were only put an end to by the British Government deporting all aspirants to the throne to a safe distance. During his reign Chandra Kirthi Singh twice gave proof of his loyalty to the British power, firstly, by sending troops with Sir J. Johnstone, the Political Agent to the rescue of the beleaguered garrison of Kohima, and secondly, by sending a force with the same officer in 1884-1886 to rescue the Europeans in the Kubo valley, at the outbreak of the last Burmese War. For these services he was rewarded by Her Majesty with the title of K.C.S.I.

The next Maharaja was Sura Chandra, a weak man, who was more occupied with the religious observances than with the governing of his country. On the 23rd September 1890, there was a revolution and the Maharaja took refuge in the Residency and subsequently abdicated and set out for Brindaban, but on reaching Calcutta he applied to be reinstated, saying that he had been misunderstood as regards the abdication. The matter was under consideration till the following spring, when the Chief Commissioner of Assam visited Manipur with an escort of 400 riflemen to announce and enforce the Government of India's order recognising Kula Chandrahaya Singh as Maharaja, but deporting Tikendrajit Singh, his brother, who had been the moving spirit in the revolution. Tikendrajit Singh refused to surrender and an attempt to capture him by force failed, the troops having to retire. The Chief Commissioner accompanied by Colonel Skene, Mr. Grimwood, Lieutenant Simpson, and Mr. Cossins, the Assistant Secretary, entered the fortified enclosure to discuss matters and an informal Darbar was held, but no conclusion was arrived at. The officers started to return, but were set on by an excited crowd, and Mr. Grimwood was mortally wounded. The officers were then taken into the Darbar hall and shortly after led out one by one and beheaded. The escort made its way back to Cachar. For this outrage, those immediately responsible were executed or transported, and the family of Gumbhur Singh was debarred from the throne and the State was declared forfeited, but as an act of mercy was regranted to the present Raja, His Highness Chura Chand Singh, a descendant of Nar Singh. Chura Chand was declared the ruler of Manipur with the title of Raja and a salute of 11 guns. The Political Agent administered the State as Superintendent during the minority of the young Chief. In the meantime His Highness was educated at the Mayo College from 1895-1901, and later joined the Imperial Cadet Corps. Just before the close of the year 1905-1906 he married Ngangbum Ibemacha alias Dhana Manjuri, by whom he has a daughter, born 21st February 1900. In March 1908 His Highness married a second wife, Chingnakbam Shyama Sakhi. By this Rani he has a son born 26th July 1908. In June 1908 His Highness married a third wife Ngangbum Priya Sakhi. Two very important changes were made during the Superintendency. One of these was the abolition of talup, a system of enforced labour, by which the whole Meitei population was divided into four pannahs, which worked for 10 days in rotation, so that every male over sixteen years came on duty for 10 days in every 40. The people of other clans, known as Loi, had to pay tribute and perform all sorts of menial duties for the Raja. This system has been done away with, and no labour is demanded now except for the maintenance of the roads. The other change was the substitution of a regular cash assessment throughout the valley for the old system of revenue payment in kind. Re-survey of the cultivated land in the valley is now being made. Education has made great progress of late, and constant demands for schools are received not only from the Manipuris in the plains, but also from the hill people. On the 15th May 1907, the Superintendency came to an end and the administration of the State was made over to the Raja and the Darbar. The Raja was formally installed on the 5th May 1908. The Lieutenant-Governor of Eastern Bengal and Assam on the 4th February 1908. The administration of the State is now conducted by the Darbar consisting of the Raja as President, a Vice President, who is a member of the Indian Civil Service and not a Manipuri, are lent to the State by the Local Government three ordinary and three additional members, who are all Manipuris. The various departments are in charge of the President, the Vice President, and the three ordinary members. The Vice President takes cognizance of the Hill Tribes living within the State entirely in his own hands and is responsible for all matters of revenue and finance.

The administration of justice is in the hands of the Darbar assisted by the Courts of the Chirap and the Panchayat.

The Darbar is the highest Court in the State. It tries all criminal cases and has beyond the powers of the Chirap, and hears appeals, both criminal and civil, from the orders of that Court. The Darbar may pass sentences of death or imprisonment for life, but sentences of over five years rigorous imprisonment must be reported to the Political Agent, who, if he sees fit, may refer the case to Government for confirmation. Sentences of death require the confirmation of the Local Government.

Eastern Bengal and Assam—Manipur

The Chirap tries all civil cases above Rs 100 in value, and has powers in criminal cases to inflict punishment up to two years' rigorous imprisonment or a fine of Rs 500 or whipping or any two or more of these punishments.

The Panchayat Court tries all disputes of a civil nature not exceeding Rs 100 in value in all criminal offences of a minor degree. The maximum fine the Court can inflict is Rs 100. It can inflict no other kind of punishment.

BANGANAPALLE.

Banganapalle is a small State, originally a jagir, surrounded—except at one point where it touches Cuddapah—by the district of Karnul. Its physical features are of the common Deccan type.

The chiefs of the State are Mussulmans of the Sayyid tribe.

The jagir is said to have been granted to an ancestor of the present Chief by a King of Bijapur at the end of the 17th century. It formed part of the territory ceded to the British by the Nizam under the treaty of Hyderabad in 1800. On the occurrence of disorders in 1831 the Government of Madras interposed and it was resumed in October 1835, but as there had been a sort of understanding with the Nizam that the family in possession should not be ousted it was restored to the nearest heir in 1848.

In 1849 a sanad was granted to the Nawab of the day, confirming the jagir to him free of any demand, with authority, subject to certain conditions, to manage the revenue and the police and to administer civil justice.

In 1862 another sanad, under the hand of Earl Canning, conveyed the promise that the Government would permit and confirm any succession to the State which might be legitimate according to Muhammadan law.

In 1876 on the occasion of the visit of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, the title of Nawab was bestowed on the chief as an hereditary distinction.

On the 1st February 1905 the administration of the State was temporarily assumed by the Government of Madras on the ground that the then Nawab Sayid Fateh Ali C.S.I. had involved himself deeply in debt impoverished the administration disregarded the advice of the Government of Madras and obstructed reforms. Sayid Fateh Ali died on the 21st April 1905. The Administration was conducted by the Government of Madras till the 19th December 1908, when it was handed over to the Nawab Sayid Ghulam Ali. He is 35 years of age and is a good horseman and shot.

The Nawab has no salute and no English style. He is entitled by position to be received by the Viceroy.

The Nawab was granted a private audience by the Prince of Wales when His Royal Highness visited Madras in January 1906.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is His Excellency the Governor of Madras. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — My friend.—With best wishes I remain your sincere friend.

COCHIN

Cochin lies between the district of Malabar on the north and Travancore on the south with the Indian Ocean as its western boundary.

A long series of backwaters, into which the streams descending from the hills in the interior discharge, run parallel with the coast, and the soil is remarkable for fertility.

The family of the Raja claims lineal descent from Cheruman Perumal, a powerful Chieftain of the west coast in the ninth century. Haidar Ali and afterwards Tippu Sultan overran the territories of Cochin in the latter part of the eighteenth century, and this brought about an alliance with the English in 1791 when the Raja agreed to become their tributary. In 1809 a second treaty was concluded under which an annual tribute of two lakhs and three quarters (afterwards reduced to two lakhs) of rupees became payable to the Company.

The military force of Cochin consists of 16 horse, 258 footmen and 22 gunners with 4 cannon for saluting purposes. The duties of this force are of a ceremonial character, but since the withdrawal of British troops from the State in January 1903, the Darbar have organised a special body of police 109 strong, to serve as military police.

The family follows the ancient marumakkatayam or female law of inheritance. The heir apparent bears the courtesy title of 'Elaya Raja'.

The head of the State enjoys the style of "Highness" and a salute of seventeen guns.

The present Raja was born in 1852, he was made a Knight Commander of the Star of India in 1893 and Knight Grand Commander of the same Order on New Year's day, 1903. He is energetic and intelligent and conducts the administration on enlightened principles having lately devoted the boards of the State towards the construction of the Cochin portion of the railway running from Shoranur in the Malabar District of the Madras Presidency to its terminus at Ernakulam in the Cochin State.

The cost of the railway and other enterprises such as a forest tramway and one or two items of extraordinary expenditure have not only absorbed the hoarded surpluses of past years, but have compelled the Darbar to borrow from the Government of India and in the open market. The debts thus incurred amount to Rs. 19.5 lakhs.

Lord Curzon received the Raja in 1900 and paid a return visit.

The Raja was present in Madras in January 1906 during the visit of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. His Royal Highness received a visit from the Raja and paid a return visit.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor General. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—My esteemed friend—I remain, with much consideration, Your Highness's sincere friend. The crest used is gold.

PUDUKKOTTAI

Pudukkottai is a small State, surrounded by the districts of Trichinopoly, Tanjore and Madura, and is mostly plain interspersed here and there with hills surmounted by old forts.

The Chiefs of the State claim to be Sudras and are of the Kallan tribe—the Colleries of writers of the eighteenth century—a clan which formerly levied blackmail in the country which lay between Trichinopoly and Cape Comorin.

Pratapsingh Raja of Tanjore, between 1749—1765, granted to the Chief of the Kallars the fort of Kiranella and the surrounding district and this act was confirmed, on Lord Clive's recommendation by the Court of Directors in recognition of the useful services which the Tondiman, as he was called, had rendered to the English in several wars of the eighteenth century. A yearly tribute of one elephant was required until 1836, when this was formally waived.

Early in the last century, if not before, the Tondiman built his palace at Pudukkottai (it "new fort"), about 15 miles from Kiranella; and as the surrounding village grew in size it became the capital of the State.

The present Raja, Martanda Bhairava Tondiman, who was born in 1875 was entrusted with powers of administration in November 1894. He is fond of field sports, is an excellent shot and bears a good moral character. He visited England in 1898, and was received by Her late Majesty Queen Victoria. He paid a second visit (private) to England in 1900 and again visited Europe in 1903 for the benefit of his health. He paid his fourth visit to Europe in 1906 and returned early in 1908 after an absence of 21 months. He again visited Europe for his health in March 1908 and returned to India in December last, but had once more to leave for Europe in March 1909 for the complete recovery of his health.

The right of the Rajas of Pudukkottai to adopt for purposes of succession was recognized by a sanad under the hand of Earl Canning. They enjoy a salute of eleven guns and the style of "Highness."

Lord Curzon received a visit from the present Raja at Trichinopoly in 1900.

The Raja was received by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales in Madras at the beginning of 1906.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Governor of Madras. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — "Your Highness—I remain, Your Highness's sincere friend."

SANDUR

Sandur lies within the district of Bellary. A cordon of hills surrounds it and much of the State consists of rock and jungle.

The family of the Raja counts back to a Maratha officer in the army of Bijapur—a collateral in descent according to tradition, with the Bhonslas of Satara. The grandson of this officer seized the country from a palegar of the Bedar or hunter tribe, a holder nominally subject to Bijapur, and was subsequently confirmed in it by a grant from Sambhaj, who conferred on him the title of Senapati.

In 1817 Sir Thomas Munro reduced the fort and valley on behalf of the Peshwa, but in the following year they were restored to Siva Rau, and in 1826 they were granted to him and his heirs in perpetuity.

In 1870 the title of 'Raja' was conferred on the Chief as an hereditary distinction.

The present chief of the State was born in 1893. He now gives promise of turning out well and is making progress in his studies. He attended the riding school at Bellary for three months and is a fair rider. He is at present being instructed in Infantry drill. The administration is at present conducted by a Diwan specially appointed for the purpose and closely controlled by the Collector of Bellary in his capacity as ex officio Political Agent. The Raja was married on the 7th June 1908 to Tara Raje, sister of the Chief of Akalkot in the Bombay Presidency. Manganese mining operations on a large scale are now being conducted in the State.

The Raja has no salute and no English style. He is entitled by position to be received by the Viceroy. His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales granted the Raja a private audience in January 1906.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Collector of Bellary. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — 'Salams, Many salams. I am in the enjoyment of sound health and I request you will satisfy me by communicating your welfare (here heg ns subject). Nothing more to be written.'

TRAVANCORE

Travancore, the largest Native State under the political control of the Madras Government, is bounded on the east by the districts of Madura and Tinnevely, on the north by the Native State of Cochin, and on the west and south by the Indian Ocean. It is one of the most picturesque portions of Southern India, containing an extensive hill region, numerous rivers, and succession of backwaters and vast forests.

The Chiefs of the States belong to a Kshatriya family which claims to date from the abdication of the Malabar chieftain Cheruman Perumal, about whose life there is a class of of irreconcilable legends. His rule followed a partial disruption of the ancient Chera kingdom, and at some period one of his vassals appears to have received the southern part of his possessions, embracing what is now Travancore. The old principal town of Tiruvankodu, which gave its name to the country is now but a small village. Passing on to the time of Tippu Sultan—the Travancore prince was the ally of the British during the war with the house of Mysore and in 1795 entered into subsidiary alliance with them receiving a guarantee of protection. His successor contracted still closer relations with the Paramount Power in 1805. The State pays a subsidy of eight lakhs and odd to the British Government. A force, consisting of 60 cavalry, 1442 infantry and 30 artillery men with six guns used for saluting purposes, is maintained by the State. The duties of this force were formerly of a merely ceremonial character but since the withdrawal of British troops from the State in January 1903 a scheme for the conversion of 500 of the number into an efficient military force has been operative.

The present Maharaja Rama Varma was born in 1857 and in 1885 succeeded his uncle. He was created a Knight Grand Commander of the Star of India in 1888 and a Knight Grand Commander of the Indian Empire on New Year's day, 1903. He is of a retiring disposition but has good manners. He pays the closest attention to official correspondence, and does his best to keep himself acquainted with everything that goes on in his territories. The strong conservatism which marks this part of India has in some respects tended to obstruct progress and the State is notoriously Brahman ridden. The administration has, however, for many years past been closely modelled in externals on that of Madras and there has been much to commend in the conduct of it.

A line of railway an extension of the South Indian Railway connecting Tinnevely with Quilon was completed in 1904. The Darbar have underwritten the Secretary of State's guarantee of interest on the debentures for the portion of the line lying in Travancore territory.

The family follows the ancient marumakkatayam or female law of inheritance. A special sanad of 1862 under the hand of Earl Cannock authorises the right of adoption to perpetuate the dynasty. The Darbar availed themselves of the right five years ago when two girls the present Senior and Junior Ranis were adopted. The Senior Rani was married in May 1906 to Rama Varma a nephew of Kerala Varma Valiya Koil Tamburan C.S.I. and the Junior Rani was married to Ravi Varma a member of the Kilimanur family in April 1907. The heir apparent bears the courtesy title of 'Elaya Raja'. At this date (1909) there is no heir male.

The Maharaja enjoys the style of 'Highness' and a salute of nineteen guns to which two guns have been added as a personal distinction.

Lord Curzon was the guest of the present Chief at his capital in 1900.

The Maharaja was invited to Madras on the occasion of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales' visit in January 1907 but was unable to be present owing to illness.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor General. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—'My honoured and valued friend—I desire to express the high consideration which I entertain for Your Highness, and to subscribe myself Your Highness's sincere friend. The crest used is gold Kharita bag Kamkhwab (gold and silk brocade) String (Dini) Nimzar (gold and silk thread).

DUJANA

The founder of the Dujana State was Abdus Samad Khan, a small jagirdar under the Delhi Emperor. He received a high command in the Maratha Army which assisted Lord Lake against Sindhia, and he eventually took service under the General. As a reward for his services he received a large tract of territory, and the title of Nawab Bahadur was conferred upon him. The territory made over to Abdus Samad Khan proved more than he could manage, and he was eventually obliged to resign it, receiving in lieu thereof the smaller tracts of Mehraua and Dujana. The Chiefs hold the State on the conditions that they will be faithful to the British Government and will render military service to the extent of 200 horse when required. Dujana ranks nineteenth in order of precedence amongst Native States in the Punjab. Nawab Muhammad Mumtaz Ali Khan Bahadur, succeeded to the Chiefship in 1879 and died in 1908.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Lieutenant Governor of the Punjab. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows:—"My friend—I remain, Your sincere friend."

KALSIA

The founder of the Kalsia family was Sardar Gurbakhsh Singh, a prominent member of the Kroria Singha confederacy and a companion of the celebrated Sardar Bhagel Singh of Chalaundhi. His son, Jodh Singh, succeeded Bhagel Singh as head of the confederacy and by his great abilities and personal daring he managed to secure the lands adjacent to the Ambala District which form the present State of Kalsia, besides many other tracts which were afterwards lost. Jodh Singh considered himself the equal of the Phulkian Chiefs, and Raja Sahib Singh of Patiala was glad to give his daughter in marriage to his second son and thus secure the alliance of a most troublesome neighbour. ready assistance to the British Government in both the Sikh Wars, and did good service in the Mutiny. It was one of the nine Cis-Sutlej States which was allowed to maintain its independence when the others were reduced after the 1st Sikh War to the status of jagirs. Sardar Lohana Singh was granted a sandak in 1862, securing to him and his successors the privilege of adoption in the event of failure of natural heirs. The Kalsia ruler has full administrative powers, with the exception that capital punishments must be referred for sanction to the Commissioner of Delhi. The late Chief Sardar Ranjit Singh was born on the 20th October 1882 and succeeded his elder brother in 1886. Ruling powers were conferred on him in 1906. Kalsia ranks sixteenth among Native States in the Punjab.

The present Chief, Sardar Ravisher Singh, was born on the 30th October 1902 and succeeded on the death of his father in 1908. During the Sardar's minority the State is managed by a Council consisting of a Sikh President and two members, one a Hindu and the other a Muhammadan. The Council is subject to the supervision of the Commissioner of Delhi.

The State maintains a small military force of 99 men and possesses 2 serviceable guns.

The Chief is entitled to be received by the Viceroy. The late Chief was invited to meet His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at Delhi in December 1905.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Lieutenant Governor of the Punjab. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter as follows:—"My friend—I remain, Your sincere friend."

LOHARU

Loharu is a small semi-independent State under the political control of the Commissioner of Delhi. The Nanabs exercise full criminal and civil jurisdiction over their subjects but sentences of death require the confirmation of the Commissioner of Delhi. The Chief's family is descended from a Bohara Moghal who took service with the Emperor Ahmad Shah and married the daughter of the Governor of Attock. His son, Ahmad Bakhs Khan, entered the service of the Raja of Alwar who employed him as agent to Lord Lake. In recognition of his services Lord Lake granted him a sandak conferring on him a perpetual jagir in the Gurgaon district yielding three lacs of revenue per annum. This grant, which was subject to the supply of 200 horsemen on demand and an exhibition of manifest zeal and attachment to the British Government, was confirmed by the Government of India. Ahmad Bakhsh Khan's son and successor was executed for complicity in the murder of Mr William Fraser, the Resident at Delhi, and part of the Loharu territory was confiscated. Loharu proper was continued to his two brothers, but owing to dissensions the younger was eventually compelled to leave the State. The branch of the family descended from him receives allowances of Rs12,000 per annum from the Nawab of Loharu. The title of Nawab was revived in favour of Ala ud-din Ahmad Khan, the father of the present Chief, by Earl Northbrook in 1874. Nawab Ala ud-din Ahmad Khan was a gentleman of high literary attainments and much liked by all who knew him. A short time before his death he voluntarily agreed to reside at Delhi, leaving the management of the State to his son as his financial affairs had fallen into confusion. Loharu ranks eighteenth in order of precedence amongst Native States in the Punjab.

The present Chief, Nawab Sir Amir ud din Ahmad Khan, Bahadur, K C I E, was born on the 26th January 1860, and succeeded to the Chiefship in 1884. He is an able administrator and a scholar. He was appointed an Additional Member of His Excellency the Governor General's Council in 1895, and was made a K C I E in 1897. He was from October 1899 to October 1901 a Member of the Punjab Legislative Council. The Nawab was appointed Superintendent of the Maler Kotla State in 1893, and administered its affairs with ability till December 1902, when he handed over charge to Ahmad Ali Khan, the heir apparent of the Maler Kotla State, to whom however, he continued to act as adviser until February 1905.

During his absence in Maler Kotla the management of the Loharu State was entrusted by the Nawab to his younger brother, who carried it on successfully. The Nawab is much embarrassed by debt. It was thought politic to aid him to re-establish the financial stability of his State, and a loan of Rs 3,11,000 was obtained for him by Government from the Mandot estate. At the same time the control of the State's income was placed in the hands of the heir apparent, who administers it under the direction of the Commissioner of Delhi. The State is under settlement.

The State has a small local military force of 91 men and 2 serviceable guns.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 9 guns, granted as a personal distinction on the 1st January 1903 and is entitled to be received by the Viceroy. He was amongst the Chiefs of the Punjab States who were invited to meet His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at Delhi in December 1905, but was prevented by illness from attending. He was present at the Chapter of the Indian Orders held at Agra in January 1907.

PATAUDI

Pataudi is a small semi independent State under the political control of the Commissioner of Delhi. The original ancestor of the Pataudi Nawab was an Afghan named Sheikh Pir Mat, who came to India in the time of the Emperor Akbar. A descendant of his, Faiz Talab, took service with the Maratha, but afterwards transferred his allegiance to Shah Alam, Emperor of Delhi, and was employed by Lord Lake against Holkar. He distinguished himself as a brave and loyal soldier, and was granted the Pataudi Ilaka in perpetual jagir by Lord Lake in 1806. The title of Nawab is said to have been conferred on him in the same year. His son, Nawab Muhammad Akbar Ali behaved loyally during the Mutiny. Pataudi ranks seventeenth in order of precedence amongst Native States in the Punjab.

The present Chief, Nawab Muzaffar Ali Khan, Bahadur, was born on the 14th March 1863, and succeeded in 1898, when Nawab Mumtaz Hussain Ali Khan died without issue. During Mumtaz Hussain's life time it was found necessary to deprive him of control over the income and expenditure of the State. The State remains under Government control until the finances have been put upon a proper footing. Certain powers were in 1903 conferred on the Nawab, whose conduct had hitherto proved unsatisfactory, then showed signs of improvement. It was however, found necessary to withdraw these in 1906, as he had proved himself incompetent to exercise them. Munshi Sahibdad Khan, Extra Assistant Commissioner, was appointed Nazim in place of Khan Bahadur Qasim Khan, who died in December 1905. Munshi Sahibdad Khan was succeeded in December 1906 by Mr P L Chandu Lal. Settlement operations are nearing completion and the final Assessment Report has been received by the Commissioner of Delhi.

The Nawabzada of Pataudi, Muhammad Ibrahim Ali Khan, who left the Aitchison College, Lahore, some time ago and was admitted to the Imperial Cadet Corps in July 1906, is now living at Pataudi.

The State has a small local force of 53 men and possesses 5 serviceable guns.

The Chief is entitled to be received by the Viceroy. He was invited to meet His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at Delhi in December 1905.

SIRMUR (NAHAN)

Sirmur or Nahan ranks first among the Simla Hill States, and sixth among Native States in the Punjab, the rulers of Mandi and Sirmur being regarded as of equal rank. The ruling family claims descent from the Jaisalmer house in Rajputana, and has been in possession of the State since A D 1095. The country was conquered by the Gurkhas, but, on their expulsion by the British, the State was granted to Fateh Prakash, the eldest son of the Ruling Chief, who was set aside on account of his profligacy and imbecility.

The present Chief, His Highness Raja Sir Surender Bikram Prakash, KCSI, was born on the 14th November 1867, and succeeded to the gadi with full powers in October 1898 on the death of his father, His Highness Raja Shamsher Prakash Bahadur, GCSI. The late Chief rendered loyal services during the Mutiny of 1857 in recognition of which he received a dress of honour together with a salute of 7 guns, which was raised to 11 in 1867, and again to 13 in 1886 on the last occasion as a personal distinction. The present Raja for some years took a prominent part in the administration of the State under the direction of the late ruler, and has proved a worthy successor of his father. He was appointed a Knight Commander of the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India on the 9th November 1901, and is a Member of the Imperial Legislative Council. His Highness was invested with unrestricted power to pass sentence of death upon his subjects in December 1906, as a personal mark of distinction.

The political control of the State was transferred from the Superintendent, Hill States Simla, to the Commissioner of Delhi in 1896 on the application of the Raja. The administration of the State by the Raja has been uniformly well reported on.

The State maintains a company of Sappers numbering 103 for Imperial Service. Besides this, it has a local force of 31 cavalry, 234 infantry, and 4 serviceable guns. It furnished a contingent for service in Afghanistan and offered aid in Egypt.

Lord Dufferin paid a visit to the late Chief at his capital in the autumn of 1885. The Chief enjoys a salute of 11 guns, and is entitled to be received and visited by the Viceroy.

His Highness the Raja was invited to meet His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at Delhi in December 1905. He was granted an interview with His Excellency Lord Minto in October 1906.

FARIDKOT.

The Faridkot Rajas are sprung from the same stock as the Phulkian Chiefs, having a common ancestor in Berar, more remote by twelve generations than the celebrated Phul Chaudhri Kapura founded the Faridkot house in the middle of the sixteenth century. Sardar Hamir Singh, grandson of Kapura, became independent a century later, having added considerably to the family possessions. Maharaja Ranjit Singh took possession of the State in 1809, but was forced to relinquish it with his other Cis Sutlej possessions by the British Government. For services rendered during the First Sikh War the Faridkot Chief, Sardar Pahar Singh, obtained the title of Raja and a grant of territory. His son rendered good service during the Mutiny. Faridkot ranks thirteenth in order of precedence amongst the Native States of the Punjab.

Raja Balbir Singh Bahadur, was born on the 30th August 1869 and succeeded to the gadi in 1893 on the death of his father, Raja Bikram Singh. As a condition of his succession he agreed to submit to the control of the Commissioner of Jullundur for five years in certain matters, such as appointments to the chief offices of the State. This step was necessary as his previous conduct had not been such as to inspire any confidence in his personal capacity to conduct the administration without such assistance. His administration was not at first satisfactory. Some improvement however in the administration of the State was reported in 1900, and this has since been maintained. The credit for this was largely due to the Wazir, Raj Baroda Kanth Lahiri, as the Raja's intemperate habits had undermined his constitution. In November 1904, however, the Wazir resigned, and the Chief, who a few months before had, by a great effort of self control, given up both

After repeated attacks of illness, however, Raja Balbir Singh died on the 11th February 1906 and was succeeded by his nephew Brij Indar Singh who had been adopted by him as heir. Brij Indar Singh was formally installed as Raja by the Commissioner of Jullundur on the 15th March 1906.

The young Raja being a minor, the administration of the State is being conducted during his minority by a Council consisting of—

KAPURTHALA

The Kapurthala Chiefs belong to the Ahluwalia family, the original ancestor of which was Sadhu Singh, an enterprising zamindar, who about three hundred years ago founded four villages in the vicinity of Lahore. The real founder of the family was Sardar Jassa Singh, a contemporary of Nadir Shah and Ahmad Shah, who by his intelligence and bravery made himself the leading Sikh of his day. Jassa Singh was as much respected for his saintly and orthodox qualities as for his military abilities, and he did more than any contemporary Sikh to consolidate the power of the Khalsa. Jassa Singh's grandson, however, Fateh Singh, was completely eclipsed as a Sikh leader by Maharajah Ranjit Singh, and perhaps owed the retention of his territory north of the Sutlej to the fact that he was treated as regards his cis Sutlej possessions as a Chief under the protection of the British Government, and Ranjit Singh may have feared to adopt extreme measures against him. The conduct of Sardar Nihal Singh, the Kapurthala Chief, during the First Sikh War resulted in the escheat to the British Government of all his estate south of the Sutlej, and he was only allowed to retain possession of his other territories on payment of an annual nazarana of Rs 1,38,000. During the Second Sikh War Sardar Nihal Singh rendered valuable service and was created a Raja. During the Mutiny Raja Randhir Singh, his son, took an active part in assisting the British Government. He was rewarded with a grant on istimrar tenure of the two confiscated estates of Baundi and Bithauri in Oudh, yielding a rental of Rs 4,35,000. The amount of his tribute was reduced, and he was granted an adoption sanad and was made a KCSI. Kapurthala is under the political control of the Commissioner of Jullundur and sentences of death require his confirmation. It ranks fifth in order of precedence among the Native States of the Punjab.

The present Chief, Raja i Rajgan Raja Sir Jagatjit Singh, Bahadur, KCSI, was born on the 24th November 1872 and succeeded to the gadi in 1877. He was invested with full powers in 1890 the State having been administered in the interim by an officer of the Punjab Commission. Though he now shows signs of taking increased interest in public affairs, the Raja has hitherto paid insufficient attention to the administration of his State, and has spent a large part of his time since his investiture in visits to Europe and hill stations in India. He has however, been fortunate in his officials and the State was well managed during his absences by Sardar Bhagat Singh, CIE, who died in 1901. The administration is now conducted under the general supervision of the Raja by a Council appointed in the latter part of 1901.

The State maintains a force of 600 infantry for Imperial Service. It has in addition a local military force of 394 men and 8 serviceable guns. It furnished a contingent of 700 men, which did good service during the last Afghan War, and its Imperial Service Troops took part with credit in the operations in Tirah in 1897.

His Highness was present at Lahore on the occasion of the visit of Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales at the end of November 1905.

MALER KOTLA

The Maler Kotla family are Sherwani Afghans, and came from Kabul in 1467 as officials of the Delhi Emperors. Their ancestor, Sheikh Sadr ud din, received a gift of 48 villages near Ludhiana when he married the daughter of Sultan Bahlol Lodi. The title of Nawab was conferred in 1657 upon Bazid Khan by Shah Alamgir. The family subsequently suffered many vicissitudes, being at one time stripped by the Sikhs of all their possessions except a few villages in the vicinity of Maler Kotla. Ranjit Singh levied an indemnity of one-and a half lakhs from the State in 1809. The State assisted the British Government during the Gurkha War in the Simla Hills, and furnished a contingent of seven hundred foot in the Sutlej Campaign of 1846. Maler Kotla ranks tenth in order of precedence amongst Native States in the Punjab.

The late Chief, Nawab Muhammad Ibrahim Ali Khan, Bahadur, was born on the 13th October 1857, and succeeded by adoption to the gadi on the death of his distant cousin, Nawab Sakandar Ali, in 1871. He was insane for many years, and the affairs of the State were until early in 1905 administered by a Superintendent under the supervision of the Commissioner of Jullundur, to whose political control the State is subject. The Nawab of Loharu managed the State with ability as Superintendent up to the end of the year 1902, when, though still retained by the State as an adviser, he made over charge to the Nawab's eldest son, Ahmad Ali Khan, who had received a training in the transaction of State business and had shown an interest in his work and was therefore considered by Government fit to be entrusted with the management of the State. His only fault had been that when still a youth at College he entered into a clandestine marriage with his cousin in 1899, although the marriage had been forbidden by Government on account of the hereditary taint of insanity on both sides. This marriage, however, remained without male issue, and in 1903 the Nawabzada took a second wife, a niece of the Nawab of Tonk, by whom he had a son in 1904. The Nawabzada's administration having proved satisfactory, the services of the adviser were dispensed with early in 1905, and Ahmad Ali Khan, with the title of Regent, exercised the powers entrusted to him subject only to the control of the Commissioner of Jullundur. Nawab Ibrahim Ali Khan died on the 23rd August 1908 and was succeeded by Ahmad Ali Khan, who was formally installed and invested with ruling powers by the Lieutenant Governor on the 31st of January 1909.

The State contributed 8 lakhs of rupees towards the cost of the Ludhiana Dhuri Jakhai Railway, which was opened for traffic in 1901.

The State maintains a company of Sappers numbering 177 for Imperial Service, and has in addition a local force of 50 Cavalry, 228 Infantry (military police), 34 Artillery, and 2 serviceable guns. The Maler Kotla Sappers rendered good service during the Tirah Campaign of 1897, and their work in China in 1901 was most favourably reported on. Their Commandant, Mir Ausuf Ali, has been made a Companion of the Indian Empire.

The Nawab enjoys a salute of 11 guns, including 2 personal, and is entitled to be received by the Viceroy.

The present Nawab, when Regent, was invited to meet His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at Lahore in November 1905. He was granted an interview with Lord Minto at Simla in 1906, and in the same year His Excellency paid a visit to his State.

MANDI

The Mandi Rajas are of ancient Rajput lineage, being Mandials of the Chandar Bans tribe. The families of the Mandi and Suket Chiefs are sprung from a common progenitor. Suket being the senior branch, but the two States are rarely on friendly terms. The ancestor of the present Mandi Chief separated from Suket early in the thirteenth century. The existing capital of Mandi was founded in 1527 by Ajhar Sen, who may be regarded as the first Raja of Mandi. During the rule of Raja Ism Sen, who succeeded to the gadi in 1779, the Mandi State became the successive prey of the Katoches, the Gurkhas, and the Sikhs. From 1818 Mandi was made to pay tribute to the Lahore Darbar, which in 1840 was fixed at Rs. 10,000. War the sympathies of the Mandi Sen of Mandi rendered his formal submission to the British Government and was granted a sansad recognizing his rights and defining his rights and obligations. His tribute was fixed at a lakh of rupees per annum.

he was prohibited from levying duties on goods passing in and out of his State and death sentences were made subject to the confirmation of the Commissioner of Jullundur. Mandi is under the political control of the Commissioner of Jullundur and ranks sixth in order of precedence amongst Native States in the Punjab, the Chiefs of Mandi and Nahan being considered of equal rank.

The late Chief, Raja Bije Sen, died on the 10th December 1902. He succeeded to the gadi in 1851 when only four years old and was invested with full powers in 1866. Shortly after his investiture however, the administration of Mandi fell into the greatest confusion, and a serious warning was conveyed to the Raja from the Viceroy. In 1872 it was considered necessary to appoint an English officer as Councillor to the Raja and this arrangement continued for a short period. In 1889 the Raja asked for the assistance of a British official and a member of the Civil Service was temporarily deputed to Mandi. The Raja was of an amiable disposition and liked by his subjects but he was not a man of strong character, and his health was poor. In the latter years of Bije Sen's life the State finances were in a most unsatisfactory condition, and in 1899 the Commissioner of Jullundur made an enquiry into them at the Raja's own request. Under the supervision of a new Wazir, Rai Bahadur Padma Jiwa Nand an improvement was effected in the administration of the State, and at the end of the year 1900 or there was a balance of Rs. 30,000 in the Treasury.

Kanwar Bhawani Singh, the illegitimate son of the late Raja, who was born in 1883 and was recognised in 1897 as successor to his father, provided the latter died without legitimate male issue, has succeeded to the Chiefship of the State with the title of Raja Bhawani Sen and was formally installed by the Lieutenant Governor on October 31st, 1903. Owing to the backwardness of his education and to the disorder into which the finances of the State had fallen it was decided for the first two years of his rule to appoint a British officer to conduct the administration of the State. For 18 months the young Raja underwent a course of instruction in the duties of government from the officer appointed to superintend the administration of the State and showed himself to be possessed of considerable aptitude for business. On the 7th October 1905 His Highness was formally invested with full powers and so far his administration has been satisfactory.

The State maintains a local military force of about 172 men and possesses 2 serviceable guns.

The Raja enjoys a salute of 11 guns, and is entitled to be received and visited by the Viceroy.

SUKET

The Rajas of Suket are of ancient Rajput lineage, being Mandials of the Chandrabansi branch. The families of the Mandi and Suket Chiefs are sprung from a common progenitor. Suket being the senior branch but the two States are rarely on friendly terms. The ancestor of the Mandi Chief separated off early in the thirteenth century. In 1846 the Suket Chief Raja Ugar Sen, turned against the Sikhs and joined with the Raja of Mandi in expelling the Khalsa garrisons from the strongholds in the hills. In return for these services he was awarded the rights of a Chief in his territories by the British Government. Raja Ugar Sen was succeeded in 1875 by his son Rudra Sen, who was deposed three years afterwards for misgovernment. Raja Rudra Sen's conduct had led to a general insurrection of the people, which was only quelled when the administration was forcibly assumed by the British Government. The Suket State ranks fifteenth in order of precedence amongst Native States in the Punjab. It pays Rs. 11,000 tribute to the British Government.

The late Raja, Dasht Nikandan Sen, was born on the 18th February 1865 and succeeded to the gadi shortly after the deposition of his father, Rudra Sen, in 1879. He was invested with full powers in 1884. He was a man of some shrewdness of character, but of an obstinate disposition, and the tendency towards misgovernment and oppression exhibited by his father reappeared in the son. He rarely kept a promise and was utterly unscrupulous. For a long time after his accession the Suket State gave trouble, and the advisability of deposing the Raja was discussed on several occasions. The Punjab Government was many times compelled to interfere authoritatively in Suket affairs, and in 1892 certain rules were laid down defining the relations between the Raja and the State. The Raja's choice of a Wazir was, at the same time, made subject to the approval of the Commissioner, Jullundur, who is the Political Officer of the State. Affairs in Suket became quieter, but it was decided in May 1902 that in consequence of the Raja's general attitude and the not altogether satisfactory condition of affairs in his State, a closer supervision should be exercised over the affairs of Suket, and that in order to give effect to this decision the Assistant Commissioner of Kulu should be employed as Political Assistant to the Commissioner of Jullundur in connection with Suket. The restriction imposed upon the Raja in regard to the appointment of a Wazir was at the same time removed on the condition that the Raja himself would be held strictly responsible for any mismanagement. In 1902 the Tika, whom the Raja had been treating rather harshly, fled from Suket to the Raja of Mandi. He was with his father's consent sent to the Aitchison College, Lahore, in October 1902. During 1906 trouble arose in the State through the quarrels of the Raja with his discontented officials. Enquiries were made by the Commissioner, which disclosed a state of affairs very discreditable to the Raja. The Raja was warned by the Lieutenant Governor to mend his methods. Raja Dusbt Nikandan Sen died on the 27th May 1908, and was succeeded by his eldest son Bhim Sen, who was formally installed and invested with ruling powers by the Lieutenant Governor on the 28th October 1908.

Raja Bhim Sen was born on the 26th November 1885.

Raja Dusbt Nikandan Sen was invited to the ceremonial functions held in Lahore, in November 1905 on the occasion of the visit of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales.

The State maintains a local military force of 94 men and has 2 serviceable guns.

CHAMBA

The Chamba Rajas are Rajputs and are said to have come from Merwara in Rajputana. A grant conferring the State upon Raja Sri Singh and his male heirs in perpetuity was granted in 1848. In 1873 the misconduct of Raja Gopal Singh brought upon him the censure of Government and he abdicated in consequence in favour of his son Sham Singh, then only 9 years of age. The administration during Sham Singh's minority was conducted by an officer of the Punjab Commission acting as Superintendent. The rule of succession in this State is that brothers in order of seniority succeed in the absence of direct heirs. The State is under the political control of the Commissioner of Lahore and ranks fourteenth in order of precedence amongst Native States in the Punjab. It pays Rs 800 annually as tribute to the British Government.

Raja Sir Bhure Singh, K.C.S.I., C.I.E., the present Chief was born on the 17th December 1869 and succeeded his brother Raja Sham Singh on the 23rd of January 1904 on the latter's abdication. He was formally installed with full ruling powers by the Lieutenant Governor on the 14th May 1904. For many years previously he had been associated with his brother in the management of the State which indeed since October 1901 had devolved entirely on him owing to the serious illness of the ex-Raja and his administration has been creditable to him throughout. The rendition of the reserved forests to the Raja for a period of five years in probation has been completed. The forests will be administered by a British Officer of the Imperial Forest Service lent to the State. The Raja has done a great deal to improve communications within the State and has arranged for the survey of a cart road to connect Chamba with the plains. A building for a museum has been provided by the Raja and Dr Vogel, the Archaeological Surveyor, has arranged in it a number of interesting antiquities found in the State. The Raja was decorated with the Order of a Companion of the Indian Empire in 1900 and in January 1906 the dignity of Knighthood of the Order of the Star of India was conferred upon him. The ex-Raja, Sham Singh, died suddenly on the 10th June 1905.

The State maintains a local military force of 319 men and has 4 serviceable guns. The Raja's offer of a contribution unit towards Imperial defence is at present under the consideration of the Government of India.

Chamba was honoured with a visit from Lord Curzon in September 1905.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 12 guns and is entitled to be received by the Viceroy.

His Highness was invited to meet His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at Lahore in November 1905, was knighted by His Excellency the Viceroy at Peshawar in April 1906, and was present at the Chief of Indian Orders held at Agra in January 1907.

BAHAWALPUR

The dominant race in this State are the Daudputras, to which family the Chiefs belong. They claim descent from Abas, uncle of the Prophet, and emigrated via Khorasan into Sind. In 1737 the ambition of their Chief Daud Khan, brought them into conflict with Nadir Shah's Governor in Sind and they were driven across the Indus ultimately obtaining possession of the tract now known as Bahawalpur. Mubarak, son of Daud Khan, finding favour with the local Governor received a large tract south of the old Beas river in addition to his Bahawalpur possessions. Bahawal Khan grandson of Daud Khan was the first Chief who succeeded in bringing the whole tribe under one hand. He gradually consolidated his power and even obtained possession of Dera Ghazi Khan for a short period. In 1833, in order to preserve his dominions from Maharaja Ranjit Singh, Bahawal Khan the III entered into a treaty with the British Government, by which his independence was recognised. This Chief was granted in 1828 the districts of Sabzalkot and Bhang Bara for services rendered to the army of occupation in Afghanistan and his valuable assistance in connection with the Multan rebellion of 1848 was rewarded by the grant of a life pension of one lakh of rupees. Insurrections against the authority of the Chief broke out in 1863 and subsequent years and in 1866 the management of the State was assumed by a representative of the British Government during the minority of Nawab Sadiq Muhammad Khan Under British management the State was rapidly brought into flourishing condition, and at the time of Sadiq Muhammad Khan's installation in 1879 the revenue had risen to twenty lakhs. Nawab Sadiq Muhammad Khan took an active share in the preparations for the second Afghan War. He died in 1899. The affairs of the Bahawalpur State during the latter years of his life cannot be regarded as satisfactory. His extravagance starved the administration and he left a large amount of personal debts. These were paid off during the administration of the State by Colonel L. J. H. Grey C.S.I., who was Superintendent from February 1899 to April 1903.

Nawab Muhammad Bahawal Khan V Abasi who succeeded Nawab Sadiq Muhammad Khan was educated at the Aitchison College for four years. He was invested with full powers by Lord Curzon in 1903. In November 1906 he proceeded on a pilgrimage to Mecca and on his way back died of pneumonia at Aden on the 15th February 1907. During the short period of his Chieftainship he proved himself an energetic and capable administrator. He was succeeded by his son Sadiq Muhammad Khan who was born in 1904. A Council of Regency consisting of 5 members was appointed on 26th July 1907.

In May 1903 the State was added to the Phulkian States Agency, Bahawalpur. It is second in order of precedence amongst the Native States of the Punjab.

The State maintains for Imperial Service 196 Cavalry and a Camel Transport Corps of 371 men and 983 camels, and besides this it has 13 serviceable guns. It has had a corps which did service on the line of communications in the second Afghan War, and the Chief also offered aid in Egypt, during the Tirah Campaign, in Somahland, and also in connection with the Tibet Mission. The State also offered aid in the operations on the frontier in 1903 against the Mohmand and Zaka Khel tribes.

The Nawab enjoys a salute of 17 guns, and is entitled to be received and visited by the Viceroy.

The late Nawab Bahawal Khan was invited to meet His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at Lahore in November 1905.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor-General. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—'My esteemed friend—I remain, with much consideration, Your Highness's sincere friend.'

The crest used is gold Kharita bag Kamkhwah (Gold and silk brocade) String (Dori) Nimzar (Gold and silk thread).

JIND

Jind is one of the three Phulkian States. The family of the ruling Chief belongs to the Sidhu Jat clan. Phul, the common ancestor of the three Phulkian houses, was descended from Baryam, who was granted the chaudrayat or office of Revenue Collector of the waste country to the south west of Delhi by the Emperor Babar in 1526 A.D. Phul received a firman from the Emperor Shah Jahan continuing to him this office; he died in 1652. From the eldest of the sons of Phul have descended the families of Nabha and Jind, and from the second the Patiala family. The founder of the Jind State was Gajpat Singh, a great grandson of Phul. He took part in the Sikh coalition of 1763 against the Afghan Governor of Sirhind and received a large tract of country as his share of the spoil. One of his daughters became the mother of Maharaja Ranjit Singh. In 1772 the title of Raja was conferred upon him by the Emperor Shah Alam. Raja Gajpat Singh's son Bhag Singh, assisted Lord Lake in his operations against the Marathas and was rewarded by the grant of the pargana of Bawana and the Gohana estates. In 1834 the Jind Chief died without issue. Sarup Singh of Bazidpur, a third cousin of the deceased Raja, succeeded to the gadi by order of the British Government, but he was held to be entitled to succeed only to the territory possessed by his great grandfather, Raja Gajpat Singh, and estates yielding Rs. 1,82,000 revenue were resumed by the British Government as escheats. Raja Sarup Singh's conduct during the First Sikh War was on the whole satisfactory, and he received in reward a grant of land. When the Mutiny broke out in 1857 Sarup Singh was not behind the Maharaja of Patiala in active loyalty, and his services on that occasion were of a most valuable nature. He was the only Chief who was present with the army before Delhi. In recognition of his services the Dadri territory, 600 square miles in extent, was made over to him and also thirteen villages close to Sangrur assessed at Rs. 1,38,000, his salute was raised to 13 guns, and other privileges conferred upon him. In 1864 he was created a G.C.S.I. His son, Raja Raghbir Singh, was a worthy successor; he died in 1887. Jind ranks third in order of precedence among Native States in the Punjab.

The present Chief, Raja i Rajgan Sir Ranbir Singh, K.C.S.I., Bahadur, was born on 11th October 1870. He succeeded his grandfather, Raja Raghbir Singh, when a minor and was invested with powers in November 1899. But he was required for a time in exercising his powers to follow the advice which the Political Officer might think it necessary to tender to him. He takes a personal interest in the administration of his State and disposes of a fair amount of work himself. He does not lack shrewdness. In September 1900 he contracted a secret marriage with the daughter of a man named Monalescu. The Raja has, however, disclaimed the intention of asserting a right of succession to the gadi for the issue of this marriage. The Ludhiana-Dhuri-Jakhal line of Railway, constructed at the expense of the Jind and Maler Kotla States, was opened for traffic in 1901. A project for constructing a railway from Jind to Panipat, to be financed partly by the Jind Durbar, is under consideration.

The State maintains a force of 600 infantry for Imperial Services Besides this it has a local force of 195 cavalry, 460 infantry, 80 artillery, and 16 serviceable guns It furnished a contingent for service during the last Afghan War, and its Imperial Service Troops were utilized during the Tirah Campaign of 1897 The State also offered aid in the operations on the frontier in 1908 against the Mohmand and Zaka Khel tribes

The Chief enjoys a salute of 11 guns, and is entitled to be received and visited by the Viceroy His Highness Raja Ranbir Singh was appointed a Knight Commander of the Order of the Star of India on 1st January 1909 Lord Curzon visited the State in November 1903 and Lord Minto in 1906

NABHA

Nabha is one of the three Phulkian States The family of the ruling Chief belong to the Sidhu Jat clan Phul, the common ancestor of the three Phulkian houses, was descended from Baryam, who was granted the chaudrayat or office of Revenue Collector of the waste country to the south west of Delhi by the Emperor Babar in 1526 A D Phul received a firman from the Emperor Shah Jahan continuing to him this office he died in 1652 From the eldest of the sons of Phul have descended the families of Nabha and Jind, and from the second the Patiala family The real founder of the Nabha State was Hamir Singh, a grandson of Phul's grandson Gurditta He joined with his Sikh brethren in the capture of Sirhind and received as his reward the pargana of Amloh He added many villages to the possession inherited from his grandfather, Gurditta, founded the present town of Nabha, struck coins in his own name, and exercised all the powers of an independent ruler for some years before his death in 1783 Nabha, with the other six Sutlej States, was taken under British protection in 1809 Raja Jasnant Singh, who was then on the gadi, was a faithful ally of the British Government but his son Devindar Singh who succeeded him in 1840 was of a different disposition In consequence of his misconduct during the First Sikh War he was deposed, and one fourth of the Nabha State was confiscated For services rendered during the Mutiny however by Bharpur Singh the successor of Devindar Singh, lands yielding a lakh of rupees of revenue per annum were made over to the Nabha State and certain privileges conferred upon its Chief Bharpur Singh was offered a seat in the Legislative Council of the Government of India in 1863 The Nabha Chiefs at one time claimed precedence over the other Phulkian houses on account of their descent from the eldest branch of the family but the present Chief of Nabha belongs to a younger branch than the Raja of Jind Nabha formerly ranked above Jind but precedence was given to the latter in the Durbar of 1860, although the two Chiefs were considered equal in dignity and regarded with equal favour Nabha ranks fourth among Native States in the Punjab The Chief of Jind is given precedence of Nabha on public occasions But to this rule there is one exception A return visit by the Viceroy is paid to Nabha before the return visit to Jind The reason for this curious anomaly will be apparent by reference to the marginally noted correspondence

The present Chief, Raja Rajagan Sir Hara Singh, Bahadur GCIE was born on 16th December 1843 and succeeded to the gadi when Phagwan Singh died without issue in 1871 He is a member of the Badrukhan family and was second son to the grandfather of the present Raja of Jind He has given repeated proof of his desire to contribute to the power and prestige of the Empire and has proved his energetic and able ruler, and he was at first much opposed to the appointment of a Political Agent to the Phulkian States. His salute was raised to 13 guns as a personal distinction in 1877 and to 15 guns in 1898. The grand Cross of the Star of India was conferred upon him in 1879 and the title of Raja i-Rajagan in 1893 in recognition of the excellent administration of his State. He was invested with the grand Cross of the Indian Empire and was also appointed Honorary Colonel of the XIVth Sikhs at Delhi in January 1903.

The State maintains a force of 600 infantry for Imperial Service. Besides this it has a local force of 150 cavalry, 100 infantry and 29 artillery and 10 serviceable guns. It furnished a contingent which did excellent service on the frontier during the Afghan War of 1879-80 and its Imperial Service Troops were also employed on the Tirah and Buner Expeditions of 1897. The State also offered aid in operations on the frontier in 1908, against the Mohmand and Zaka Khel tribes. Lord Lansdowne paid a visit to the present Raja at his capital in October 1890.

The State was visited by Lord Curzon in November 1903 and by Lord Minto in 1906.

His Highness was invited to meet His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at Lahore in November 1905 and was present at the Chapter of Indian Orders held at Agra in January 1907.

PATIALA

Patiala is the largest of the three Phulkian States. The family of the ruling Chief belongs to the Sidhu Jat clan. Phul, the common ancestor of the three Phulkian houses, was descended from Baryam, who was granted the chaudaryat or office of Revenue Collector of the waste country to the north-west of Delhi by the Emperor Babar in 1526. A. D. Phul received a firman from the Emperor Shah Jahan continuing to him this office, he died in 1652. From the eldest of the sons of Phul have descended the houses of Nabha and Jind, and from the second the Patiala family. The Patiala family has been established as a ruling power south of the Sutlej since 1852, when the present capital was founded by Sardar Ala Singh, a grandson of Phul. Ala Singh was one of the most distinguished Sikh Chiefs of his day and was given the title of Raja by Ahmad Shah, the Durani monarch of Afghanistan. Ahmad Shah subsequently conferred the title of Raja i-Rajagan Babadur on Ala Singh's grandson, Amar Singh, who succeeded his grandfather on the gadi. Raja Amar Singh made Patiala the most powerful State between the Jumna and the Sutlej, but after his death the administration fell into disorder, and in 1812 it was necessary for the British Government to interfere authoritatively in Patiala affairs. Raja Sahib Singh, who succeeded Amar Singh, was almost an imbecile, but the State was wisely administered during part of his life time and during the minority of his son by his wife Rani Aus Kaur, a woman of great ability. The title of Maharaja was conferred on the Patiala Chief in 1810 by the Emperor Akbar II on the recommendation of General Ochterlony. For services rendered during the Gurkha War of 1814 Maharaja Karm Singh was awarded portions of the Hill States of Keonthal and Baghat. At the time of the first Sikh War Narindar Singh was on the gadi. He helped the British Government more than any of the other cis-Sutlej Chiefs, and his assistance was acknowledged by the gift of a portion of the territory confiscated from Nabha. During the disturbances of 1857-58 no prince in India showed greater loyalty or rendered more conspicuous services to the British Government than Narindar Singh. On this occasion territory bringing in two lakhs of rupees a year was made over to him, and many other privileges and concessions granted. Maharaja Narindar Singh was invested with the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India in 1861, and about the same time was made a Member of the Legislative Council of the Government of India. Patiala was taken under British protection in 1809, it ranks first amongst Native States in the Punjab.

The present Chief, Maharaja Bhupinder Singh, was born on the 12th October 1891 and succeeded on the gadi on the death of his father Maharaja Sir Rajinder Singh, G.C.S.I., in November 1900. The late Chief was only 28 years of age when he died. He was a loyal Chief, but his many good qualities were marred by a fatal weakness of will, with the result that the affairs of the State fell into a confusion from which they are now gradually recovering. The administration during the minority of Maharaja Bhupinder Singh, who entered the Aitchison College on the 22nd October 1904, is being conducted by a Council of Regency consisting of Sardar Bahadur Gurmukh Singh, C.S.I., as President, and Mir Tofazzul Hussain and Rai Bahadur Lala Nanak Baksh as Members.

Settlement operations which were commenced under Major Popham Young, C.I.E., in 1901 are nearing completion. The panchayat system, introduced by the same officer, is working with remarkable success.

The State maintains a force of 602 cavalry and 1,204 infantry for Imperial Service. Besides this it has a local force of 435 cavalry, 1,064 infantry, 128 artillery and 110 guns, fifty of which are serviceable. It furnished a contingent of 1,100 men which did excellent service during the Kabul War of 1879 and its Imperial Service Troops were also employed in the Tirah Campaign of 1897. The State also offered aid in the operations on the frontier in 1908 against the Mohmand and Zaka Khel tribes.

His Excellency the Marquis of Lansdowne visited Patiala in 1890 and installed the late Maharaja on the gadi. Patiala also received the honour of visits from Lord Elgin in 1898, from Lord Curzon in 1903, and Lord Minto in 1906.

The Chief enjoys a salute of 17 guns, and is entitled to be received and visited by the Viceroy.

His Highness was invited to meet His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at Lahore in November 1905.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Viceroy and Governor-General. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—"My esteemed friend—I remain, with much consideration Your Highness's sincere friend." The crest used is gold kharita bag Kamkhwab (Gold and silk brocade) String (Dori) Nimzar (Gold and silk thread).

BAGHAL

Baghal lies to the north west of Simla. Its capital is Arki. The ruling family are Puār Rajputs. After the expulsion of the Gurkhas the Chief was confirmed in possession of his territory by a sanad granted in September 1815 under condition of rendering service in time of war. Raja Kishen Siogb, granduncle of the present Raja, evinced great loyalty on the outbreak of the Mutiny. For the services rendered by him on this occasion he was granted the title of Raja. Baghal ranks sixth among the Simla Hill States in order of precedence.

The late Chief Raja Dhian Singh, who was born on the 27th January 1842, and succeeded his first cousin, Moti Singh, in 1877, was regarded as the most capable among the minor Chiefs. He died on the 10th of April 1904 and was succeeded by his eldest son Tikka Bikram Singh, who was born in 1893 and who attended the Aitchison College at Lahore from 1903 to 1905. The administration of the State during the minority of the young Chief is being carried on by a Council. The settlement which commenced in 1906 was completed in 1908. A land revenue assessment of Rs. 69,500 has been approved by Government.

The State possesses one serviceable gun.

The late Raja had an interview with Lord Elgin in 1896. The Chief is entitled to be received by the Viceroy.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — My friend — I remain Your sincere friend "

BAGHAT

Baghat lies a few miles south west of Simla and extends from Solon to Subathu and Kasauli. The house of Baghat, a Rajput family, came originally from Dara Nagar in the Deccan and acquired the State by conquest. The family name, once Pal, is now Singh. The ruling house has experienced many vicissitudes of fortune. Being an ally of the Dilaspur Raja, Rana Mohindar Singh remained in possession of his territory under the Gurkha rule. He remained loyal to his friends during the Gurkha War, and lost five parganas in consequence, which were made over to Patiala. The remaining three lapsed to the British on the death in 1839 of Mohindar Singh without issue. In 1842 Lord Ellenborough restored the State to Bije Singh, brother of the late Rana but in 1849 he died heirless, and the State was again escheated. Umed Singh, the Rana's cousin, set up a claim, sent a Vakil to England, and employed Mr. Isaac Butt to plead before the Court of Directors. In 1860 Lord Canning recommended the admission of Umed Singh's claim and it was recognised in the following year. But Umed Singh, after 13 years of waiting, only survived the good news a few hours. His son Dalip Singh was installed as Rana at the age of two. Baghat ranks seventh among Simla Hill States.

Rana Dalip Singh was born on the 3rd February 1859 and is well educated, popular and public spirited. The position of his State brings him into frequent touch with the Government, and Superintendents have always found him a prompt man of business. In 1895-96 he was made a C.I.E.

The acquisition of land from this State for the requirements of Solon and Subathu Cantonments has been very distasteful to the Rana, but he has always yielded gracefully. A son was born to him in September 1901 up to that date the heir apparent had been his brother Amar Singh, in whose hands most of the administration of the State is placed. The Chief offered his services for employment with the Tibet Mission in 1904.

The State maintains a local force of 32 men.

The Chief had an interview with Lord Elgin in 1897. He is not entitled to pay a formal visit to the Viceroy, but is allowed the privilege of an informal interview once during the Viceroy's term of office. He was present at the Chapter of Indian Orders held at Agra in January 1907.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows —" My friend,—I remain, Your sincere friend "

BALSAN

Balsan lies about 30 miles east of Simla, across the Giri, a tributary of the Jumna. The country is fertile and beautifully wooded with fine forests of deodar. The Rana is a Rajput and traces his descent from the Raja of Sirmur. The State of Balsan was acquired by conquest and, previous to the Gurkha invasion of 1805, was a feudatory of Sirmur. On the expulsion of the Gurkhas the Thakuras of Balsan was granted to Thakur Jograj Singh by a sanad, dated 21st September 1815. Jograj Singh lived to the ripe old age of 87. He behaved with conspicuous loyalty in the Mutiny, and gave shelter and hospitality to several Englishmen who left Simla when the station was threatened by the Gurkha regiment at Jutogh. The Thakur was created a Rana for his services and was rewarded in open durbar with a valuable khilat. The Chief exercises full power of administration, limited only by the usual control over death sentences exercised by the Superintendent, Hill States. Balsan ranks twelfth in order of precedence amongst the Simla Hill States.

The present Rana Bir Singh was born on the 28th of March 1864. The administration, if old fashioned, is sound, and the State gives little or no trouble to the Superintendent. Forest administration is the only question that has arisen in this State. Rana Bir Singh has no son; the heir apparent is his brother, Atar Singh, who was born in 1868.

The Chief had an interview with the Viceroy in 1895. He is not entitled to pay a formal visit to the Viceroy, but is allowed the privilege of an informal interview once during the Viceroy's term of office.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Lieutenant Governor of the Punjab. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows —" My friend,—I remain Your sincere friend "

BASHAHR

The Rulers of this State are Rajputs and claim descent from Srikishn, a mythical hero of Benares. The present Ruler traces his ancestry back for one hundred and twenty generations. From 1803—1815 Bashahr was in the power of the Gurkhas but in 1813 they were expelled by the British Government, who granted a sanad to Rajah Mohindar Singh, father of the present Ruler, confirming him in all his possessions except Rawin which was transferred to Keonthal to whom it originally belonged and Kotguru which was retained as a British possession. The country though the largest in extent of all the Simla Hill States is sparsely populated and the people are poor. Kanets and Dalti are tributaries of this State. Bashahr ranks third in order of precedence amongst the Simla Hill States, and ninth among Native States in the Punjab.

The present Chief, Raja Shamsher Singh was born in 1838. He succeeded to the Chiefship in 1850. His conduct during the Mutiny was not exemplary, and it was proposed to depose him but Lord Lawrence did not deem this measure advisable. The elgime of the Raja being unsatisfactory, in 1886 his son, Raghunath Singh born in 1845 was placed in administrative charge of the State. He ably administered its affairs until his death in February 1898, and under his supervision a settlement of the State was effected. After his death the old Raja made an attempt to regain the administration but Government interfered, and an official Lala Manat Ram, was made Chief Minister and subsequently Manager of the State. Under him the State has been well governed.

The Raja has no legitimate son, but adopted Kanwar Surinder Singh, brother of the Raja of Tehri Garhwal in 1907. The adoption has been recognised by Government, on the understanding that such recognition will not bind Government to any further Surendar Shah as the Raja's successor. A wire rope suspension bridge has been made over the Sutlej at Rampur by the Public Works Department at the expense of the State, and another by Government on the Moghul Nullah on the Hindustan Tibet Road, four miles from Rampur.

Bashahr has four serviceable guns but no military forces.

The Raja's son, Ragbunath Singh, who died in December 1898, had interviews with the Viceroy in 1895 and 1897. The Chief is entitled to be received by the Viceroy.

BHAJJI

Bhaji lies on the left bank of the Sutlej due north of Simla. Opium celebrated for its purity is an export. The capital, Suni, is famous for its sulphur springs which have a medicinal virtue. The founder of the house came from Kangra and acquired possession of the State by conquest. When the Gurkhas overran the country between 1803 and 1818, and were expelled by the British Government, the Rana of Bhaji, Rudar Pal, was confirmed in possession of the State by the sanad under the usual conditions of rendering service in time of war. The family name is Singh. Bhaji ranks tenth in order of precedence among the Simla Hill States.

The present Ruler, Rana Durga Singh, was born on the 5th September 1842, and succeeded his father, Rana Ran Bahadur Singh, in 1875. He is reported by Superintendents to be lazy and sensual, very much a puppet in the hands of his officials, but at the same time appears to have ability if he cares to use it, and is said to have a taste for science. The heir apparent to the State is the elder son of the present Ruler. The Rana is not on good terms with his brothers, Mian Parmatama Singh and Mian Bij Singh.

Bhaji possesses two serviceable guns.

The Chief had an interview with the Viceroy in 1895. He is not entitled to pay a formal visit to the Viceroy, but is allowed the privilege of an informal interview once during the Viceroy's term of office.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Lieutenant Governor of the Punjab. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—"My friend,—I remain, Your sincere friend."

BILASPUR (KAHLUR)

Bilaspur, the capital, is situated on the left bank of the Sutlej, about 30 miles above Rupar. The Chiefs of this State trace their descent from a ruling Rajput family in the south west of Rajputana. Nine years previous to the Gurkha invasion most of the Kahlur lands cis Sutlej had fallen to the arms of Raja Ram Saran of Hindur. The Gurkhas expelled the conquerors and restored Kahlur to the rightful owner, Raja Maha Chand. He refused to co-operate with the British against the Gurkhas, but was eventually allowed to retain possession of his territories, and a sanad was granted to him in 1815 confirming him in possession of them under the obligation of supplying troops and transport in time of war and making good roads throughout his State. He was succeeded by his son who died childless in 1836 and the State was given to Jagat Chand, a collateral. A rebellion resulted, which was only put down by the advance of British troops. For services rendered during the Mutiny Raja Hira Chand was given a salute of 7 guns, subsequently increased to 11. Bilaspur ranks second in order of precedence amongst the Simla Hill States and eighth among Native States of the Punjab.

The present Chief, Raja Bij Singh, was born on the 27th January 1873. He succeeded his father, Amar Chand, in 1889 being then about 16 years of age. During his minority the State was under a Council of Regency. In 1893 Government sanctioned the investiture of the Raja with full powers. The Council was kept on as a consultative body.

till 1899, when, with the approval of the Superintendent, Hill States, it was abolished but owing to some partizan feeling in the State it was afterwards re established for a time. The young ruler's administration was at first quite satisfactory, but after some years became the reverse, and frequent disobedience of the orders of Government caused trouble. Affairs reached a climax in 1901-02 and the Raja was called upon to appoint a Wazir approved by Government and to submit to certain conditions which his conduct had rendered it necessary to impose in the interests of the administration of the State. These conditions were, after considerable demur, accepted by the Raja, who subsequently, however, repudiated his acceptance, and refused to return to his State from Benares, where he had been staying for some time past. He was in consequence deprived of his powers as a ruling Chief, and the administration of the State was placed in the hands of a Manager appointed by Government. In May 1908 the Raja was permitted to return to his State under certain prescribed conditions. Settlement operations commenced by Mian Amar Singh, the Manager, have been completed. The land revenue of the State has been assessed, with the approval of Government, at Rs 1,70,000.

Bilaspur has a local force of 11 cavalry, 86 infantry and 2 serviceable guns.

The Chief had an interview with Lord Elgin in 1894. The salute of the ruling Chief is 11 guns and he is entitled to be received by the Viceroy.

DHAMI

The house is Rajput. The Rana's ancestor fled from Rajpura, near Patiala, and settled at Dhami when Shahab ud din Ghori invaded India in the 14th century. The State was originally a feudatory of Bilaspur, but was made independent by the British by a sanad dated 4th September 1815. This sanad was granted to Rana Gohardhan Singh, a boy of 12, who at that age fought under General Ochterfony against the Gurkhas. His loyal services during the Mutiny were acknowledged by a remission of half the State tribute of Rs 720 for his lifetime. His son, Fateh Singh, succeeded in 1867, and in 1880 he also received a remission of half his annual tribute. Fateh Singh died in 1894, and was succeeded by the present Rana, Hira Singh. Dhami ranks thirteenth in order of precedence among the Simla Hill States.

Hira Singh was born on the 5th August 1876. He is a well educated man, with a taste for English books and newspapers. His government is good, and in this he is helped by the old Wazir of his father, who is a good specimen of the better class of official of the old school. A remission for life of half the amount of his annual tribute was sanctioned in 1902 on account of the Rana's general good administration.

The son and heir, born to the Rana in 1905, died in October 1906.

The State possesses one serviceable gun.

The Chief had an interview with Lord Curzon in September 1899. He is not entitled to pay a formal visit to the Viceroy, but is allowed the privilege of an informal interview once during the Viceroy's term of office.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — "My friend,—I remain, Your sincere friend."

JUBBAL

Jubbal lies east of Simla between Sirmur and Rampur. The country is very beautiful and is well covered with magnificent forest trees. The family of Jubbal is Rajput, and claims descent from the ruling family of Sirmur which preceded the present dynasty. Originally tributary to Sirmur, Jubbal became independent after the Gurkha War, and the Rana, Puran Singh, received a sanad from Lord Minto on 18th November 1815. Jubbal ranks eighth in order of precedence among the Simla Hill States.

The present Chief, Rana Gian Chand, was born on the 16th October 1887. He was recognised as Chief when his father, Rana Padam Chand, died in November 1898, and was formally installed in October 1899. The State, which for a short time after this was disturbed by the intrigues of Kunwar Gambhir Chand, the Rana's uncle, and by quarrels between the Rana's mother and the late Wazir, who died in 1902, is now prosperous. The administration during the Chief's minority has, since the death of the Wazir, been conducted by a Manager appointed by Government. In order to remove them from the faction element in the State, the Rana and his brother were sent to the Aitchison College, Lahore, in the winter of 1901. The Rana profited much by his education at the College, which he left in May 1903.

The State possesses two serviceable guns.

The late Chief had an interview with the Viceroy in 1895. He is not entitled to pay a formal visit to the Viceroy, but is allowed the privilege of an informal interview once during the Viceroy's term of office.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Lieutenant Governor of the Punjab. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows:—'My friend—I remain, Your sincere friend.'

KEONTHAL

The Keonthal State ranks fifth amongst the Simla Chiefships and twelfth among Native States in the Punjab. The family is Rajput, and the family suffix is Sen. Koti Theog, Madhan, Ghond and Ratesh are tributaries of this State, though in many respects practically independent. The Keonthal Chief refused to pay a contribution towards the expenses of the Gurkha War, and as he had given no assistance to General Ochterlony, a portion of his territories was confiscated and made over to Patiala. In 1830 the present station of Simla was formed by the acquisition of portions of Keonthal and Patiala, other land being given in exchange. The Chief of Keonthal was once only a Rana, but in the Mutiny, Rana Sansar Sen behaved loyally, giving shelter and hospitality to many Europeans who fled from Simla when it was feared that the Gurkha regiment stationed there had become disloyal. The title of Raja was conferred upon him in July 1858 for these services.

The present Chief Raja Bije Sen, was born on the 13th September 1877 and was recognised as Ruler by the Government of India on the death of Raja Balbir Sen on March 18th, 1901, on the understanding that a Manager should continue to administer the State under the supervision of the Superintendent of Hill States for a period of two years. Raja Bije Sen was installed on 7th June 1901, and given 3rd class powers as a Magistrate and Munsif. The State was managed by Mian Durga Singh, who was appointed for this purpose by Government in 1898 owing to the mismanagement of Raja Balbir Sen. The conduct of the young Raja during his father's lifetime was not all that could be desired and he is ignorant and extravagant, but he was entrusted with the management of his State in June 1902 on certain conditions which have been agreed to by him. The finances of the State are much embarrassed by debt, and it has been found necessary to appoint a financial adviser, who supervises the expenditure of the State's revenues.

The State has one serviceable gun

The late Chief had interviews with Lord Elgin in 1894 and 1896 The Raja is entitled to be received by the Viceroy

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Lieutenant Governor of the Punjab The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows —“ My friend,—I remain, Your sincere friend ”

KUMHARSAIN

The founder of this dynasty, Kirat Singh, came from Gaya about 1000 A D and acquired the State by conquest This State was formerly a tributary of Bashahr but after the Gurkha War, a sanad of independence was granted to Rana Kahar Singh with the condition attached of rendering feudal service to the paramount power. On his death in 1839, leaving no direct heirs, his estates lapsed to the British, but were restored to a collateral, Pritam Singh This Chief behaved loyally in the First Sikh War, crossing the Sutlej at the head of 300 men, and laying successful siege to the Kulu Fort of Srigarh Pritam Singh died in 1874, and was succeeded by the present Rana Hira Singh The Thakurais of Balsan, Barauli, and Madhan were at one time feudatory to Kumharsain, but were made independent by General Ochterlony in 1815 Kumharsain ranks ninth among the Simla Hill States

Rana Hira Singh, the present Chief, was born in 1849 He is an imbecile, and his State was for some years managed, or rather mismanaged by a Council This unsatisfactory state of affairs resulted in Government putting in a Manager, Lala Dhanwant Rai Owing, however, partly to the intrigues of the Rana's brother the late Mian Indar Singh, partly to the Manager's own want of tact and partly to jealousy among the members of the Council by which he is nominally assisted, the administration has not been satisfactory and the Council has accordingly been abolished altogether, Dhanwant Rai being, at the same time, replaced as Manager by Munshi Sher Singh a Naib Tahsildar from the Kangra District, who has since been succeeded by M Sukh Charn Singh Naib Tahsildar of Fagu in the Keonthal State Indar Singh was debarred from any share in the administration and was allotted a jagir on which he resided until his death which took place in April 1907

The Tikka, Bedar Singh, joined the Aitchison College in October 1907

The Chief had an interview with the Viceroy in 1895 He is not entitled to pay a formal visit to the Viceroy, but is allowed the privilege of an informal interview once during the Viceroy's term of office

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Lieutenant Governor of the Punjab The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows —“ My friend,—I remain Your sincere friend ”

MAILOG

The ruling house is Rajput The founder of the family came from A Jira and settled at Bhawana After vicissitudes of fortune the Thakur settled at Pata which has 32 been the capital of the State for 21 generations. The State was held by the Gurkhas from 1803 to 1815 and, on their expulsion by the British a sanad, dated 4th September 1815, confirmed the Thakur in the possession of his territory on the usual conditions of rendering service when required in time of war. Sansar Chand, to whom the sanad was granted died in 1849 and was succeeded by Dalip Chand who died in 1880. He was succeeded by Thakur Rughnath Chand, who died in September 1902.

Until 1898 the Chief was styled Thakur, but in that year the title of Rana was conferred on Rughnath Chand as a personal distinction. He was a good administrator, and had the interests of his people at heart. He suffered much bereavement by the loss of many sons in infancy but two are still alive the elder of whom, Durga Chand has been recognised as the successor to the gadi with the title of Thakur. The Chief is only 11 years old. The administration of the State was carried on by a Council until 1907 when, owing to dissensions among the members, the Council was abolished and a manager was appointed.

The State possesses 2 serviceable guns.

Rana Rughnath Chand had an interview with the Viceroy in 1895. The Chief is not entitled to pay a formal visit to the Viceroy, but is allowed the privilege of an informal interview once during the Viceroy's term of office.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Lieutenant Governor of the Punjab. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows — 'My friend — I remain, Your sincere friend.'

NALAGARH (HINDUR)

The Chiefs of Hindur and Kahlur trace their origin to a common ancestor, a Chandel Rajput from Garh Chanderi. Nalagarh was conquered by the Raja of Kahlur (Bilaspur) who bestowed it on his brother Gajeh Singh from whom the present family is descended. Raja Ram Sarn Singh greatly extended his possessions by conquest, but his power was broken and his country taken by the Gurkhas in 1803. When the Gurkhas were driven out by the British in 1815 Raja Ram Sarn Singh, who had behaved with consistent loyalty to the British throughout the war, was granted a sanad which confirmed him in his possessions but he refused to take over the districts which he himself had conquered and annexed before the Gurkha invasion. The administration of the Chief is unfettered except that death sentences require the confirmation of the Superintendent, Hill States. Nalagarh ranks fourth in order of precedence among the Simla Hill States and eleventh amongst Native States in the Punjab.

The present Chief, Raja Isri Singh was born in 1832. He succeeded his father, Raja Agr Singh, in 1876. From reports of successive Superintendents it would seem that he is not a very capable ruler, allowing himself to be distracted by intrigue and swayed by favourites. The presumptive heir is his brother, Mian Jogindar Singh, who was born in 1870. He acted for a short time as Wazir of the State, but without satisfaction. The Raja distrusts him, and the character he bears is not good. The State is now under a Council of three members. The generally good administration of this Council and a succession of fair harvests has improved the finances of the State and the principal debts have been cleared.

The State has two serviceable guns and a local military force of 56 men.

The Chief had an interview with Lord Elgin in 1895. He is entitled to be received by the Viceroy.

RAMPUR

The State of Rampur is the sole surviving representative of what were once termed the Rohilla States. The ruling family claims descent from Shah Alam and Husain Khan, two Afghan brothers who came to India in the latter part of the seventeenth century to seek service under the Moghal Emperor. But the rise of the family is mainly due to Ali Muhammad Khan grandson by adoption, of the elder brother, whose rise to power excited the jealousy of Safdar Jang, the Subadar of Oudh. The latter induced the Emperor Muhammad Shah to take the field against the Rohilla Chief. Ali Muhammad was, after a brief resistance, compelled to make an unconditional surrender and was kept a close prisoner at Delhi in 1746. He was relieved shortly after and placed in charge of Sirhind as Governor. A year later taking advantage of the confusion that prevailed during the last months of Muhammad Shah's reign he returned and regained supremacy over Rohilkhand, and in the next year his title was confirmed by Ahmad Shah, the successor of Muhammad Shah.

In 1774 he was succeeded by Faiz ullah, the first jagirdar of Rampur. The eldest son of Faiz ullah Muhammad Ali, was assassinated shortly after his succession but his son, Ahmad Ali Khan, succeeded him soon after as second jagirdar and ruled from 1794 to 1840 when he was succeeded by Muhammad Said Khan. Muhammad Yusuf Ali succeeded his father, Muhammad Said Khan in 1855. He received certain villages in the Bareilly and Moradabad districts for loyalty during the Mutiny. Kalb Ali Khan succeeded him in 1864 and was followed by his son Mushtak Ali Khan, in 1887. The present Nawab Sir Muhammad Hamid Ali Khan Bahadur, was born on the 31st August 1875, and succeeded his father Mushtak Ali on the 27th February 1889. During his minority the affairs of the State were managed by a Council of Regency which was dissolved on his being invested with powers on the 1st June 1896. He has three sons, viz. Sahibzada Hasan Ali Khan Bahadur the eldest—born 3rd October 1900,—Sahibzada Jafar Ali Khan Bahadur, and Sahibzada Raza Ali Khan Bahadur and three daughters the eldest of whom was born on 3rd January 1898.

On the 13th April 1891 General Azim ud din Khan, the Vice President of the Council, was assassinated, four persons were brought to justice for the murder.

Up to February 1907 the Nawab was assisted in the administration of the State by a minister appointed by the Government. The post of minister was then abolished and the administration of the State is now under His Highness's direct control. All the departments are worked by the Nawab through five officers, viz. (3) Mirza Kazim Husain, Barrister at Law, Judicial Secretary, (4) Sahibzada Abdul Majid Khan, Deputy Collector,

TEHRI

The State is situated in the Himalayas, and the Commissioner of Kumaun is Agent to the Lieutenant Governor for Tehri.

The ruling family are Rajputs of the "Solar" race. Kanak Pal, the first prince of the present dynasty, married the only daughter of the Raja of Garhwal. The title of Pal was used until the time of Kaljan Shah, 38th in descent, who was invested with the title of Shah by Nasir ud din, Emperor of Delhi, 1246-66 A.D., from which time the Raja was called Sah or Shah. In 1804 A.D. the reigning prince was expelled by the Nepalese. His son, Sudarshan Sah, sought the protection of the British. Upon the defeat of the Gurkhas by the British, Western Garhwal was given by sanad to Sudarshan Sah in 1820, and the capital was removed from Srinagar to Tehri. Eastern Garhwal was at the same time taken under British rule.

Sudarshan Sah died in 1859, leaving no legitimate issue. In accordance with the terms of the treaty the country lapsed to Government, but in 1859 it was bestowed by the Supreme Government upon Bhawani Singh, the eldest illegitimate son of Sudarshan Sah, in recognition of his father's steady loyalty and useful services in 1857. Bhawani Sah died in 1872 and was succeeded by his son Pratap Sah.

The present Chief, His Highness Raja Sir Kirti Sah, K.C.S.I., who was born on 19th January 1874, and educated in the Rajkumar College at Ajmer, succeeded his father, Pratap Sah, in 1887, and was installed in 1892. He married a daughter of Padam Jang, son of Maharaja Jang Bahadur of Nepal, and has one son and two daughters. His Highness paid a visit in cognito to Europe in 1900. His administration is satisfactory.

The State maintains a company of Imperial Service Sappers and Miners 175 strong. It has two cannon used only for firing salutes. The Rajas of Tehri pay no tribute, but are required to give free access into their territory to British subjects, in case of emergency to assist the Paramount Power, and to allow the British Government to make roads through the country. The present Raja is entitled to a salute of eleven guns.

By a sanad granted to Raja Bhawani Sah in 1862 the Chiefs of Tehri were given the power of adoption.

The eldest daughter of the present Chief (His Highness Raja Sir Kirti Sah) is married to the grandson of His Highness Sewai Maharaj Ranjor Singh, K.C.I.E., the present ruler of Ajaigarh State, Bundelkhand.

Kunwar Surendra Sah, the younger brother of the present Chief, His Highness the Raja Sir Kirti Sah, K.C.S.I., has been adopted by the Raja of Bashahr State.

Armed Police consisting of 3 Head Constables and 36 constables are also maintained.

The highest British authority by whom the Chief has hitherto been addressed is the Agent to the Lieutenant Governor. The form of commencement and conclusion of letter is as follows—"My friend,—I remain Your sincere friend."
